BULKLEY, WET, SHOWS ABILITY TO WIN VOTERS

Democrat, Seeking Seat in Senate, Popular in Ohio.

PAYS NO ATTENTION TO HIS COLLEGAUES

Election Would Be Joke on Politicians of Buckeye State.

EVERY RULE BROKEN BY NOVICE IN GAME

Running Mates' Pleas Not to Stress Prohibition Fall Upon Deaf Ears.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 17.—If Robert A. Bulkley, wet Democratic candidate for the Senate should lead his ticket in vote getting, as the indications are now that he will, it will be one of history's prized jokes on the politicians of this State, Republican as well as those of his own faith.

Many factors enter into the expected Democratic victory in Ohio, of course—the tariff, depression drought and whatnot—but that prohibition is playing its own important part is evidenced by the fact that the newspaper polls show Bulkley running ahead of his gubernatorial running mate, George White, in the cities and holding his own with him in rural districts and that furthermore defections from the Republican ranks to Bulkley far outnumber those to White.

Yet in the face of this, Democratic politicians are still hammering Bulkley with "don'ts" and he continues on without paying attention to them. It would seem that Bulkley has already violated every "don't" of the political decalogue. He violated one very big one when he entered the primary as a wet. Yet his victory in that primary does not preclude the politicians from running to him with "Now don't do this and don't do that."

G. O. P. Hopes for Cooper.

The veteran George White, who reminds one of the late Tex Rickard and who, indeed, served in the Klondike with him, will probably go to his grave thinking that he pulled Bulkley through this campaign. He apparently has no knowledge whatsoever of the fact that the Republicans still have a slight hope that they will save their gubernatorial candidate, Meyers Cooper.

Bulkley, White and the candidate for lieutenant governor are touring the State together and in each district, of course, they pick up the congressional candidate.

Well, sir, it's funny to see the party try to slip away from Bulkley when they go into the dry, rural areas. And failing in this, they try to get him to remain silent on prohibition, but they can't even do that.

Bulkley Makes Appearance.

I rode over to the dry Republican town of Marion the other night to see the bunch in action. The local managers tried to keep Bulkley out and it was, indeed, advertised that other business prevented his presence. Just before the meeting, in a hall over the late President Harding's Marion Star, however, Bulkley showed up, looking just as innocent as an overgrown boy and apparently oblivious to the excitement his appearance was causing.

Even then it seemed that the audience would have to wait all night to hear him but it was seemingly determined to do just that. It was a crowd that comfortably filled the hall. There was nothing about the band or any of the speakers to arouse any enthusiasm but when Bulkley, with his baby-like eyes, high forehead and receding dark hair, a man just turned 50, but seemingly much younger, arose, he was greeted by louder and more prolonged handclapping than any other speaker had received by far.

He talked about the tariff in his faltering monotone—he is a very poor speaker—and then headed right into prohibition. You could have heard a pin drop as the audience, of one accord, leaned forward and cuped its ear, men and women alike. You had to do that to hear him. He swings the index finger of his right hand back and forth as he talks, which is his only method of emphasis.

Talks on Prohibition.

Well sir, when he said "prohibition," White crossed his long legs and then reversed the position time and again and those on the stand with him showed a similar strain. There was a tenseness over the whole hall, similar to that over a court-

Calvin Coolidge

Says: If some current statements are to be taken seriously, we are expecting too much from free government. Notwithstanding the excellent practice of voting our ideals, nevertheless we have a representative Government that must necessarily be about what we ourselves are. We demand entire freedom of action and then expect the Government in some miraculous way to save us from the consequences of our own acts. We want the right to run our own business, fix our own wages and prices, and spend our own money, but if depression and unemployment result we look to Government for a remedy.

We insist on producing a farm surplus but think the Government should find a profitable market for it. We overindulge in speculation but ask the Government to prevent panics. Now the only way to hold the Government entirely responsible for conditions is to give up our liberty for a dictatorship. If we continue the more reasonable practice of managing our own affairs we must bear the burdens of our own mistakes. A free people can not shift their responsibility for them to the Government. Self-government means self-reliance.

PITTS POSTS BOND; EARLY TRIAL LOOMS

Former Smith Firm Head Puts Up $10,000; Pleas in Abatement Filed.

JUDGE DIRECTS VERDCIT

Several developments in the criminal prosecution of former officials of the F. H. Smith Co. were recorded yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

These included the appearance in court of G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board, to post $10,000 bond for appearance at trial on a charge of embezzling more than $1,200,000 of the company's funds; filing of pleas in abatement to the embezzlement indictment against Pitts on the grounds that the October grand jury was illegally constituted; a directed verdict in favor of the Government by the jury which has been hearing pleas in abatement to the indictment in which Pitts and three other former officers are charged with conspiracy to embezzle $5,000,000 and destroy records, and filing by defense attorneys of motions to quash the conspiracy to embezzzle indictment.

Pitts appeared in the court shortly after Justice William Hitz had ordered the jury to return a verdict in favor of the Government and against the defense in all pleas which have been heard during the week. He was accompanied by his attorneys and a number of friends, and after he had signed his bond his attorneys filed the pleas in abatement, which stay arraignment on the charge until after they are settled.

Justice Hitz's direction to the jury ended a phase of the conspiracy case which has been occupying the attention of the court for more than a week and which has held a jury for four days. It also paved the way for the Government's desire to demand a speedy trial.

No date was set for the trial, because immediately after the jury's verdict Attorney Harry Barger, representing Samuel J. Henry, former president, and Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, Rudolph H. Yeatman and Frank G. Raichle, representing Pitts, C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., filed motions to quash the scheduled to be argued before Justice Hitz Monday.

Although some sensations were injected into the trial of the pleas in abatement the final day of the hearing was featureless except for arguments of counsel in which they stressed various phases of the testimony.

Justice Hitz's action in ordering the directed verdict was in response to a motion by Assistant United States At-

G. W. PLAYS 0-0 TIE WITH SOUTH DAKOTA

STOPPED AT 7-YARD LINE

By JACK ESPEY.

George Washington and South Dakota University, two football teams about as evenly matched as two could be, battled to a scoreless tie last night in Griffith Stadium as the local team opened its home season before a crowd of 8,000.

The press agenting couldn't have been any more close to the truth, for pregame reports predicted a dog-eat-dog struggle and that was just what developed.

However, George Washington made most of its gains when in Coyette territory and three times the colonists penetrated the enemy 10-yard line but to no avail. South Dakota threatened only once, reaching the G. W. 10 yard line in the third quarter.

Approximately 8,000 persons, a majority of them loyal George Washington students, braved the rain and cold wind that suddenly appeared a half hour before game time. It was a bad break for George Washington, this sort of weather attending its debut and the one game from which the coffers might have been filled.

George Washington matched its power plays against the deceptive maneuvers of South Dakota University and the scales balanced to the dissatisfaction of both sides. Off the tackles and inside, the Buff and Blue backs hammered all night, while the colorful Coyotes kept spinning, reversing, faking and running route and South Dakota had accumulated a total yardage of 138.

The crowd waited in vain for "Big Bill" South, much advertised Coyote quorter back, to break loose with a touchdown play, but Bill was just another football player last night and the glory that came South Dakota's way was plucked by Joe Crakes, a giant end, and Qualm, a substitute half back.

"Otts" Krielemeyer, former Tech High all-high full back, and the lone Washingtonian in the fray, shared G. W. honors with Joe Carter, quarter back, and Fred Mulvey end. "Otts" trotted off the field late in the field with a salvo of applause ringing in his ears.

The Colonials' initial scoring bid came midway of the first period when a 44-yard parade topped off with a pass from Carter to Mulvey planted the ball in Coyotte 9-yard line. At this point Billy Wells, the Colonial

BEER FAVORED AS A.F.L. BANS TRY AT REPEAL

Move for Volstead Act's Modification Is Taken Without Debate.

POLICY REAFFIRMED ON NONPARTISANSHIP

Delegates Hear Walsh, of Massachusetts, Flay G. O. P.

LAYS INDIFFERENCE TO ADMINISTRATION

War on Injunction Use in Union Disputes Held Major Issue.

Boston, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The American Federation of Labor, in the closing session of its annual convention here today, recommitted itself to the policy of modification of the Volstead act to permit manufacture and sale of beer of 2.75 per cent alcohol content and rejected resolutions favoring repeal of the act and of the eighteenth amendment.

The delegates also reaffirmed the federation's policy of nonpartisanship in politics and cited proposed legislation against the issuance of court injunctions in labor disputes as a predominating political issue. They urged the election of those candidates for Congress in favor of abolition of the labor injunction and the defeat of those who opposed it.

During the early hours of the session the convention heard Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, denounce the national administration for what he described as evasion of the unemployment issue and its failure to publicly recognize the seriousness of the current situation in industry.

Accepted Without Debate.

The part of the report of the executive council, which approved modification of the Volstead act, was accepted by the delegates without debate. The resolutions advocating repeal were killed by voice vote after addresses by their sponsors, Arthur J. Beauregard, of the Providence Central Federation Union, whose resolution urged repeal of the Volstead act, and Edward Flore, of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes and Beverage Dispensers International Alliance, who favored repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Other resolutions adopted included:

Endorsement of the Appeal of Actors and Musicians for support of a popular movement against the mechanizing of Cultural Arts.

Urging employment of civilian workers on mechanical work for the Army and Navy.

Endorsing House Joint Resolution 334 proposing radio broadcasting rights for the Department of Agriculture, Labor and Interior for appointment to radio stations of the most representative groups.

Protesting modification of the Packers Consent Decree.

Favoring independence for the Philippine Islands.

The convention referred to the executive council for such action as might be necessary, two resolutions calling for legislation for the disposition of the Muscle Shoals Project.

Walsh Sees Leadership Need.

Senator Walsh told the delegates that in the present period of unemployment the Nation ought to have the same leadership from "the man who guides our destiny" as the Government provides in time of war. He accused the administration of having been lacking in sympathy, lax in failing to acknowledge publicly the facts of the situation and of attempting to minimize its seriousness.

"My criticism of the Government is not so much that it has not found a solution as that it has been in-

KAISER'S FUNDS BACK FASCISTS, GERMANS HOLD

HELPED TO FINANCE ELECTION CAMPAIGN

GOVERNMENT GIVES OPPONENTS CHANCE

Bruening's Enemies Occupy Day in Reichstag to Air Grievances.

Berlin, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The newspaper Achtuhr Abendblatt today stated that American financial support for Adolf Hitler's Fascist movement had ceased and that it was reported the former kaiser, from his exile at Doorn, Holland, had helped to finance the Fascist election campaign.

In an article carrying the caption, "Is William II one of the big financial backers of Fascism?" the paper says that earlier support from Hitler's American admirers has apparently run dry.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency also reported learning from reliable sources that the former kaiser was the financial angel of the Fascists. The former emperor has a huge fortune at his command.

It is reported his son, Prince August Wilhelm, reputed to be the cleverest of his children, has been the go-between in the relations of his father with Hitler. August Wilhelm himself is a member of the Fascist party, publicly announcing his affiliation last June.

A number of members of the former Prussian nobility are openly supporting Hitler. The Duke of Coburg-Gotha, Prince Schaumburg-Lippe and the Princess Reuss are all lending moral and financial backing.

Hitler Views Aired.

The government gave its enemies in the Reichstag today a chance to loose the floodgates of their pent-up feelings, and for many hours the Fascists, notably laid down the policies they wanted the republic to pursue for the solution of its pressing economic problems.

A Fascist spokesman read into the record of Parliament the views and prophecies which Adolf Hitler uttered a few weeks ago at a trial at Leipsic in which three Reichswehr officers were accused, as Fascists, of subversive propaganda in the army.

The speaker was Gregor Strasser. He propounded to a Reichstag already thrown into confusion by hecklers the "legal" revolutionary threats with which Hitler had caused nervousness throughout Europe.

Chance to Air Grievances.

It was the first time since dissolution of the previous Reichstag, on July 18, that the opposition parties, particularly the left and right, had opportunity to air their grievances and make campaign speeches for the folks at home. Yet when all was said and done it became clear to discerning observers that the government had a good chance of defeating nonconfidence motions which have been proposed from four quarters.

Not only did the government's bill authorizing a foreign credit of $125,000,000 pass its first and second reading, but former Chancellor Mueller's guarded statements showed that the Social Democrats, at least, with their 143 members, were willing to help the government over the nonconfidence crises and possibly also with adoption of its financial program in a somewhat modified form.

The spotlight of public interest naturally was upon the forensic

HOOVER TELLS GROUP IN CABINET TO ASSIST JOBLESS FOR WINTER

Hunger and Cold Must Be Prevented, Says Executive.

COMMITTEE URGED TO SUBMIT PROJECT

Lamont, Davis, Wilbur, Hurley and Meyer Selected.

PRESIDENT OUTLINES FEDERAL ACTIVITIES

Need of Cooperation With State and Local Heads Is Emphasized.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

With winter approaching, President Hoover yesterday renewed his fight against unemployment. He appointed a committee of five, and instructed it to submit plans for continuing and strengthening Federal activities to help the jobless in cold weather months.

"As a Nation," the President said, "we must prevent hunger and cold to those of our people who are in honest difficulties."

The committee is composed of Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Secretary of Labor Davis, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Secretary of War Hurley and Gov. Eugene Meyer, of the Federal Reserve Board.

Spring Program Recalled.

This "Cabinet committee," as the President calls it, will seek to strengthen the organization he set up last spring when unemployment began to assume proportions of a national problem.

"There are three directions of organization in which Federal Government activities can cooperate," the President's statement said. "First, cooperation with governors and employment organizations of States and local communities; second, development of methods with national industries, and third, in direct Federal employment in public works.

"It will be remembered that ten months ago we set up such arrangements which have continued since that time, and which have contributed greatly to reduce unemployment. At that time governors of many of the States established strong committees for action in relief, and most of these organizations have shown a high record of real accomplishment."

State Action Mentioned.

"The present conditions of organization vary greatly in different States. In the great majority of industrial States the governors, on their own initiative, have taken steps to reorganize or develop or further strengthen their organizations for the forthcoming winter.

"During the past few weeks I have been in communication with some of the governors in development of methods by which the Federal Government can further supplement assistance to their organization.

"The Cabinet committee will further discuss these conditions with governors and State agencies and we will again seek the cooperation of our business leaders and our national industries, which we have had on so generous a scale during the past year.

Public Work Program.

"We shall also review the Federal situation of public works, and the situation in construction among the national industries, together with other methods by which we can continue to be of assistance.

"There are no two States or municipalities where the problem is the same or where the methods for assistance are identical. With the survey of the methods in progress in the past ten months, we should have valuable suggestive material and information for the winter.

"The initiative of the various governors and local authorities in prep-

U. S. WARSHIP GOES TO COAST OF BRAZIL

MOVE IS PRECAUTIONARY

(Associated Press.)

For the first time in two years an American warship was steaming last night toward a Latin-American republic to protect, if necessary, American lives which might be endangered in revolutionary activities.

Ordered several days ago to Trinidad from Guantanamo, the cruiser Pensacola started down toward the Brazilian coast yesterday on instructions from Washington. The cruiser's orders are to touch at three principal ports, Para, Pernambuco and Bahia. It was estimated that she would reach Bahia Tuesday.

Secretary Stimson, in announcing the movement of the Pensacola, said that it was solely a precautionary measure. The commander of the ves-

Five Men Freeze to Death, With Rescue 100 Feet Away

Canadian Farmer, Who Kept House Lighted as Beacon During Raging Blizzard, Rises to Find Corpses and Five Survivors in Autos Near Gate.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Five men marooned in a blizzard were frozen to death today, though, had they known it, help was close at hand, and warmth and shelter.

In the past three days almost two feet of snow has fallen in this district. Last night the wind swept it into great drifts and the temperature dropped to within 15 degrees of zero.

Ted Evoy, who has a farm on the outskirts of Regina, left his house lighted all night to guide travelers lost in the storm to safety. But this morning when he arose he found two automobiles stalled in the ditch 100 feet from the farm gate. In one were five men dead and another weak and hysterical. In the other car were four more men unable to move.

The survivors were carried to the house and a doctor, summoned by telephone, said they would recover. They told of a night so thick with swirling snow that they had not seen the farmhouse light even though they left the chill shelter of the cars and floundered about in the drifts for a time in search of shelter.

George Bell started out to drive here from Qu'Appelle last night. Near McLean, Sask., he picked up two men who had abandoned their car further down the road. Driving on, he picked up three more men of the same carload who had gone on ahead. The six proceeded in the blizzard and came upon another sedan with four occupants. The car driven by Bell finally was halted in a snowbank.

"It wasn't gas that did for the others and nearly did for the rest and myself," Bell explained later. "It was exhaustion and the cold."

The identified dead were: G. B. Deswell, Leslie Hallsworth and Walter Tyndall, all of Regina. The others were believed to be Thomas M. Houston and H. M. Savage, also of Regina.

Peeper Suspect Captured By Wife of Major General

Youth, Surprised on Fire Escape of Kalorama Road Apartment, Pinioned by Mrs. W. A. Bethel After Chase and Struggle.

Suspected of "Peeping Tom" forays along the rear fire escape of the apartment building at 2116 Kalorama road northwest, 16-year-old William Reid, colored, of Twenty-third street near T street northwest, was captured at the apartment in a thrilling chase last night and held by Eighth Precinct police for investigation.

Despite his youth he was overtaken in racing through the corridors and down steps to the main floor by Mrs. Walter A. Bethel, wife of Maj. Gen. Bethel, U. S. Army, retired, who observed Reid loitering on the rear fire escape two floors above her own apartment. She finally caught him and a struggle ensued in which both narrowly escaped cuts as a plate-glass door was smashed.

To her aid came her son-in-law, Capt. Hugh W. Rowan, U. S. Army, attached to office of chief of Chemical Warfare Service, War Department, also a resident in the building, who subdued the youngster and turned him over to Policeman M. J. Mahaney.

Complaints that a youthful Negro had appeared on the fire escape and gotten away before arrival of police were received Monday, and on other occasions from young women of the Maret Boarding School, located in the same block, who said they had observed a young man on the same fire escape.

Jobless Total Unknown.

Just how many men and women now are out of work in the United States is not accurately known. The Census Bureau estimated that the number of unemployed in April was 2,508,151, but the Democratic national committee attacked this as inaccurate. According to the committee the number of jobless is actually between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000.

President Hoover's announcement yesterday that he had appointed an unemployment committee followed by three days the action of the American Federation of Labor in urging some such action.

At its convention in Boston, the federation suggested that committees be appointed by President Hoover and by State governors, city mayors and town leaders. It further suggested that these committees cooperate with the Federal Government in working out plans to alleviate unemployment.

SOCIETY OF NATIVES OPEN FALL SEASON

President Emery Praises Washington, in Address to Gathering.

ONE-ACT PLAY ENJOYED

An address by President Fred Emery and a one-act play staged by the Wits and Queues Dramatic Club featured the first fall meeting of the Society of Natives of the iDstrict of Columbia, held last night in the Washington Club. Approximately 150 members attended.

Reminding his audience that last night wa sthe aniversary of Gen. Burgoyne's surrender to Gen. Gates at Saratoga, Mr. Emery reviewed George Washington's contributions to the esurged his listeners to support the tablishment of the Republic, and coming Washington bicentennial celebration as a tribute "to him who made possible the great Government whose Capital is our home."

The one-act play, entitled "Traffic Court in Session," was written for the society by Police Judge Gus Schultz. It depicted in farcical manner the fate of motorists hailed before the tribunal. Principal characters were E. H. Hutchins, judge; Duncan Price, clerk; Jordan R. Bently, prosecuting attorney; Doyle Strange, attorney for the defendants; Leonard Baber, bailiff; Robert Simmons and James McManaway, policemen. The comedy was directed by Charles B. McInnis and Lena G. Parks.

The following new members were duly elected after having been favorably reported on by Ralph L. Hall, chairman of the membership committee: Newbold Noyes, Donald Lee Chamberlin, Buelah T. PAROLE PLEA FILED BY WELFARE BOARD

Annual Report Also Urges Indeterminate Sentences by Capital Courts.

WAGE SCALE PROPOSED

Legisaltion providing for indetermined sentences by District courts and parole of all prisoners was urged by the Board of Public Welfare in its annual report submitted yesterday to the District Commissioners.

Payment of a small wage to prisoners at work in District penal and correctional institutions was urged by the board. Payment o fsuch wages is authorized by existing law. But that is as far as the matter ever got. There never has been any money appropriated to pay the wages authorized and the law has been nullified by the lack of money to carry it out.

There have been substantial increases in the number of persons needing and receiving charity from agencies of the board, the report said, although there were decreases or only very small increases in the populations of the various penal and correctional institutions as compared with the preceding year.

The average daily population at the District Jail was 503 as compared with 529 the year before; 684 at the workhouse as compared with 685; while the average daily population in the workhouse increased from 439 to 580.

This increase, however, is accounted for by the fact that more District prisoners are now kept in District institutions than formerly. In the past long term prisoners were sent to penitentiaries, but these have become so crowded that they can not care for District prisoners and these are now kept in District institutions. There were between 300 and 400 District prisoners in Federal prisons last year, the report said.

BRAZIL'S PRESIDENT CERTAIN OF SUCCESS

Washington Luis Recalls Revolutions in Past Were in Vain.

CITES INTERNAL SUPPORT

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—President Washington Luis told the Associated Press today that the U. S. of Brazil now stood at an anxious moment, but said he was convinced that the government would win over the revolutionary movement.

"The lessons of Brazilian history," said the president "inspire both the government and the people with confidence that the unity of the country will triumph over the grave disturbance of this anxious moment. "No effort to disintegrate our vast Portuguese-speaking territory has ever been successful. We have no record, in our century of independence of a revolution triumphing with bloodshed, nor of any interruption of constitutional government in our forty years of republican existence.

"In this hour of crisis, when the Brazilian government, upheld by the powerful majority of the nation, has to meet an armed uprising in many states of the union, it faces its duty with every moral and material support, with the fighting ardor of Brazilian youth and with the patriotic loyalty of both the navy and the army, now swelled by the reserve forces which are the bulk of the nation.

"Based on such support, it is the government's firm conviction that the triumph of orderwillbeabsolute."

Sneak-Thief Loots Two Apartments

Works While Group Plays Bridge, Continues as Man Listens to Radio.

A sneak thief, operating while the occupants of two apartments at 520 E street northeast were busy in other rooms, yesterday gathered loot, including cash, car tokens, railroad passes and a watch.

Mrs. Charles C. Cawson, of apartment 303, was giving a bridge party and her guests had left their outer wraps in a bedroom. The thief got $8.40 from the clothes of Florence Dean, Cottage City, Md.; $1 and car tokens from Nancy Montgomery, also of Cottage City, and an undetermined amount of money from Martha Bosdis, of Woodridge.

After robbing the bridge players, the intruder went upstairs to apartment 403 and while James N. Thomas listened to his radio, stole a wallet containing two railroad passes and a watch valued at $60. Mrs. Thomas S. Hayden, a first floor tenant, gave police a good description of a man who questioned her about various tenants earlier in the day.

Mexican Insurgents Seize Town in State of Chiapas

Rebellion Apparently Is Aimed at Local Government Only—Rebel Leader Orders Federal Authority Respected—Officials Ousted.

Mexico City, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Organization of a home guard was rushed today at San Cristobal, State of Chiapas, to cope with a band of rebels who seized the town of Comitan yesterday.

Special dispatches from Chiapas state that the rebellion is apparently entirely local in character. Leocadio Velasco, leader of the armed band, issued orders that the federal authority be respected.

The authorities at San Cristobal are determined to put up a stiff resistance if attacked.

The war department has received official notification of the seizure of Comitan, and, though the movement is directed only against State officials, has ordered federal troops sent there to restore order.

Velasco and his men ousted the municipal authorities and called a conference of leading citizens to choose a new council. Comitan is the most important department in Chiapas State. The town has a population of about 10,000.

ies of rebel infantry and cavalry that tried to take their trenches, which were protected by barbed-wire entanglement.

Shortly after the first attack the federal artillery went int oaction, obliging the rebels to withdraw their guns. Federal airplanes kept up constant flights and dropped bombs on the attackers. Some airplanes flew farther south and bombed rebel troop trains at Jaguarahyva Station.

At about midday, after nine hours of fighting, the rebel fire slackened, and the federals made a violent counter-attack, taking the enemy's trenches and driving them back in disorder.

The federals say they captured many prisoners, from whom they learned that the rebels were finding it difficult to obtain provisions and ammunition, so that their artillery could not go into action until yesterday.

The captured prisoners were badly clothed, hungry and barefoot. Many were said to be civilians of Rio Grande without military training. They suffered heavy losses through advancing in compact groups against the federal machine-gun fire.

The federals said that at one point, where an opening had been purposely left in the barbed wire entanglements, the rebels who tried to crowd through were raked by fire from hidden machine guns. They also quote the prisoners as saying the attack was made at Itarare because the rebel commanders had failed to break through the Sao Paulo frontier anywhere else.

In the same sector A group of rebels is reported to be surrounded by federals, who are waiting for them to surrender in order to avoid unnecessary loss of life.

A special train arriving at Sao Paulo this morning brought prisoners from Itarare and from Ourinhos also.

sel will take off, at any points the vessel touches, Americans who may desire to leave the country on account of the revolt. Further instructions will be issued to the commander later.

The last time an American war vessel was sent to a Latin-American country to protect American lives during a revolution was in 1928 during the troubles in Nicaragua.

No special importance was attached to the Pensacola's orders, since no Americans in Brazil have yet indicated their desire to be taken off.

Romantic Roses Are Winter's First Flower

Paris, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Roses are the flower most favored for evening wear at the dressmaking houses.

One of the leading style makers tucks a couple of big roses in the front of nearly every dance and dinner frock. As a rule they are attached without stems or foliage.

Pale yellow and shell pink are smart with white gowns. White roses on black are much newer than gardenias or carnations.

30 Years as Nurse Crowns Her Ambition

San Francisco, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—A childhood ambition to become an Army nurse has been crowned by 30 years of service in military hospitals by Carrie Howard.

She joined the Army Nursing Corps in 1900 and at present is head of the convalescent ward at Letterman Hospital at the San Francisco Presidio. Miss Howard was graduated from the San Francisco hospital in 1897 and served in the Philippines with the Red Cross until she enlisted in the Army.

PEACE OVERTURES DENIED BY BRAZIL

Federals Answer Insurgent Chief, Who Claims Victory and Advises Surrender.

REBELS POINT TO GAINS

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Federal sources asserted tonight that the Brazilian government had not entered into peace negotiations with the revolutionaries and would not consider any proposal for separation of the country.

It was added that neither would consideration be given to any plan for changes in the legally elected government.

This presumably was in answer to Gen. Miguel Costa, commander of the rebel vanguard on the Sao Paulo-Parana front, who is reported to have advised the government to give up. He urged negotiations beginning with a visit of government observers to the battle area for a view of the strong revolutionary resources, believing that they thus would see the uselessness of further opposition.

Planes Bomb Trains.

The government today announced the capture of Itarare, an important railway center in Sao Paulo just above the Parana frontier. The rebels made a serious attack on the city yesterday, arriving in the combat zone by trains and continually bringing up reinforcements, but the federal artillery is said to have thrown them into panic and caused them to flee.

Government airplanes followed the trains as they hastily pulled back into Parana, bombing them and causing huge rebel losses. Three hundred prisoners were taken, 200 of them being brought from Sao Paulo this morning.

The capture of Itarare is also claimed in rebel quarters.

While continually mobilizing reserves and thus increasing its land strength, the central government also is building up the navy. Thirty merchant vessels already have been converted for war purposes and have been assigned for blockade work along the coast. They are used particularly as such ports as Pernambuco, now held by the insurrectionaries, which depend principally upon ocean commerce for existence.

Rebels Ask Surrender.

The regular navy is scattered here and there along the seaboard, with one squadron anchored in the vicinity of Sao Paulo ready for any emergency.

Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—With Brazilian revolutionaries claiming military victories in four directions from the federal capital, the rebel Gen. Miguel Costa today called on the Rio de Janeiro government to give up the struggle.

Gen. Costa announced the capture of the City of Itarare, in the hotly contested Sao Paulo-Parana sector, and at the same time addressed a message to all Brazilians predicting victory and insisting on the resignation of the government.

Dispute City's Capture.

The capture of Itarare, important rail head on the line leading to the City of Sao Paulo, is disputed by federal sources. These say the revolutionaries were repulsed there and lost 300 prisoners.

The rebel chieftain, asserting that the federals had been demoralized in half a dozen encounters warned that if the government should insist on opposing the revolution the insurgents would not be responsible for the fate of those to blame for the useless shedding of blood. He proposed that the minister of war send observers to the main battle area in military planes, there to witness the resources of the rebels. Promising that they would not be harmed, he intimated they thus would see the futility of opposition and would return to the capital advising surrender.

Gains on Other Fronts.

In addition to claiming the capture of Itarare, the revolutionaries assert they have made the following gains on three other fronts:

North—Army of more than 10,000 men has captured Aracaju, capital of the small state of Sergipe, with little resistance and with a welcome by the population. Now moving southward into Bahia preparatory for a drive upon Rio de Janeiro.

South—Federals repulsed in efforts to land troops along the Santa Catharina coast, where they desire to relieve a government garrison at Florianapolis, the only place they still hold in the far south, and to form for an attack on the rear of the rebels now trying for Sao Paulo. A contingent which attempted to land from the destroyer Parana at Imbituba, a small port south of Florianapolis, was beaten back by revolutionists under Col. Luis Gomez.

Minas Geraes—Eleventh infantry regiment surrendered to attacking rebels, as did the 110th infantry, the latter giving up the important city of Sao Joao Del-Rey.

CANNON EXPLAINS HEARST LIBEL SUIT

Statement to Be Given Wide Distribution Among the Church Members.

HITS 'HOSTILE' SENATORS

(Associated Press.)

A statement summarizing his $5,000,000 libel action against William Randolph Hearst was issued yesterday by Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The document was to be given a wide distribution, the bishop said, among the members of his church.

It recited at length the particulars of his suit, filed Thursday, accusing Mr. Hearst of attempting to discredit him and malign his wife, the former Mrs. Helen Hawley McCallum.

Asked what steps had been taken to serve papers on Mr. Hearst and whether service could be legally accomplished outside the District of Columbia, Bishop Cannon said that was in the hands of his attorney. He added:

"If Mr. Hearst chooses to stay outside of Washington that is his business."

Bishop Cannon also reiterated his intention of refraining from any discussion of charges brought against him by four elders of his church.

In conclusion, he said "hostile" members of the Senate had been sending out copies of his correspondence with the brokerage firm of Kable & Co. to all sections of the country.

"The country has been flooded with copies of this correspondence under the frank of senators without the payment of any postal charge," he said, "and it seems proper to give at least this statement in reply to this widely disseminated correspondence circulated postage free."

$1,600 in Gems Reported Stolen

Woman Say Thats Thieves Gained Entrance to Home by Means of Ladder.

Acting on the complaint of Mrs. Louise D. Kent, 3100 Thirty-fifth street northwest, detectives of the Fourteenth Precinct yesterday began a search for $1,600 worth of jewelry which she reported stolen from her home sometime between Wednesday and last night.

The loot included a circular platinum brooch set with sixteen diamonds, a double string of pearls and a platinum clasp. The jewelry was removed from a dresser drawer in an upstairs bedroom while Mrs. Kent was away from home. She said that the thieves gained entrance through a secondstory back window, evidently with the aid of a ladder.

Detective L. E. Batchelor was assigned to the case, and all local jewelers were given a description of the stolen property.

The Montgomery Players will open their season tonight with the presentation of "Billetted," in the auditorium of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School. The players are a little theater group which achieved considerable success last year in the dramatic field in Montgomery County.

Marjorie Hathaway, Jane Plummer Rice, Allene Sanford, Anna May Converse, Harrison Hathaway, Thomas P. Dowd, Mahlon Selby, Lea Wilson and Doris Davidson are included in the cast. The production was directed by Arthur B. White, of Washington.

The play deals with the pitfalls which may beset a widow in her efforts to al dher country in wartime. A musical program by Malton Boyce, pianist; F. H. Charles, violinist, and Leon Saylor, cellist, will precede the play. Three other plays will be presented by the players at later dates.

CURTIS BLAMES IDLE MONEY FOR SLUMP

Farm Problems Now Better Understood, Vice President Says in Missouri Talk.

STRIKES AT DEMOCRATS

Springfield, Mo., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Unemployment and business depression in the United States was attributed to idle money by Vice President Charles Curtis in an address here tonight.

Speaking for the second time since he invaded the West to urge reelection of a Republican House and Senate, the Vice President said the effect of world-wide trade depression will be overcome in this country as soon as the Nation's money gets to work.

Reviewing past depressions, Vice President Curtis said practically all of them have occurred under Democratic rule. He pointed to statements of Lloyd George, British Liberal leader, to show that the present depression and unemployment exists in all of Europe, except France.

"This lack of employment," said Mr. Curtis, "brought about a depression in trade and a decline in purchases because people of Europe stopped buying, but it is hard, however, to understand why there should be so much unemployment and such great business depression in the United States. There is just as much capital in the country as there ever was, but it is not working. When the money of the country gets to work, the change will come."

Turning to the farm problem the Vice President said people generally, because of the activity of farm organizations and the debates in Congress, have come better to understand the agricultural situation; they now realize that not all they pay over the counter for their food products goes to the farmer; that a large share has been taken by every dealer or agency through whose hands the products passed on their way to market. Entering in to discussion of the farm situation, the Vice President said:

"The final solution of the farmer's problem is to get a price for his products which will mean cost of production plus a reasonable profit. This can be done and will be done only by and through the farmer himself and the utilization of the necessary agencies which the Government has created to accomplish the result."

BULKLEY IS GAINING IN BUCKEYE CONTEST

room when a death jury comes in with its verdict.

If Bulkley felt any of this it was not reflected in his manner or voice. He went right ahead like an unoiled graphophone playing the same record he had played before a crowd of Cleveland wets and only a few days before to a group of women Methodists. The man apparently has just one piece and he speaks it whatever may be the occasion. There is no harangue, no threats, no boasts, just a quiet statement.

I wonder if his being a very poor public speaker is not an asset in the dry rural sections? They are not so apt to look upon him as one of those fast-talking, gift-tongued city slickers trying to sell them a gold brick. It will be hard for the pastors to make them afraid of Bulkley though they may not, of course, agree with everything he says.

Crowd Applauds Bulkley.

At any rate when he concluded the crowd applauded just as loudly as it had for any of the other speakers and then sat back in its seat. It had given him a most attentive ear, to say the least.

George White later complained to me that he just wished Bulkley wouldn't be so outspoken to the dry audiences. "However, I'm a sport, I'm going to stick with him," he said.

For my part, I am going to watch the Marion vote and see if Bulkley doesn't run just as well there as George White.

Student Speeder Excused.

Because his excuse was that he was hurrying home to get sleep after studying for an examination, Isadore Schulman, 31 year old student of Flagler place near Twenty-second street northwest, escaped a $5 fine for speeding in Traffic Court yesterday. Judge Ralph Given took the young man's personal bond not to repeat the offense.

END OF NYE QUIZZES BEFORE VOTING SEEN

Membership Unable to Give More Attention to Funds Check.

FIELD MAN SUSPENDED

(Associated Press.)

Plans for further hearings by the Senate campaign funds committee before election day were virtually abandoned yesterday when it became known the membership was unable to give more attention to the work.

Chairman Nye had intended to return to Nebraska before the elections to inquire further into the circumstances leading up to the attempt of George W. Norris, the grocer, to file against Senator Norris for the Republicans senatorial nomination.

However, Senator Dale (Republican), Vermont, who conducted the first Nebraska inquiry with Senator Nye, made it clear yesterday he would be unable to return to the State before election. Senator Nye has indicated to his office here that he may go alone into Nebraska and Colorado after the Tennessee hearings to arrange the work for the committee's attention later.

New troubles confronted the committee yesterday. It was learned at headquarters that one of the field investigators had been suspended for improper conduct. It was said, however, that the complaint against the investigator had nothing to do with the charges made in Illinois that committee agents had engaged in wire tapping.

Blaze Threatens Arlington Radio

County and District Fire Departments Hold Field Flamse.

With a strong wind blowing and four acres of field fire raging in the vicinity of the radio towers at Arlington, all county fire departments, Falls Church, Alexandria and engines No. 13 and 16 of the District Fire Department responded to a call sent in fro mthe Naval Radio Station last night.

Engines from all directions raced to the scene, and with streams of water from pigs along Colmbia pike playing pon the flames the fire was soon nder control.

The fire attracted hundreds of automobiles along Columbia pike and county police were kept busy keeping traffic moving.

BAKER DEATH SCENE VIEWED BY EXPERT

Campbell Counsel Also Go Along as Hamilton Sees Spot of Tragedy.

BROTHER EXPLAINS GUN

The culvert near Arlington Cemetery, where Mary Baker's body was found, was inspected yesterday by defense counsel for Herbert M. Campbell and the defense ballistics expert, Albert H. Hamilton.

Charles Henry Smith and Lucien H. Vandoren, of defense counsel, accompanied Mr. Hamilton from the spot in the Ellipse where the girl was last seen alive to the culvert and then to the point of the car's abandonment near the intersection of Cemetery and Military roads.

Mr. Hamilton explained that he wished to view the route which the slayer probably followed before and after the killing in order to substantiate his belief that the murder occurred outside of the automobile. He declined to make known the result of his findings. They spent two hours in viewing the places where evidence was found.

Negatives Are Sought.

Mr. Smith yesterday directed a letter to Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, asking that negatives of the pictures made of the fatal bullets and those taken from Campbell's gun be presented in court as well as the pictures of the exhibits.

Defense witnesses will probably number 30, according to Mr. Smith, most of whom will be alibi witnesses. Mr. Smith will complete his list on Monday and present it to the court for subpena service.

A complete report of the findings of Mr. Hamilton will be submitted to Mr. Smith on Monday. It is unlikely, said the expert, that he will be able to examine the death car, which is now in the possession of the girl's father, the Rev. Thomas Baker, of Oak Grove, Va. Scarcity of time is given as his reason.

Brother Explains Gun.

Frank G. Campbell, brother of the accused, yesterday issued a statement explaining the manner in which the prisoner turned over the gun to authorities. "Herbert Campbell informs me," he said, "that when turning in the gun he merely requested that it be examined by competent experts, since it might have had something to do with Miss Baker's death.

"He explains this by saying that he had read in the newspapers that authorities were looking for a cheap Spanish gun, and since his was a cheap Spanish gun he turned it in for the purposes of examination."

Frank Campbell issued the statement as a result, he said, of the publication in a newspaper that Herbert Campbell stated, when turning in the gun, that it was the gun that killed Mary Baker.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

COLUMBUS, OHIO—One gets the rather definite impression as he knocks about in the company of Republicans that Mr. Henry Ford, the publicist, is getting to be just about as popular with them as is Mr. John J. Raskob.

And they have worked themselves into such a state over this latter gentleman, that with nightmarish perspiration breaking out on their foreheads they have evolved from the mild-mannered little man that he seems to be, the most grotesque figure imaginable.

As a result, one must take them seriously when they violently attack him. It is clearly apparent now that they are quite sincere when they shriek "Raskobism" at the top of their lungs, as Arthur Robinson in Indiana, and the greatly harrassed Robsion in Kentucky are doing.

ALMOST respected Republican authority tells me that he has ceased to think it funny when Mr. Raskob sends $500,000 into Pennsylvania as he did in '28 or when he contributes to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment with one hand and dry Democratic candidates with the other.

No, siree; it is not funny at all. It is part and parcel of a deeply laid plot. Mr. Raskob is out to wreck this country's protective tariff system so he can make his automobiles abroad and bring them in here—that's what he is up to. Wasn't his side kick, Mr. Sloan, foremost in the ranks of the Hawley-Smoot bill's critics?

* * * *

NOW here comes Mr. Ford preaching his low tariff heresy after all we've done for him.

It is surprising how bitter my Republican friends feel toward this man. It shows how quick they are to turn on one. Only a few years ago they were bragging about what a humanitarian he was, how he thumbed his nose at Wall street, how he led in lifting the wage level.

Now they say: "Bah, I don't believe he even makes all of those automobiles."

Frankly, I don't appreciate the full depth of their feeling because he still votes with them. That, of course, might well make the Democrats wonder what manner of man is he. But the Republicans want you not only to vote with them, but to believe in what they preach.

FUNDS OF FORMER KAISER BACK GERMAN FASCISTS, IS CHARGE

debut of the Fascists, who showed themselves equal to the occasion.

Strasser Outshout Hecklers.

Strasser, stocky, broad-shouldered and two fisted, with a bellowing voice, not only made himself heard above the din raised by the communists and other opponents of Fascism, but read from a carefully prepared manuscript a speech of pronounced agitatory value. The speech went in detail into the demands of the Hitlerites upon the Government's polices. These included:

Abrogation of the Versailles Treaty as "Immoral and Invalid."

Revision of the Young Plan before reform of Germany's finances. (This would involve a moratorium).

Restoration of universal military service with compulsory work for all citizens.

Efforts for peace, but resort to war if necessary "To achieve Germany's independence and social liberation.

Laws to make export of capital treasonable.

Elimination of Jews from German life.

Another point laid down was the purposal to "Square Accounts" with social Democrats by legal means when the Fascists should obtain the upper-hand politically, through dissolution of the Prussian Diet.

Finance Minister Speaks.

The cabinet's only speaker today was Dr. Hermann Dietrich, the finance minister, selected last spring to try to lead Germany through its business troubles. The government's reply to the national socialist's strictures on the personnel of the cabinet, involving a charge of treason against Wilhelm Groener, defense minister, was made solely by Chancellor Bruening's demonstratively walking out of the plenary hall.

By the time representatives of the government coalition had reached their turn to talk, interest in the Reichstag proceedings was on the wane. While there had been much tumult and scrimony up to this point, the remainder of the session passed quietly, with many vacant seats.

Night of Disorders.

It was agreed that the debate would be resumed Saturday forenoon and it was expected a vote then would be taken on some of the impending measures.

Today's session had been preceded by a night of disorders in the industrial section of Wedding, Berlin, where police had grappled with throngs in a series of encounters during which shots were fired by both sides. The Communists took part in this melee and charged that several of their number had been hit by police bullets which, the authorities stated, had been fired into the air to cower the disturbers. A heavy guard was thrown around the district, but at noon the confusion was resumed and police reserves had a busy session.

A hopeful sign of the day's proceedings was noted on the Boerse, where, with the apparent probability of the government loan going through, stocks rose 4 to 7 points.

different and not willing to recognize the facts," he said.

The people were entitled to a candid admission of the true facts and an expression of regret, he asserted, adding, "that is the least to be expected from our Government."

Lays Depression to Bankers.

He denounced as largely responsible for the present situation what he described as "unscrupulous bankers," who, he said, inflated and exploited the Nation's industries, filling them with "watered stock."

The committee on resolutions reported favorably on the recommendation of the executive council that the federation support "with certain amendments" a pending anti-injunction bill which is a substitute to Senate bill 2497. It proposes that the officers of the federation take whatever steps are necessary to bring about any revisions of the bill that might be deemed necessary.

The convention adopted the recommendation with only one dissenting vote, that of Andrew Furuseth, of the International Seamen's Union of America, who argued that the proposed legislation was not sufficiently strong to accomplish the desired end.

Aimed at "Yellow Dog" Contracts.

The so-called antiinjunction bill, which the executive council said "would give labor the same protection as is given now to organizations of employers," would regulate the power of the courts in issuing injunctions against labor organizations in industrial disputes. It is aimed chiefly at disputes arising out of the so-called yellow dog contract.

A resolution urging for the use of labor organization a more detailed record of the activities of members of Congress was not accepted at the suggestion of the resolutions committee. The committee indicated the executive council would perform the functions without convention action.

Delegate Furuseth told the convention such a record was essential because some congressmen in committee rooms were against labor, whereas on the floor of the House they appeared to have fairly good records. He specifically mentioned Representatives Kahn and Free, of California. Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, also was mentioned as among those who have been reported as having good labor records, whereas, several delegates said, his record was not one favorable to labor.

Mooney Pardon Urged Again.

The action of the past three conventions in urging pardons for Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, who are serving prison sentences in California, was reaffirmed today.

Representatives of the federation in the Pan-American Federation of Labor were instructed to oppose any move for American intervention in Cuban affairs.

A resolution was adopted favoring the manufacture of war munitions and naval vessels in Government arsenals and navy yards so "that the elimination of private profit will place this department of national defense beyond the baleful influence of those who seek to create sentiment for the production of war munitions so that they may make greater profits."

FRAUDS ARE DENIED BY WARDMAN FIRM

Alexandria Judge Declares He Will Make Ruling eBfore Monday.

ALL CHARGES ANSWERED

Charges of fraud and gross mismanagement lodged against the Wardman Mortgage & Discount Corporation in a receivership suit filed Tuesday by a committee of stockholders were heard and promptly taken under advisement yesterday by Judge William P. Woolls in Alexandria Corporation Court. He announced that a decision would be rendered "before Monday."

The answer, opposing the suit and listing detailed arguments to every charge, was filed shortly before the hearing by Daniel Thew Wright and Meredith M. Daubin, attorneys representing the corporation and the co-defendants, all of whom are listed as officers and directors whose alleged activities prompted the litigation. They include Harry Wardman, Thomas Bones, Henry J. Robb, J. Floyd Cissel, Robert N. Taylor, K. Parrish Wood, jr., and James D. Hobbs.

Harry F. Kennedy represented Charles D. Davis, Theodore S. Grape and Robert B. Smythe, who described themselves in their plea as a committee of stockholders representing a large group of 80 stockholders "whose holdings amount to more than $100,000 in actual cash."

Decision Before Monday.

Judge Woolls announced his intention to give a decision before Monday in view of the request of the complainants that, in addition to naming a suitable receiver at once, he issue an injunctino restraining officers of the corporation from holding a meeting Monday. They contended in the plea that the nijunction was sought because officers and directors intended to meet then for the specific purpose of dissolving the corporation. The court was asked also for "such further relief as the ourt may see fit."

The answer denied this allegation and stated that the corporation's officers and directors can not cause its dissolution, which can only be had by vote of the voting stockholders as required by the law of Virginia, where the corporation was chartered in January, 1924.

Denial was made to charges that Wardman, Bones and Hobbs managed or operated the corporation, contending that control was under "a board of nine managers, who were independent and not dominated or controlled by W[illegible]man, Bones and Hobbs, or any one else."

Other Allegations Denied.

The answer denied also that the three controlled, either directly or indirectly, most or all of the other six companies named in the petition including the Wardman Realty & Construction Co., the Wardman Construction Co., Wardman Realty & Finance Corporation, Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., Wardman Corporation and Wardman Administration Co.

The answer contended that the corporation was not insolvent and that it had in its treasry "as assets on September 4, 1930, 3,320 shares of the preferred 5 per cent stock of Wardman Realty & Constrction Co., Inc., an active going concern in the city of Washington, which owns the equities in the largest consolidated group of hotels, public buildings and apartment houses in the City of Washington, which equities have heretofore been appraised by independent and competent appraisers at a valuation of approximately $9,000,000; said preferred stock is redeemable by said corporation at the price of $100 per share."

The corporation in its answer admitted that it has ceased to do business which cessation has been occasioned by the general financial depression throughout the world."

The answer also contended that the complainants filed the bill only for themselves and denied that the total holdings of the complainants amounted to more than $100,000 in actual cash.

Danville Auditor Says City Faces Income Cut

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 17—The threat of reduced city income as result of a new real estate assessment with tax values falling because of the small stocks of goods held by merchants, is forecast by the city auditor who is preparing the city's budget for the next fiscal year.

The income will amount to about $1,000,000, it is estimated.

Popular Physician Dies in Shenandoah

Dr. D. L. Shaver Succumbs During Night at Home in Maurertown.

Special to The Washington Post.

Woodstock, Va., Oct. 17.—Dr. D. L. Shaver, one of the most widely known practicing physicians in Shenandoah County, died very suddenly at his Maurertown home shortly after midnight this morning. His death was due to heart failure and was not altogether unexpected though very sudden. From an autopay the time of his death is placed around midnight, though it did not become known until early this morning when his body was discovered by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. D. L. Shaver.

He had come in from making a call and had not gone to bed, but had laid down on the divan in the front room. Dr. Shaver was 69 years old and was born at the old Shaver homestead in sight of his present home. He graduated from the Baltimore Medical College and practiced in West Virginia for a number of years before coming to Shenandoah County. For the last 35 years he had built up a big practice and because of his interest in the poor people became almost an idol to them.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Maurertown Brethren Church by his pastor, the Rev. Edward L. Miller, Sunday at 2 o'clock. Dr. Shaver is survived by two sons, Duke L. Shaver, Maurertown, and Paul Shaver, Wyandotte, Mich., and two brothers. His wife died less than two years ago.

PARKWAY IS URGED IN CHAMBER SPEECH

STATE'S PART STRESSED

Special to The Washington Post.

Virginia Beach, Va., Oct. 17.—Speaking at the annual meeting of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce today, Hugh L. Kirby, representing the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, launched the movement in the interest of the plans of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to construct the George Washington Memorial Parkway as providede in the Capper-Cramton Act passed at the last session of Congress.

Mr. Kirby said in part:

"I have come to ask you to join in a request to Gov. John Garland Pollard to call an extra session of the Legislature of Virginia for the purpose f ratifying the Capper-Cramton Act and in this call he shall request it to appropriate sums of money that will comply with the requirements of the act to make definite and certain that we shall avail ourselves of the generous offer of the Federal Government to establish the George Washington Memorial Parkway from Mount Vernon to Great Falls on both sides of the Potomac River. No one today can estimate its tremendous value to the entire State of Virginia.

Washington's Plans Studied.

"On June 6, 1924, Congress passed an act creating the aNtional Capital Park and Planning Commission to study the original plans of Gen. Washington and to extend the same for the beautification of the city of Washington and its recreational environs, and, after a two-year search of Gen. Washington's plans and a study of the topography, it went back to Congress for increased authority, and, on April 30, 1926, the original bill was amended to meet the requirements. On January 17, 1930, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission held a meeting at the Continental Hall. At this meeting President Hoover's message was read, speeches delivered by Gov. Pollard and by Gov. Albert E. Ritchie of Maryland and the plans were showed and explained by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the commission.

"Both Gov. Pollard and Gov. Ritchie pledged the support of their respective States to this park program. The members of the Virginia Legislature attending the meeting were driven around to show them the lax condition of the Arlington County approaches to the city of Washington and then into Maryland to show them the beautiful approaches Maryland had into the city. Arlington County approaches appear to be common dump heaps and should make modest men blush when you consider that Arlington County is the actual front door of Virginia.

$7,500,000 State's Share.

"This bill among other things, created the George Washington Memorial Parkway, from Mount Vernon to Great Falls on both sides of the Potomac River, to cost $15,000, of which Congress authorized an expenditure of $7,000,000 and agreed that the States of Virginia and Maryland should jointly pay the other half, but that Congress would cause the Federal Treasury to advance all of the money and the States of Virginia and Maryland should have a period of eight years in which to pay back this money, without interest."

Mr. Kirby was accompanied on the trip by Capt. Chisolm, Engineer to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, who showed maps and pictures of how the shores of the Potomac River appear today and how they will look with the proposed George Washington Memorial Parkway has been completed.

Mr. Kirby stated that he is planning a tour which will take him into each of the 100 counties within the state where he will appeal to the chambers of commerce and other business organizations to support the movement which it is said, will do more for the State of Virginia than any other one thing that has been proposed in many years.

Few Hunters Go Forth As Rabbit Season Opens

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 17.—The dry weather made the opening of the rabbit, turkey and grouse season in this section an unfavorable one, and few hunters took the trouble to go into the woods. There is a noticeable scarcity of rabbits in the hunting section this year, the scarcity being blamed on the continued dry weather, which produced a high mortality in the litters. What are available now are not fit to eat, hunters say, for the same reason.

Hampshire County reports more than the usual supply of wild turkey this season. Ruffed grouse were reported abundant earlier, but observers say there has been heavy loss in these covies, also, because of the hot and dry weather.

LEE HURLS DENIALS OF G.O.P. CHARGES

Montgomery County Leader Cheered in Kensington and Silver Spring.

SPEAKS IN BETHESDA

Defending himself and the administratim of Montgomery County from attacks by Republican candidates, Maj. E. Brooke Lee, chairman of the Democratic State Campaign Committee, branded as "untrue" all of the Republican charges at a Democratic rally in Kensington yesterday afternoon and at rallies in Silver Spring and Bethesda last night.

Governor Ritchie and other state candidates as well as county candidates also spoke at the meetings. This was the first appearance of W. Preston Lane, who was chosen to run as Democratic candidate for Attorney General in pace of the late Thomas H. Robinson. Former Representative David J. Lewis candidate for the House of Representatives, and Miss Lavinia Engle, Democratic candidate for House of Delegates, also spoke. The meeting at Kensington was opened by Cornelius Clum, Kensington editor, who introduced Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, who presided.

The charges were made at Republican rallies in the county Wednesday by Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican candidate for re-election, and F. Barnard Welsh, Republican candidate for state's attorney.

Further Charges Aired.

"Needing a political villain," the major charged, "the Republican candidates have agreed to land their indefinite charges not upon the 30 county administration candidates selected by a majority of 13,500 Democrats in a direct primary, but upon me as one individual who is not running, in the obvious hope that unsupported attacks upon me would be good bait for my factional enemies who participated in the recent Democratic primary."

He asserted that the real estate industry in the suburban county has been taxed not only to pay its own local improvement costs, but in addition to pay the entire cost of the county's general improvement and county bond issue program and also to pay for the entire cost of increased teachers' salaries and of the county's new police force. This was done by front footage benefit assessments against new subdivisions. Because of new building, the subdivisions have provided a $3,000,000 increase in revenues. This sum equals the entire taxable basis of any two of the north county election districts, the major explained.

"A number of new untrue charges were thrown into the Montgomery County campaign by Barnard Welsh, Republican candidate for State's attorney, Frederick N. Zihlman, candidate for reelection for his fifteenth and sixteenth years in Congress and the Republican county meeting, Wednesday," Maj. Lee said.

Church Levy Mentioned.

"Welsh charges that the Presbyterian Church in Rockville was deceived in accepting a price for its property in its sale as a part of the new courthouse site with regard to the price which was to be paid to the Farmers Banking & Trust Co., and that the payment to the Farmers Banking & Trust Co. represented a gift from the county commissioners and courthouse building committee to Robert G. Hilton, Democratic candidate for the State senate and the president of the Farmers Banking & Trust Co.

"These charges can not be sustained with proof. The courthouse building committee told the pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the county's offer to the Farmers Banking & Trust Co., and that it had not then been accepted. The Presbyterian Church sold its property, an inside lot, for $32,000, which enabled that parish to build a modern and larger stone church on a good lot in the best residential part of Rockville, and have some money left. The old building was a much smaller brick building of antiquated design and plan," Maj. Lee stated.

"The majority of the directors voted to accept $50,000 for the bank property. Hilton did not vote as he was a voting member both of the courthouse building committee and president and director of the bank. The county raised its offer from $38,000 to $42,000, which was Albert M. Boulc's figure and was able to purchase the property at $45,000," Maj. Lee added. "Dr. Eugene Jones, of Kensington, candidate against Hilton in the recent Democratic primary election and a director and large stockholder of the bank, voted to ask $60,000 for this same piece of property," he said.

Bank Property Cited.

Maj. Lee declared that the condemnation law which had passed the House of Delegates in 1929 was killed in the State Senate by Senator Jones and caused a situation whereby county commissioners were forced to dicker for the property and pay higher prices than a condemnation jury would have given.

He charged that Mr. Welsh had valued the bank property from the book value which the bank carried in its statement and said that the property value had regularly been charged off the statements from the regular earnings of the bank. He said that the largest bank in Frederick is carried in the bank's statement at $1 but that should the property be condemned Frederick City would have to pay its fair replacement value.

"Welsh says he will prove the county administration 'corrupt.' Other than the above he has not yet even stated his bill of particulars. He has two weeks to do it in and can undoubtedly be expected to produce a lot of last-minute charges without proof of any kind," Maj. Lee said.

Zihlman Charge Denied.

Referring to Representative Zihlman's charges of vote buying and unfair assessments, Maj. Lee declared that he had never been called "dumb" before. He averred that buying votes in Montgomery County would be throwing money away, because there is no way to check up on the voter to see whether or not he delivered. The major declared that all property in Montgomery County was reassessed in 1928 and that the assessment books are open to the public. He said that there had developed hardly any objection to the assessment of the 80,000 parcels of land in the county and that 200 citizens had examined the assessments in Silver Spring and Takoma Park without finding anything wrong.

"This is known to Mr. Zihlman and the Republican County politicians, yet at this time, in order to get votes, they deliberately charge unfair and unequal assessments.

Maj. Lee was given an ovation by nearly 500 persons in the Kensington Armory when he entered a few minutes after the meeting began. W. Preston Lane, who was speaking, had to cease talking for several minutes, until the cheering and handclapping stopped. Every mention of Maj. Lee's name by the speakers evoked cheers and applause.

Ritchie Lauds War Heroes.

Gov. Ritchie said that he was proud of stand on the same platform [illegible] heroes of the World War—Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, who presided; [illegible] and Maj. Lee—all of whom served with the Maryland National Guard in the World War.

The governor declare dthat Republicans are trying to make the fourth term the issue in this campaign, but that the real issue is whether or not the progress shown in his ten years of service is to be continued or discredited. He said that the Maryland State government often had been called the best in the country. "Have you ever heard that of the Baltimore city government?" he said, amid laughter.

He outlined progress made in educational, public health and highway fields in the course of his administration and pointed out that Montgomery County also had been acclaimed one of the best, if not the best, governed counties in the State, and asked the voters to elect county Democratic candidates so that his task at Annapolis would be easier, "because I'm going to win this job this time," he stated, while the gathering cheered.

Lewis Also Speaks.

Maj. Lane said that he had been injected into the campaign too recently to have been able to study the political situation and promised that he would later issue statements on his personal viewsñ He urged that the voters give to him the votes that they would have cost for Attorney General Robinson had he lived in order that he might carry on his work.

Former Representative Lewis declared that a change is needed in the National administration, and pledged himself to devotte all of his time to Congres sand not to seeek additional emoluments from law practice or business enterprises.

Miss Lavinia Engle, Democratic candidate for House of Delegates, urged Gov. Ritchie's reelection in order that the reforms for which organized women have fought the past etn years, can be carried out.

Pair Eludes Posse In Store Robbery

Virginians Use Bloodhounds in Hot Pursuit Over Two Counties.

Palmyra, Va., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Two men sought in connection with a store robbery in Orange tonight had apparently eluded a posse of 75 men who followed them across two counties yesterday and today. Bloodhounds from a State farm lost the trail on a forest road 3 miles from Strathmore after leading the posse through the day, once to within view of the fugitives.

Early this morning they were seen crossing the James River into Fluvanna County, but pursuers withheld their fire. The hounds picked up the scent again, but lost it when fresh wagon tracks were discovered that led to the house of a Negro, who denied having seen the men.

Two men taken into custody yesterday in connection with the robbery gave their names as Terrell Spegel, 20, and J. G. Estes, 17, both of Lynchburg. They were held at the State farm in Goochland County.

HOUSE QUIZ OF REDS MAY TOUCH MEXICO

Fish Discloses Possibility of Plan; Envoy Tellez Pledges His Aid.

LABOR LEADERS LAUDED

(Associated Press.)

The possibility that a group of the House Communist investigating committee may visit Mexico to inquire into alleged Soviet propaganda directed at the United States by agents in that country was discussed yesterday by Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, committee chairman.

Mr. Fish said that he had been assured by Ambassador Tellez, of Mexico, of the close cooperation of the Mexican government in watching activities of Communists and added that he expected that the documents reported seized in that country would be turned over to his committee.

If a subcommittee makes the trip to Mexico City, he said, it probably would sail from New Orleans about November 20, after the full group completes hearings in several Southern States. Mr. Fish said that he did not plan to make the trip.

The New Yorker said that the committee was considering holding hearings in Cleveland, Buffalo and Boston between November 5 and 8. After a session in Washington November 10, the group will go to Chattanooga, Atlanta, Birmingham, New Orleans, and possibly Jacksonville.

State Department Silent.

Both the Mexican Ambassador and the State Department yesterday said that they had no information regarding the reported seizure of the documents in Mexico.

Asked if the authority granted to the committee by the House permitted it to go into foreign countries, Mr. Fish said that it did. Under the resolution creating the committee it could subpoena any person, he contended.

Because of certain actions of the State Department, he said, the possibility of calling Secretary Stimson had been considered. However, he added, the committee had yet to complete its inquiry into these actions. He did not reveal to what actions he referred.

Chairman Fish returned to Washington yesterday from hearings on Communist activities on the West Coast. He said that it was apparent that the "principles advocated by the Communists in the Far West are identical to those in the Eastern industrial centers, and are directed by the Third International at Moscow."

"The activities of the Communists," he continued, "have been increasing in the past few years on the Pacific Coast, as they are taking advantage of the business depression and unemployment situation to spread their propaganda and revolutionary doctrines."

Wheat Selling Mentioned.

Mr. Fish said that during the committee's inquiry into the short selling of wheat by the Soviet government at Chicago, "it was disclosed by the three brokerage houses in New York which handled the transactions that no collateral or securities of any kind were required from the All Russian Textile Syndicate which ordered the sales.

"The action of the Chicago Board of Trade," he said, "in prohibiting the short selling of a foreign government will take care of this situation to a large degree if it is properly enforced."

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, was praised by Mr. Fish for his presentation of "the serious efforts made by the Communists to disrupt the coal-mining industry in America."

Praising William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a message congratulating him on his reelection, Mr. Fish said that the organization under Mr. Green's leadership "has been the front line of defense in America against the insidious and revolutionary activities and propaganda of the Communists."

Presbytery Urged To Keep 1932 Plan

WashingtonUnit Rescinded Its Action in Regard to General Assembly.

Washington Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church has rescinded its action taken last spring with regard to inviting the General Assembly of that church to hold its 1932 session here during the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration. A committee of five, of which Dr. John C. Palmer is chairman, will again canvass the situation with regard to extending this invitation and report to the next session of Presbytery, which will meet the first Monday in November at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Newton P. Patterson, associate minister of the Church of the Covenant, revived the matter in a stirring address, in which he spoke of his recent visit to the moderator of the General Assembly, Dr. Kerr, at Pittsburgh, who expressed a wish that the matter would be reconsidered and the invitation extended.

Several obstacles, it is said, are in the way, chief of which is that it violates a rule of the General Assembly that the body shall meet in rotation in one of the five grand divisions of the country into which the church has been divided.

The 1932 session belongs to California, and it is said that the Presbyteries of that part of the country are insistent upon their rights not being invaded. This rule can be set aside, however, for an extraordinary occasion, and that is what the bicentennial is.

Presbytery also ratified the merger of the Church of the Covenant and the historic old First Presbyterian Church, and the service tomorrow morning will mark the formal beginning of the new church. As has been numerous times stated, this church will eventually become the National Presbyterian Church.

One of the features of the services tomorrow morning will be an address by Dr. Charles Wood, former pastor of the Covenant, who is the guiding spirit behind the National Church movement. Dr. Wood is the custodian of a very large trust fund which will be used, with other moneys, to build the great cathedral which the Presbyterians throughout the country are planning to erect here.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SPEAKER IS HEARD

James G. Rowell, Lecturer, Urges Right Thinking on Audience.

HABIT IS HELD AS VITAL

A lecture on "Christian Science: The Restoration of Pure Christianity" was delivered recently in Fourth Church of Christ, Scienaist, by James G. Rowell, C. S., of Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Rowell is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Charles P. Rouse, First Reader of Fourth Church, under whose auspices the lecture was given.

The lecturer said in part:

"This is a busy world. To keep busy doing some right-thing-to-do is just as vital to us as is health—indeed, it is a part of what we call health to be busy. Sometimes error deceives men into believing that there is lack of employment. This is a contagious, mesmeric condition of thought which must be recognized as such and met on this basis. We can no more maintain individual employment while thinking and talking unemployment than we can maintain individual health while talking and fearing disease.

Right Thinking Urged.

"Sometimes a man who has been busy in affairs seems to slip out, so to speak, and finds himself out of a job. As he walks the streets, it seems to him that the world is streaming by him; that everyone has a vital place in the world's scheme of business, everyone except himself. If this man knows something of his true selfhood, he will face this lie of unemployment by doing something. He will get very busy thinking right thoughts about the situation. He will refuse to accept a condition which marks him as a victim of an epidemic of unemployment. He will realize that he is, as God's idea, at all times about his Father's business, and he will prove it in alert, loving, honest and fearless endeavor.

"He will find a way of doing something for somebody. Indeed, I once knew a carpenter who, when he seemed to be 'out of a job' sked his friends and neighbors for the privilege of doing some helpful thing about their houses. This he did without pay, of course, gratefully accepting the opportunity to express right activity and love to his neighbor. In work is found one practical human approximation of the demand of divine love. 'Love thy neighbor as thyself.'

A Law of God.

"As each one of us keeps busily at work we find that our services supply our brother's needs while his work is meeting our own. Very often my carpenter friend would have some new contract offered him before he had finished his first 'thank you' job, but he never failed to complete later his love offering, which had helped him to realize greater usefulness.

"Without knowing it, perhaps, he had touched a law of God, the law which maintains every one of God's ideas in continuous right activity. To realize that each one of us is active under a law of God, a law of divine principle, love, will adjust our circumstances by putting us in work and keeping us busy. No one of us can shirk his moral responsibility, to know the truth about work and to be rightfully employed himself, without suffering for it sooner or later."

BUILDING CONTRACT IS LET FOR CHURCH

Ground Will Be Broken Soon for Metropolitan Edifice.

$270,000 FOR FIRST UNIT

Within ten days ground will be broken for the new Metropolitan Methodist Church, to be built on a site near the American University, at Nebraska and New Mexico avenues. The contract for the first unit of a group of buildings was let yesterday to Stoffeitt & Tillotson, engineers and contractors, of Philadelphia.

It is the intention of Dr. James Shera Montgomery, the pastor, and his official board to lay the corner stone on December 1. The congregation expects to occupy the church next October. The first unit, known as the sanctuary, will be a Gothic building, costing $270,000. It will be followed by other buildings in the near future.

The last service in the historic old edifice on John Marshall place will take place Sunday, December 28, and after that the congregation will worship in Hurst Hall at American University. With it will also worship the University Heights Methodist congregation, which has completed a merger with the Metropolitan. The University Heights congregation has been worshiping in the Commnity House at Wesley Heights. Its pastor, the Rev. Philip Edwards goes to Ohio Wesleyan University to take a position with the president of that institution.

Plans for the new church were approved by the board of architects of the Methodist Church at Philadelphia and ten bids were submitted by contractors.

Metropolitan is the first national church erected in Washington. It was sanctioned formally by the General Conference of the Methodist Church in 1852. One of its most distinguished pastors was the celebrated Dr. J. H. Newman, who became a bishop. Presidents Grant and Hayes had pews there, and Vice President Fairbanks also worshiped there. It was the first church in Washington to have chimes.

MISSIONARY NAMED BY DISCIPLES' UNIT

Indianapolis Man Is Chosen President in Annual Convention.

PENSION NEED STRESSED

to be voted upon at today's session at the Auditorium.

No indication of the nature of this resolution was available last night. It is known that the Disciples of Christ are in general favor of "temperance," but whether their definition of temperance concurs with that of the wets or of the drys is a question which will not be answered definitely until the resolution has been presented, argued about and voted upon today.

Officess of the Disciples point out, incidentally, that while the convention has a board of temperance and social welfare to which is assigned the task of drawing up the resolution, the question of prohibition is considered of secondary importance to the brotherhood, the primary purpose of the convention being to discuss the questions of missions and the ministerial pension fund.

Education will be the theme of today's session. E. M. Waits, president of the Texas Christian University, will talk on the "Educational Antecedents of Pentecost." Rodney L. McQuarry is slated to discuss "The Educational Implications of Pentecost," while H. O. Pritchard, general secretary of the convention board of education, will speak on "Present Tendencies in Higher Education."

Two addresses concerning Washington's new National City Christian Church also are on the program. Mrs. R. S. Latimer will take for her topic "The Prayer Chapel," while J. J. Castleberry, pastor of Walnut Hills Church, Cincinnati, will discuss "The Witness of the Disciples at the Nation's Capital."

During the afternoon session the missionary group amended its constitution to provide a four-year tenure of office instead of one year as in the past. The society also elected 40 new members to its board of managers, total membership of which is 120.

Two sessions were held last night. Cleveland Kleihauer, vice president of the international convention, presided at the auditorium, where Dr. A. E. Cory, of Indianapolis, director of the organization's pension fund, was the principal speaker. Graham Frank, permanent secretary of the convention, was the chief speaker at the other session at Constitution Hall, at which John H. Wood, president of the convention board of education, presided.

Drive Starts November 9.

Both of these speakers featured the disciples' ministry pension fund in their addresses, and stressed the importance of thorough cooperation in the coming campaign which starts November 9 to raise a reserve pension fund of $8,000,000.

"The new pension system is not for ministers, but for the ministry," Dr. Cory pointed out. "The world is in need of a strong consecrated ministry, so that Christianity may continue its civilizing processes. We need our ministry to fight the forces of evil. And, above all, we need our ministry to advance God's kingdom on earth.

"Millions of dollars were invested in the stock markets of the country from purely selfish motives. The brotherhood's pension movement now challenges all men and women to make a constructive Christian investment for the gospel of Christ."

"This movement among the Disciples of Christ for an adequate pension system is a sign that we as a religious people are fully awake to the increasing demands made upon our ministry. We must measure up to our responsibilities and let the Christian world know that our people desire to retain in our pulpits a ministry forever free from old-age worries, which detract from wholehearted service.

"The ministry of the Gospel is not a business, not a profession. It is a divine calling. No man ever should enter a pulpit except under such an urge as the Apostle Paul confessed when he cried out, 'Woe unto me if I preach not the Gospel!' As the ministry dares not preach for money, no single minister acting alone can build up a competence for old age or for his family's support if he be taken away.

Ministers' Sacrifice Cited.

"Herein we find the pension fund to be as holy a thing as the emblems on the communion table. A minister's glory is his sacrifice. In order that he may fulfill the terms of his sacrifice there must be an honorable provisions for his retirement, lest his glory become the churches' snare."

Mr. Graham attacked the charges alleging decadence of the church and diminishing ability and influence of the ministry.

"I know," he said in part, "that the preacher of today is expected to do many things. He is expected to be a good organizer, a financial wizard, a social Lord Chesterfield, a political prophet and propagandist, and so on ad infinitum.

"But it is certainly not the most thoughtful people of his congregation who expect him to be such a jack-of-all-trades, and it certainly is not the head of the church. The tragedy of the situation lies not in the fact that some church members expect all these things of their minister, but that the preacher may come to expect these things of himself.

"Let us be accessible and helpful friends of our people. Let us comfort them in their sorrows, seek to save them from their sins, be sharers with them in all their joys. Let us be citizens of our communities and of the world. Let us be interested in all that has to do with the lives of our fellow men.

Duties as Preacher Stressed.

"I am not advocating," Mr. Frank continued, "that the preacher should be a recluse, nor that he should be so remote and pedantic as to be 'invisible six days of the week and incomprehensible on the seventh.' Nor am I advocating that he should heed the oft-heard admonition to keep out of politics and business and preach the gospel.' But I am trying to say that the preacher should always and first of all be a preacher."

Of the pension fund, Mr. Frank said in part:

"It will be seen with unmistakable clearness that the inauguration of the pension fund is the church's mandate for the ministry to return to its calling."

A delegation representing the international convention and also the world convention of the Disciples of Christ, which will begin tomorrow, laid a wreath upon the tomb of the Unknown Soldier yesterday. In addition to representatives of various sections of the United States, there were present delegates from Australia, England, New Zealand, Porto Rico, Canada and Japan.

The pulpits of 26 churches of all denominations in Washington will be filled tomorrow by visiting preachers attending the convention.

PERKINS PROMOTED IN BOY SCOUT RANKS

Master of Troop 44 Becomes Deputy Commissioner in District.

CHURCHES AID IN WORK

An arm of the church here in Washington that seldom gets any credit for the work it is doing is the Boy Scouts. Figures tell how important this arm is. Of the 84 troops in Washington, 58 of them are identified with churches and hold their meetings in churches.

This is not a matter that is peculiar to Washington alone. It ranges all over America, and embraces all religious denominations. In many cities the Catholics have scout organizations, and I am informed that one of the National officers of the movement is a member of that communion.

Primarily the scout movement is not a church institution, but as it is a boys' movement, and its aim is to inculcate good morals and right living and a love of nature and of mankind in the youth of the land, its higher moral teachings are so closely identified with those of the church that it properly belongs under the aegis of that institution.

Influence of Church Seen.

Right at this particular moment, when the organization of the District Council is undergoing a change, and promotions are being made from the ranks of the scoutmasters, the influence of the church in the movement is accentuated. One of these promotions comes to Mr. E. M. Perkins, scoutmaster of Troop 44, which is the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church troop.

Mr. Perkins becomes deputy commissioner in charge of the fourth division, which covers that area of the city bounded by M street to Maryland in the northeast, North Capitol to Connecticut avenue and Rock Creek. In it are 31 troops.

Dr. John C. Palmer, minister of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, is chairman of the troop committee of his church.

Eight years ago this coming December Mr. Perkins took charge of Troop 44, and reorganized it in 1923. Since then it has made a rather enviable record.

In the matter of winning prizes it has had a consistent record of success. In 1924, when eight medals were awarded to troops in the city, four of them went to Troop 44. For seven years on personal inspection by division officers it was given a rating of 100 per cent. In field meets it has won numerous honors, and its room is full of trophies that came as the result of the skill and prowess of its members.

Pioneer in Sea Scouting.

One of its finest traditions is that it was the pioneer in sea scouting. From the proceeds of two plays it gave it bought a 35-foot cabin cruiser, which it named for Col. Mattice, the deputy commissioner of that day. On this boat they spent many happy days learning things. This experience was the preliminary training for those members who eventually went into the Navy and Coast Guard service. Troop 44 has four boys in line for eagle scouts.

Troop 44 believes in doing things. Having no quarters, it was given the use of a basement room under the Sunday school building. This proved to be damp, and when rain fell it was flooded. What did these youngsters do but waterproof it and make it habitable. Then in the course of the years they have added improvement after improvement to the room, until now it is said to be almost without a rival here.

Doing the work themselves, the boys have built an attractive fireplace; and partitioning off the room into smaller rooms, one for each patrol, they have decorated those rooms to represent the varied scouting experiences they engage in. The money for this work was secured by the collection and sale of old magazines.

Scoutmasters are active members of the churches to which their troops are allied. In some churches they are officers and teachers in the Sunday schools, or hold other offices that are open to laymen. They are men of high character. Mr. Harold McTate is the new scoutmaster of Troop 44.

Troop 44 is typical of what the Boy Scout movement generally is. A Boy Scout is usually a fine, manly, upright, unselfish, and self-sustaining chap.—D. R. B.

Prof. Ward to Preach In Howard U. Chapel

Ilda Methodist Church Holding 10-Day Revival

Ilda Methodist Church, in Fairfax County, began a revival Thursday evening, which will continue for ten days. The Rev. W. H. Gray is doing the preaching.

"These meetings will do your soul good," he writes the Church Page. "Come and receive a blessing." This broad invitation is passed on to the whole community.

ATTENDANCE GAINS AT MENS' SERVICES

Calvary Methodist's Club Plan Causes Capacity Congregations.

OTHERS MAY ADOPT IDEA

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

A movement has started at Calvary Methodist church, Columbia Road near Fifteenth street northwest, which promises to solve the question of how to revive the dying Sunday night service. This question is so vital to the life of city churches that the Church Page has more than once referred to it and had special articles about different phases of it.

Two weeks ago the Men's Club of Calvary took over the Sunday evening service, and throughout the coming conference year—the Methodist people have their own calendar—they will be wholly in charge of it.

Their president, Mr. L. J. Johnston, reports that on the first Sunday evening they conducted the service the attendance increased about fifty, and on the second Sunday another increase of fifty was noted. Of course, the men do not hope to have an increase of fifty communicants each Sunday, but they do hope so to popularize the service that the church auditorium will be filled each Sunday night.

Men Conduct Service

Every item of the service is in the hands of the men. In the pulpit with the minister, Dr. Mark Depp, are three laymen. One of them reads the scripture lessons, a second offers the prayers and the third makes the announcements. Dr. Depp preaches a short sermon, and stresses the fact that these sermons will be brief. They have another striking characteristic: they are full of meat.

At the opening of the service Dr. H. M. Dudley, one of the members of the Men's Club, conducts a fifteen-minute song service, at which old-time Methodist hymns are sung by the congregation. Those hymns which have a swing and something of a martial air are mostly used, and it has been noticed that this one feature of the service has proved most winning in drawing the people out. The program of songs changes every Sunday night, but the tone of the service is ever the same.

Mr. Johnston has general charge of this service, aided and abetted by a splendid committee composed of the following gentlemen: Dr. A. C. Christie, Mr. Edwin Dice, Mr. H. W. Kitzmiller, Mr. Edward M. Hall, Mr. Henry Rhodes, Mr Roy H. Wolfe, Mr. William B. Wells, Dr. H. M. Dudley, Mr R. M Gerhardt, Mr Harley V. Speilman, Mr. O. E. Carlton and Mr. L. A. Bageant Assistants to Minister.

Assisting the minister tomorrow evening will be the following laymen: Judge Joseph W. Thompson, Mr. Edwin Dice and Mr. J. L. Nuber.

It is possible that other churches in Washington are adopting a plan similar to this. Washington Heights Presbyterian Church rather nibbles at it during the month of November, which is loyalty month in that church. On the last Sunday evening in the month the Men's Club will have entire charge of the service, even to the sermon. The only thing the men will not do is to pronounce the benediction, and, as that is apostolic and a purely ministerial function, it will be the minister's sole appearance in the service.

This Men's Club, under direction of Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, its president, will arrange an unusual program, and as it comes at the end of loyalty month, and will be rather in competition with the service the women of the church are to give, it is their hope to have every seat in the church filled that night.

The Church Page is so much interested in this matter that it would like to hear from all other churches where the laymen are taking over the evening services. "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" was spoken not alone of the Saviour.

SENTENCE SERMONS

By DR. ANDREW REID BIRD
(Minister of the Church of the Pilgrims).

BELIEVE THE GOOD NEWS.

WHEN we track the good news of Jesus down the centuries of time, we find it to be "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." An evil heart becomes a good heart when it receives the ray of faith in Christ's good news.

"Can peach renew lost bloom,
Or violet lost perfume,
Or sullied snow turn white as overnight?
Man can not compass it, yet never fear:
The leper Naaman
Shows what God will and can."

There is evil all about us. With strange perversity we sometimes use the mouth to take in that which injures the body, and use the eyes to take in from the printed page that which soils the mind and stifles the soul. But, thank God, we can also take in Jesus. We can lift the eyes of our struggling souls to Him who loved us and gave Himself for us, who rose victorious over sin and death, who, as soon as we ask Him, will come and reside in our hearts, flooding them with nobility, peace and joy, and actually reproducing Himself in the glad, constructive conduct of our lives.

Come Lord Jesus, and live in me,
And my dark life shall shine for Thee.

DISCIPLES SENT OUT BY DR. RASMUSSEN

Luther Place Memorial Church Renews Old Biblical Custom.

BIG GROWTH RECORDED

What is this new thing that has burst on the community from Luther Place Memorial Church? There seems to be a rattling of dry bones, a breaking of the crust of the earth, the emergence from the old shell of a chrysalis of brilliant and dazzling beauty.

Jesus sent his disciples out two and two, to carry the Gospel message. That is not new, but many of the churches have forgotten it, or neglected the doing of it. But Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, the new minister at Luther Place, is reviving it.

Instead of holding the old-fashioned prayer service, which was seldom attended by those who need it most, there will be a quiet half hour of consecration, and then those who attend will be sent out by the pastor, two and two, to go throughout the city to tell the absent members of the church of the things that are taking place at Luther Place in which they are interested.

Problems of Downtown Church.

"The downtown church with a city-wide membership has peculiar problems that a community church does not have; and unless we face up to those problems as we labor in downtown churches, many of our opportunities for good in the community are lost," said Dr. Rasmussen, in discussing his program yesterday. "In a neighborhood church its members meet one another at the citizen association meetings, at the Parent-Teacher sessions, at the corner drug-store, at the neighborhood grocery, and elsewhere. But in a downtown, city-wide church, they usually meet only under the roof of the church. So it is of the utmost importance that the lines of communication between the church and its scattered membership be kept open, and we hope to see this done in fine shape by our new program of going out to those who may not be able to come to us."

New Goal Is Seen.

"With the way that men and women continue to come forward to become members of Luther Place circumstances seem to be setting a new goal for the congregation," said a member of the council yesterday. "It begins to look to those who are following the situation as if the Christmas gift of the congregation will be a doubled membership in nine months. If the enlistments for service come in only 75 per cent as rapidly as they did during July and September, Christmas will be celebrated with a membership doubled over that of April 1. And this without counting restorations or catechumens."

When the council of the church was formulating its three-year program, which began with the calling of Dr. Rasmussen, it figured that if the membership could be doubled in three years that would constitute a remarkable record. A doubled membership in nine months was never dreamed of even by the prize optimist of the congregation.

Bank Injunction Hearing Started

District Supreme Court Hears Fight Against Merger Plans.

Hearing on the petition for injunction to restrain the merger of the Merchants Bank & Trust Co. and the Federal-American National Bank was begun yesterday in District Supreme Court before Justice Joseph W. Cox.

The suit was brought by Joseph W. McReynolds, local automobile dealer, who asked that the merger be stopped until a $50,000 claim, which he alleges the trust company holds against him, and which it is attempting to make him pay, is dropped. The petitioner charged that several months ago he took over two notes totaling $125,000, which were represented by Peter A. Drury, chairman of the trust company's directorate, as having been made by a responsible person. Mr. McReynolds alleges that Mr. Drury knew that the maker of the notes was financially irresponsible. Nevertheless, Mr. McReynolds states, the bank advanced him $50,000 on the two notes as security.

The trust company, through Attorneys Ellis and Ferguson, said that the Federal-American National Bank, under the provisions of the combined pact, will assume all liabilities of the trust company and also declared that the court may not enjoin the negotiation of the notes because they are now overdue, and the plaintiff, while admitting he received money from the company, has made no effort to repay it. Attorney George A. Berry appears for the petitioners.

COMMUNISTS MUST BE SUPPRESSED.

New York's most recent communistic riot may have considerable influence in determining the public attitude toward such demonstrations. In New York the prevailing opinion seems to be that the Communists have been allowed to go about as far as tolerance permits. They have shown no consideration for the rights of others, no regard for the law, but only a disposition to make trouble wherever possible.

The rioting this week centered about New York City Hall. A delegation of Communists interrupted a meeting of the Board of Estimates and insulted Mayor Walker. They were given opportunity to present their complaints in an orderly manner, but that is not the way of the Communists. Disorder, rioting and violence is part of their program. They have no sense of fair play. Their purpose is not improvement of conditions by lawful methods, but the overthrow of government and all that government stands for.

Under ordinary conditions the Communist cause makes no appeal to Americans. It has no appeal for the great body of citizens under any conditions, but in times of depression many unemployed are drawn into its folds by the distress of their situation. Cities that allow communism to flourish may, therefore, expect riots, violence and subversive plots which tend to aggravate unemployment and multiply the misfortunes of the unemployed. Communist agitation has no place in America, and it ought to be stamped out wherever it appears.

Insofar as aliens are responsible for these riots they should be given attention by the immigration authorities. No Communist who is secretly working for the overthrow of the Government and for the promotion of disturbances among the working class is worthy of American hospitality. Much of the agitation that is being fomented in the larger cities might be avoided if the deportation laws were more strictly enforced.

As for Communists who are American citizens they must learn to abide by the law or suffer the consequences. The Constitution provides every one a means of registering his dissatisfaction with conditions as they exist. There is no excuse for insulting officials and rioting. Those who persist in doing so ought to be made to feel the weight of the law.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

The statistics on marriage and divorce issued by the Department of Commerce can not be regarded as an accurate index to the domestic tranquillity existing in the various States and the District of Columbia. The percentage of successful marriages probably varies only slightly in different parts of the country, but divorce records run from one extreme in South Carolina, where divorce is unobtainable, to the opposite extreme in Nevada, where divorce can be had for the asking. This survey is interesting chiefly because it reveals the absurdity of the American system of dealing with the subject.

Washington is given credit for the lowest divorce rate of any city during 1929. This does not necessarily mean that marriage is any more successful here. It may mean that people who find life together intolerable here go elsewhere for a divorce, or merely separate without resorting to the courts.

One other fact detracts from the statistically excellent record of Washington. The divorce rate for the country as a whole increased 2.8 per cent during 1929, while the increase in the District was 13.9 per cent, not counting the annulments. This suggests greater leniency in the courts, since the law has remained the same.

In Washington there was only 1 divorce for every 49 marriages, while Nevada divorced 1 couple for every 2.3 couples married, in spite of a high marriage rate. Of course, this does not indicate low standards of morality or a difference in temperament in the people in Nevada, but merely that the divorce law of that State attracts thousands of nonresidents who are unhappily married. The same thing is true of the marriage rate. Nevada and Arizona marry hundreds of couples who find the California statute too exacting. Washington has a high marriage rate, not because the residents are more domestically inclined than those of other cities, but because many couples consider it romantic to be married in the National Capital.

The Department of Commerce figures are an inescapable argument for uniform marriage and divorce laws. The ease of travel has made it impossible for any State to make its laws effective if they are radically different from those of neighboring States. With minor variations the problems of marriage and divorce are the same throughout the country. These problems cry out for solution through the medium of uniform laws. It is difficult to understand why the States representing the extremes continue to make marriage mills and divorce colonies possible.

REACTIONARY ECONOMISTS.

When John W. Barton, Minneapolis banker, told the American Bankers Association that he was "very much inclined to the opinion that our standard of living is too high," he drew down a storm of criticism. Lord Inchcape, British merchant and shipping peer, made a similar but more sweeping statement before the imperial conference the other day, however, and evoked prolonged applause. The fundamental divergence between British and American economic reasoning is graphically illustrated in these two incidents. Possibly they offer a suggestion as to why Britain has been in the economic doldrums for years while the American depression is only a passing phenomenon.

Mr. Barton contended that "in this age of fast and efficient methods of transportation and communication all nations are too near together successfully to maintain, for an appreciable length of time, any material difference in the standards of living." Subsequently, President Hoover, in a speech which was the highlight of the bankers' convention, pointed out that the high standard of living is principally responsible for the great prosperity that has visited the United States. The American people constitute a market with which production finds it difficult to keep pace. The best insurance for continued prosperity is the further cultivation of the vast internal market—further elevation of the standard of living.

Lord Inchcape is of the opinion that the British nations will have to reduce their national expenditures; salaries and wages will have to come down, and hours of labor must be increased if an economic catastrophe is to be averted. In America this is looked upon as reactionary doctrine. If divisions of government reduce their expenditures, and salaries and wages are reduced, the purchasing power of the public is lessened. The lengthening of working hours results in a decrease of "consuming hours."

It is true that the European economic situation differs from the American. None of the nations of Europe possesses internal markets of any appreciable size. European industry has not generally adopted automatic machinery to increase the efficiency of the individual workman. But despite these and other differences, the laws of economics apply in Europe no less than they do in America. Europe will not equal America in prosperity until she develops her internal markets and adopts automatic machinery on a comprehensive scale. Great Britain will not become as prosperous as the United States until she raises her standard of living to the American level. Britain will never get anywhere until the reactionaries, of whom Lord Inchcape is a shining example, surrender their economic leadership to others better versed in the new economics.

TRAFFIC IN FIREARMS.

The crime wave is intensified by the ease with which firearms can be obtained. Discussing this matter before the association of grand jurors recently, Edward P. Mulrooney, Police Commissioner of New York, said:

> Last year 53 per cent of the homicides in New York City were caused by gunshot wounds. So far this year the percentage is around 60. Yet the manufacture of revolvers and machine guns goes on mounting. During this year one New York merchant has sold 785 machine guns, mostly of the Thompson type. When he checked up on the names on his sales list he found most of them to be fictitious. In one Mid Western city where the police captured 30 machine guns, the men from whom they seized them in almost every case said that they had bought the guns in New York.
> During the recent tong war, one group of Chinese bought 300 revolvers in a neighboring State. If these guns were to have been shipped to some foreign country to aid an insurrection I suppose the Government would have taken action to prevent the shipment. But they were for use in our own country, possibly against our own citizens, and the Government did nothing.

Commissioner Mulrooney believes that Federal restrictions must be imposed upon the manufacture and transportation of firearms if society is to defend itself.

The National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, after seven years' consideration and the writing of three drafts last August completed a uniform firearms bill, recommending that it be introduced in State Legislatures for early action. Its important provisions are:

> No person who has ever been convicted in this State or elsewhere of a crime of violence shall own a pistol, revolver or automatic, or have one in his possession or under his control.
> No person shall carry a pistol, revolver or automatic in any vehicle or concealed on or about his person, except in his place of abode or fixed place of business, without a license therefor.
> The judge of a court of record, the chief of police of a municipality or the sheriff of a county may upon the application of any person issue a license to such a person to carry a pistol, &c., in his vehicle or concealed on or about his person within this State for not more than one year from date of issue if it appears that the applicant has good reason to fear injury to his person or property or has any other proper reason for carrying the arm, and that he is a suitable person to be so licensed.

The plan is subject to criticism on the score that frequently when provision is made to permit licensed pistol-toting, the permits find their way into the possession of shady characters and criminals. On the other hand, so long as criminals succeed in arming themselves, reputable citizens should be permitted to possess arms for self-defense.

Congress should regulate and restrict the interstate traffic in firearms. Without such regulation the States are powerless to keep firearms away from criminals.

NAVY AND MERCHANT MARINE.

The American merchant marine essentially becomes a part of the Navy in times of war, yet in times of peace there is no adequate connecting link between them. With the Navy at minimum strength, it must be supplemented by the merchant marine to give the United States national security. A closer working relationship between them is to be highly desired. How shall it be brought about?

Admiral J. K. Robison, retired, would have officers of American merchant ships enrolled in the naval reserve. "If our merchant fleet officers were enrolled in the naval reserve," he said, "they would automatically be part of the Navy personnel, and the Navy Department, by paying part of the salaries of those men, would be an aid to ship operators in holding down the cost of operating our merchant marine, an important factor in assuring to the United States a place in the world's shipping field."

Certain officers of merchant vessels are eligible to enter the merchant marine branch of the naval reserve, but Congress has appropriated no funds with which they may be compensated, and, as a result, only about one-fifth of the merchant vessel operators have been enrolled.

The Government has adopted a policy of fostering a large merchant marine to carry American commerce overseas. Few other factors are more important in the development of industry and commerce than a strong fleet of American ships. Because of the higher cost of building and operating American vessels the Government offers fleet owners valuable mail contracts and extended loans. Why should not the Government take another step by encouraging enrollment of merchant marine officers in the naval reserve? The compensation such officers would receive from the Navy would enable American shipping concerns to compete with foreign lines without undermining the American scale of salaries and living.

The greatest advantages of this plan lie, however, in the coordination of the Navy and the merchant marine. Regardless of the strength of the Navy, says Admiral Robison, it is powerless in time of war unless a strong merchant fleet is prepared to work with it. During the last war, he added, 95 per cent of the important work done by the Navy was carried out by the men who had served on merchant ships in peace time. Enlistment of all merchant fleet officers in the naval reserve would be a valuable asset to the Navy as well as to the commercial fleets.

Various other suggestions have been made for strengthening the relationship between the protective and the commercial fleets, including a proposal that graduates of the Naval Academy be allowed to get their practical experience on merchant vessels. It is timely to consider the whole subject of bringing the merchant marine and the Navy into closer coordination.

The sun, says science, will shine only 15,000,000,000,000 more years. Humanity can confidently look forward to a droughtless universe.

CHANGING CHINA

By Dr. W. REMFRY-HUNT, F. R. G. S.

The present chaotic condition of China is likely to continue indefinitely. Asia has got the range on Western civilization. It has discovered that Christendom is not Christian. Its travail is a means to an end. The rebirth of a mighty, intellectual, industrious and finely ethical people is a movement of colossal import.

Heathenism has been defeated by displacement. Scientific knowledge has dissolved superstition. The process is complex. Out of the spiritual and political laboratories of thought are emerging the elements of a new life. Manchu domination held China in its well-ruled but ancient grip for nearly three centuries. Like Rome and Babylon and Moscow and Berlin, its splendid autocracies crumbled. The explosions have detonated and shaken Asia to its foundations. We must be patient with 365,000,000 of people en route to a great and wonderful renaissance.

The modern idea is becoming acclimated in China. In Nanking and Hankow the picture show and the dancing salons are vogue. Heretofore modest maidens now drive like American chauffeuses in the gaudy and swift Packards and the divine Fords. One-arm driving is not unfashionable. Bobbed-hair stars of movie-stardom are shown on the film screens of a thousand inland cities, and Chicago and Manchester are flooded with orders for a million hair clippers. The saxophone and Estey organ are in the village life. Hundreds of village schools teach English as she is spoke; and the music and rhythm, and otherwise of French, German, Russian and English accent are on the newly liberated lips of the intellectual and alert student life.

Salesmanship offers lucrative positions to educated young America to represent our great captains and organizations of industry in marketing with the tremendous buying power of the awakening Chinese populations.

In the invasions of the varied regiments of religious sectarianism Christianity has suffered in the house of its friends. One of the brightest rays of promise is illuminating the darkened horizon. On their own fine initiative the Chinese Christian churches have outlawed denominationalism. One and only one church of the Christian way of life is tolerated by the new and educated China, and they have unanimously, under the auspices of the National Christian Council, decided to name the united church in China the Chinese Christian Church. Its approximate 5,000,000 of adherents and devotees face the greatest crisis in all their procession of centuries of history.

Unsettled government, banditry, confused militarism, economic breakdown, financial mistrust and the utter bankruptcy of order and social confidence have brought ruin and depression over its entire life.

Sympathy and not criticism is what China needs. Controversy digs chasms, but conference builds bridges.

I believe China will emerge. All the splendid elements of ethics, government, industry and unconquerable solidity of national confidence and racial superiority are assets on the winning side. China will never be communistic. Her home life is the immutable rock foundation of life and permanence.

THE AWFUL AGE OF WISDOM.

Oh, wife of mine, let's you and I be patient for a while!
The wise age now is ours to face—
let's face it with a smile.
The children think us out of date,
but, strangely, I recall
There was a time when I was young
I thought I knew it all.
So when their lips are turned in scorn at everything we do
Let us remember in our youth that we were that way, too.

Although as yet they haven't felt one
thouch of grief or pain,
Today they know life's best and worst and make that knowledge plain.
We think we've managed fairly well through care to get along,
But now, to our dismay, we're told our judgments all are wrong.
They tell us what we ought to do and give the reasons why;
And with the voice of wisdom they advise us what to buy.

We do not know what shoes to wear,
what shows we ought to see,
My choice of hats and ties is just as bad as it can be.
Our manners are too prim, I fear; our customs out of date.
And it is fortunate for us they came to set us straight.
This is the age of wisdom, which all parents must endure.
Let us be thankful it will pass and time will work a cure.

Oh, wife of mine, let's smile it through and brave these youthful sneers,
They may grow proud of us some day when this age disappears.
Though now it seems we're always wrong when time has taken flight,
These youngsters may discover just how often we were right.
So come, let's chuckle as their lips let words of wisdom fall, Remembering that in our youth we thought we knew it all.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: I suppose it is just as natural for a girl of your age to want "dates"—how I abominate that word!—as it is for a young bird to quit the nest.

And I suppose it is equally natural and inevitable for her parents to be filled with vague misgivings and to look with alarm and distrust on every young creature in pants.

The result, in most cases, is friction and misunderstanding. The parents eager to keep the girl from harm and doubtful of her wisdom, see dangers where none exist and impose restrictions that invite rebellion. The girl, handicapped by the unwisdom of youth, thinks her own judgment a sufficient guide and regards her parents as out-of-date old kill-joys who mean well but are so addled by age that they can't understand the problems and pleasures and standards of youth.

It isn't a new situation. Parents and daughters felt the same way when the world was young. Long before the pyramids were built parents sat late at night to discuss their daughter's evident lack of gumption, and the daughter cried herself to sleep because an unkind Providence had burdened her with such hard-headed and heartless parents.

In 2,184 languages and dialects and in ten times that many generations daughters budding into womanhood have wailed, "Just because you're old you don't want me to have a good time."

And then the daughters got old and wise and heard the same wail from daughters of their own.

I understand your troubles, my dear—and your viewpoint.

Have your boy friends, and welcome.

But remember this. Love is largely a matter of association. Two young creatures, much together, fall in love as naturally as a duck takes to water. And then, unless they remain congenial as they finish growing up, they fall out of love and live in misery.

Don't go much with any boy you would be ashamed to present to me with the words, "Dad, this is the one I picked, out of all the world, as my ideal of manhood."

Don't shame me and lower yourself by going with a boy who isn't a gentleman—or with a perfect little gentleman who is so lazy and worthless he never will be worth killing. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

The Coolidge Way.

New York Herald Tribune.

Hard on the heels of Mr. Morrow's frank and splendidly tempered speech to the voters of New Jersey comes an utterance from Mr. Coolidge which, while not referring to this speech, expresses very succinctly the philosophy that animated it. He chides that type of officeholder who is "always out with square and compass seeking to find out what the political effect will be of every action" he takes. He can tell him in advance that it will be bad, since calculation of this kind invariably defeats its own end by alienating the only political opinion in the country worth cultivating. Those who compose this body of opinion are never impressed with "yes" men. They give their allegiance not to followers, but to leaders of thought who "try to find out what is best for the welfare of the people and do that."

Perhaps it is not a mere coincidence, considering their lifelong intimacy, that Mr. Morrow should be illustrating before our eyes the soundness of the principle Mr. Coolidge enunciates and has always exemplified.

Chimpanzes Champion.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Still the anthropologist. The Darrow who defended monkeys at Dayton is still defending gorillas in Chicago.

Wet Weather Ahead.

Chicago News.

Then there's the hardy optimist who declares that while Wall street news is bearish, here and there political tidings sound rather beerish.

Why Pick on California?

New Orleans Times-Picayune.

"Wastage of natural gas is large in California," says a report. But why pick on California to make that nasty remark? Isn't the waste just as great in Idaho and in some other equally well represented States of our Union?

Floating.

Detroit News.

Some of the half and half State prohibition planks adopted of late are as equivocal as floating dry docks.

Another Noble Experiment.

Atlanta Constitution.

An amendment of the constitution of Oregon is to be voted upon on November 4, and will undoubtedly be ratified, which provides:

"On and after July 1, 1931, the executive and administrative functions of the State government shall be performed by the governor with the assistance of the following nine departments hereby created (naming them). All executive and administrative offices, boards and commissions of the State, except the offices of governor, secretary of state and state treasurer shall be abolished on July 1, 1931."

That is a measure by which the people of Oregon intend to give themselves a real and responsible governor, with a cabinet of department heads after the manner of the Federal Government, and thereby get to themselves an economical and business administration of their public affairs.

Among the departments is to be one called "the department of legal affairs," to which will be committed all the law enforcement functions of the State below those of the judges of the courts. The amendment abolishes district attorneys, since the Supreme Court of the State has decided that a district attorney, corresponding to a Georgia solicitor general, "is not a judicial officer, nor is he a part of the court"—in other words, he is an attache of the executive department.

It will be of great interest to law officers and the public to observe hereafter the adequacy or impotency in Oregon of a "department of legal affairs" charged with law enforcement throughout the State.

Nobody Cares.

Macon Telegraph.

By coming out for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment both parties in New York stand to lose the speakeasy vote.

TAKE THAT!

Here in Portis it is rumored that I am to marry Mr. James McDaneld. I have seen him once and he didn't mention it then. If this is true, then I don't know it. (Signed): Mrs. Lilly Knott.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

He Saw More Drunks in One Walk in 1903 Than in Five Months During 1930—Would Retain Present Law Until Something Specifically Better Is Proposed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I fully endorse your editorial on the "Law Commission and Prohibition." I made my advent in the arena of American life before the legalized saloon came into existence. I, therefore, have very vivid memories of what I have seen under the operations of the liquor traffic during three periods of our national life—before the saloon, under the saloon, and under the much-abused eighteenth amendment.

I am frank to say that when I first came to Washington to live, in 1903, I saw more drunken people in one walk on Third street from Pennsylvania avenue to I street southwest, than I have seen in the past five months of travel in many directions and widely separated sections of our beloved city. But it is not my present purpose to make comparisons. I simply desire to give special emphasis to the idea that before we think of a referendum or doing away with the eighteenth amendment, it is imperative that a definite and specific plan for dealing with the intoxicating-liquor problem be formulated in no uncertain or misleading terms—a plan that will appeal to the intelligent voters as being far better than any tried since I came into this world.

We are almost daily introduced to some queer aspects of human thinking apparently designed to work our people up, by misrepresentations and misleading stories, to an emotional status that would cause them to espouse false ideas and ideals to their own hurt. Our intelligent people are tired of this. They want no changes made except on a safe and sane basis. They must be sure, when they discard one thing, that something better and more satisfactory will take its place. Is our Government so wisely managed by our lawmakers and law-enforcement officials that it is on the up-grade? If so, keep it going in that direction! Is it headed toward the Sodom and Gomorrah status? If so, a change should be made; yet we should first be sure that the change will prove a potential factor in elevating our people to the highest possible standards of living. For righteousness—the right use of all things—exalteth a nation and its people. R. B. McCALLEY.

Appreciative Reader Would Like to See More Men at Work on Shakespeare Memorial and Supreme Court Building.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Excuse me for taking a few lines of your valuable paper, with its best editorial page in America, if not in the world.

With such excellent weather for work, with the Shakespeare Society and many thousand others anxiously waiting to see that great Shakespeare collection in its fine building, a square long, it is disappointing to see only half a dozen men working. Why not ten times as many before the blasts and snows of winter come on?

Hundreds of persons were rushed out of their homes to prepare for the great United States Supreme Court Building. All houses are off two blocks. Now one man is digging on a 12-foot hill. Why not a hundred men, and scores of wagons and autos carrying away that hill?

ACTIVITY.

Destruction of the Treasury and State, War and Navy Buildings May Be Postponed, Hints Mr. Morse.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The writer of the article in this column on Tuesday, last, did not intend to open a discussion and still has no desire to indulge in one. An alleged reply to it appeared the following day which deserves no answer. But the writer of it says that he "makes no pretentions to authoritative knowledge" in architecture, and then proceeds to "instruct," an attitude frequently assumed by "those who know not and know not that they know not." No defense is needed for placing the names of the States of the Union in 1860 upon the Lincoln Memorial, and, fortunately for posterity, no change will be made there.

Some persons are so shortsighted that only from some lofty elevation are they, at all, able to comprehend anything magnificent. The refining influence of the classics, whether in cut stone, in great paintings, in music or in literature will never enrich the minds of those whose vision carries them no further than the materials used in their production. A poem in marble is to be found in E street northwest, viz., the latest addition to the Red Cross group. The prophesy of what "future generations" will do about the destruction of the Treasury and the State, War and Navy Buildings fortunately does not fall to one who is unable to understand the cultural values that lie within works of art, per se.

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Says Small Business Should Be Encouraged.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have too much big business and not enough of little business in this country. Little business starts prosperity in every direction and does not confine it to the very few, as at present. Little business gives that wider distribution of wealth which is so badly needed. Concentration of money that should be used on pay rolls is destroying our economic balance and increasing unemployment. Small business creates employment in every direction and the country is better for it.

Our Government has not given the proper attention to small business. It has allowed the big hogs and chain stores to lap up everything. Only the States apparently can control the latter through such high taxes that they will be discouraged from opening new stores and thus become less a bugbear to the small merchant.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Former Envoy Aids Donkey in Society Debut

Mr. Morris Pays 8,000 Francs for Animal at Biarritz.

BECAUSE the former Minister to Sweden, Mr. Ira Nelson Morris, has a sense of humor and a spirit of generosity the humble donkey has come into its own and has stalked straight into the society columns of fashionable Biarritz. With a price on his head of 8,000 francs, the little servant of the foreign fruit vendor, or of the tourist, as you wish, was the center of attraction at the brilliant fete given last week by Mr. Roy MacWilliams, American Vice Consul at Biarritz, and Mrs. MacWilliams.

The former minister was one of the hundreds of guests attending the festival given by Mr. and Mrs. MacWilliams at their house, Mendigaina, for the aid of the Maison Maurice Pierre in Bidart, France. There was tea and music and dancing, and to finish off the gayety there was the donkey, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Carolan, of New York, who offered the little gray beast for auction.

The highest bidder was the former minister, Mr. Morris, of Chicago, who gayly paid the highest price ever recorded for a donkey in the smart watering place. Mr. Morris presented the animal to the Maurice Pierre home.

The attendance at the fete was so numerous that the line of luxurious cars stationed outside reached from Guethary to Bidart. Smart society of the Cote Basque arrived early for the tennis matches.

The former Minister and Mrs. Morris spend a great deal of time at their Italian estate, Villa d'Este, at Lake Como. The splendid villa, overlooking the beautiful lake, is one of the finest in Italy. The Morrises are pleasantly remembered in Washington and thoughts of Mrs. Morris are associated with her role as one of the group accompanying Queen Marie of Roumania on her journey through the United States in October of 1926.

The Minister and the older daughters will return to this country in November. The Szechenyis never travel on the same ship with the entire family; usually the Countess precedes with the younger children and the Count goes later with the two older daughters to join them at their country estate near Budapest.

The United States Minister to Albania, Mr. Herman Bernstein, announces that the marriage of his daughter, Miss Dorothy Jean Bernstein, to Mr. Actius Nash, will take place on Sunday in Tirana, Albania. WIDE DAMAGE DONE BY CHILEAN TEMBLOR Woman Patient Is Killed as Panic Seizes Hospital in Santiago.

REPORTS NOT COMPLETE

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—A violent earthquake which apparently shook the entire Andean slope of Chile this morning caused at least one death and a score of injuries. Apparently the quake caused widespread damage to buildings, and it is believed the casualty list may grow when all communities are heard from.

The one death reported was that of a woman, a hospital patient who left her bed in panic and died as she attempted to flee outdoors with others. Another woman at the same place suffered a broken leg. Six other persons were slightly injured.

Much material damage was wrought in the town of Llaillai, hardly a house escaping some injury. The postoffice was nearly destroyed, large stores were damaged, a main street was closed by the falling of a masonry wall, and several houses were obliterated.

Inhabitants Flee to Parks.

In Santiago the frightened inhabitants fled to the parks as they felt the shock. Walls were cracked and cornices fell from a number of buildings.

Some injuries were reported at Valparaiso, although most of them were said to have been caused by accidents in the panic rather than by the quake itself.

The quake was a violent shock, accompanied by deep rumblings. The seismographic observatory of El Salto said the principal movement lasted 40 seconds, with the tremor attaining an acceleration of 260 millimeters a second.

It was understood tonight that telegraphic communication had been restored throughout the country, although one newspaper reported no news had been received from south of Conception and north of La Serena.

Reports of some damage were received from the towns of Los Andes, San Felipe, La Ligua, Talca, Concepcion and Angol.

Number of Persons Hurt.

La Calera, Chile, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The earthquake felt in Chile today caused slight injuries to several persons and partly destroyed a number of houses here.

The caving-in of the Serrano Canal interrupted traffic also on the railroad, momentarily cutting off the service with Santiago and Valparaiso. Several squads of workers labored for hours to reestablish traffic. Considerable losses were suffered by business houses.

Llai Llai, Chile, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Squads of firemen today worked throughout the city clearing earthquake debris from the streets. A preliminary survey of the situation puts the damage at more than half a million pesos (about $60,000). Several persons were injured.

Ohio Extradition Of McBride Fails

Brother of Dry Leader Still Held by District for Investigation.

Proposed extradition of Emmet McBride, brother of Dr. F. Scott McBride, by authorities of Steubenville, Ohio, where he is wanted for passing an allegedly worthless check, has been abandoned, but the prisoner has not been released.

District authorities who made the arrest on information given them by the superintendent of the Antisaloon League, yesterday received a telegram from Steubenville suggesting that the prisoner be released because the State was unwilling to pay expenses incident to his extradition.

Inspector William S. Shelby, however, is holding the prisoner for investigation of complaints regarding issuance of allegedly worthless checks in the District.

PITTS POSTS BOND; DEFENSE FILES PLEAS

torney Neil Burkinshaw, who, with Special Assistant to the Attorney General Nugent Dodds, has been conducting the Government case.

Pitts' pleas in abatement are the first filed against the grand jury, which took office October 8, and which returned its first indictment on October 14 when it named him in the embezzlement count.

The chief charge made is that four members of the present inquisitorial body are employed by firms which have contractural relations with the United States or the District government. Clarence E. Thornton, jr., is described as an employe of the Potomac Electric Power Co.; Harry L. Beach is named as an employe of the National Electric Supply Co.; William B. Whipple is said to be an operator for the Westren Union Telegraph Co., while Hugh A. Reamy is charged with being a clerk in a drug store which sells postage stamps.

An additional member—William A. Johnson—is accused of not being a "good and lawful" man under terms of jury requirements, allegation being that at one time he was discharged from the Government Printing Office with prejudice.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—By agreement of counsel the hearing on a petition for permission to examine the books of the F. H. Smith Co., of Washington and New York, and the hearing on an application for the appointment of a temporary receiver for the company, were again continued today, this time to November 14. The case was to have been heard today in the Court of Chancery.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Counsel for a bondholders' committee of the Bellmore Apartment Co. today filed a bill in equity in Common Pleas Court against the Bellmore company, the F. H. Smith Co., the F. H. Smith Investment Co., and six individuals, alleging fraud and conspiracy in the issuance of $400,000 bonds secured by a deed of trust and mortgage on the Germantown Manor Apartment here.

Autogyro Plane Given Bolling Field Tests

Army, Navy, and Commerce Department officials for the last two days have witnessed special exhibitions of an autogyro airplane at Bolling Field and the Naval Air Station, the plane performing some very unusual feats. The new type of plane climbs at a steeper angle than ordinary ships and can descend almost perpendicularly.

Eleven pilots of the Army and Navy flew this type of plane for the first time during the exhibition and handled it without mishap. It was brought here by James G. Ray, of the Pitcairn Cierva Autogyro Co., of Philadelphia.

Fireman Falls Dead On Race Track Special

When W. J. Beck, 40 years old, of Baltimore, fireman on a Baltimore & Ohio race special fell dead in the cab of the engine just as it reached Laurel from Washington yesterday afternoon, Engineer W. P. Ayers brought the train to such a sudden stop hundreds of race fans thought an accident had occurred.

Ayers noticed Beck stagger and applied the brakes quickly. James Crofton, manager of the Agua Caliente track, was one of the first to reach the cab, where Beck was found dead. The body was taken to the railroad rest station nearby to await arrival of the coroner.

The men gave no resistance. More of the fugitives are believed to be hiding in the woods.

I. C. C. TO GET DATA ON AUTO BUS LINES

Relationship Between Motor and Rail Routes Will Be Studied.

HEARINGS ARE LISTED

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday ordered hearings in seventeen cities during the next four months to gather additional information bearing on the relationship between railroads and motor bus lines operating over interstate highways.

It is the commission's purpose to gather evidence to supplement data it previously obtained during a protracted investigation of all-bus highway operations, which was completed two years ago and submitted to Congress as a basis for regulatory legislation now pending.

The present inquiry, the order yesterday setting hearings noted, "will be confined primarily to the matter of coordination between common carriers subject to the transportation act and common carriers by motor."

Commissioner Brainerd and two examiners were designated to hear the witnesses. The dates and places announced by the commission were as follows:

St. Louis, November 17; Kansas City, November 21; Dallas, November 28; New Orleans, December 3; Atlanta, December 8; Detroit, December 11; Boston, December 15; New York, December 18; Chicago, January 5; St. Paul, January 12; Seattle, January 19; Portland, Oreg., January 22; San Francisco, January 27; Los Angeles, February 2; Denver, February 9; Omaha, February 14, and Washington, D. C., March 4.

Three Men Held In Train Blast

Trio Is Under Indictment in Allegheny, Charged Dynamiting Cars.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 17.—Three men, George P. McDonald, 34, John McDonald, a brother, 32, of Little Orleans, Md., and Bruce Peck, 26, of Cohill, Md., are under arrest following their indictment by an Allegheny County grand jury on a charge of dynamiting a Western Maryland Railroad east bound freight train at Indigo Tunnel, near Little Orleans, last April 12.

Peck was already under arrest and held in the Hagerstown jail on a charge of larceny, but this county will turn him over to Allegheny County for trial on the dynamiting charge. The McDonalds are employed as trackmen by the B. & O. Railroad.

The dynamiting took place on the edge of the tunnel and damaged one of the cars, and narrowly missed blowing up the tunnel which would have blocked the main line of the railroad between Hagerstown and Cumberland.

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ALTHOUGH the position is at present open and will remain so until after the annual meeting at Cleveland, November 17, it seems to be the opinion that Philip K. Loucks, of Washington, will be made managing director of the National Association of Broadcasters to succeed L. S. Baker, of New York, who recently resigned.

Mr. Loucks is now the Washington representative of the association, a lawyer by profession, and if elevated to the new office would be one of the youngest of the radio executives.

There is alo an impression if Loucks is selected as managing director, that the headquarters of the National Association of Broadcasters will be moved from New York to the Capital.

For asking for a raise in his salary, which was nothing, William Gillette, who will present "Sherlock Holmes" over the radio Monday night, lost his first stage position. Two years later Mark Twain, a neighbor of the Gillettes in Hartford, obtained an engagement for him in Boston.

Gillette is 75 years old and a bachelor.

IN the days when champions took on all comers during their tours of the country, which James J. Corbett will tell about tomorrow night (WABC net, 6:30 p. m.), whenever Corbett vanquished a challenger, he was met with the same comment, "Wait until you meet Mr. Mulligan!"

For weeks he dodged Mr. Mulligan, but finally had to box him. The battle ended when Mulligan, badly beaten and nearly out, whispered to the untouched Corbett, "We'd better stop now before we kill each other."

The old Midway Plaisance in Chicago will come to life when "Hootchee Cootchee," from "At the Fair," is to be played in the Pop Concert tonight (WRC, 8 o'clock).

In addition to their regular salary, which is nominal, announcers receive as high as $250 apiece for commercial programs. Some of them have as many as four of these programs a week.

WORK on the first buildings in the $250,000,000 radio and amusement center to be built by John D. Rockefeller, jr., covering three blocks in New York City, will start about January 1, employing 10,000 men.

Negotiations have been resumed for inclusion of the new Metropolitan Opera House in the project.

The bass drummer's busy hand caught on one of the cymbals while the Lucky Dance Orchestra was broadcasting, and it crashed to the floor.

Several minutes before, B. A. Rolfe had praised the orchestra, "Very good, gentlemen, very good!" But he ran to the back of the studio at the end of the program to tell the drummer, "I wouldn't have had that happen for $5,000."

Stricter rules are being enforced with regard to visitors in the broadcasting studios because their clothes serve as sound absorbers.

The director of one program was notified that 35 guests would be in the studio when the program went on the air. At rehearsal he arranged drapes on the walls to equal the absorbing effect of that number. Forty were admitted instead of thirty-five, and the entire broadcast was unbalanced.

THE Damrosch concert tonight (WRC, 9 p. m.) will include the following:

Overture "Semiramide," by Rossini; finale from Symphony in G minor, Mozart; "The Hens and Roosters Carnival of Animals," Saint-Saens; St. Francis Preaching to the Birds, Liszt; Wedding March, Mendelssohn, and Waltz of the Flowers, Tschaikowsky.

From Variety: "Celebrities may be graded according to fan mail they receive, but scientists still figure fan mail nutty. Insanity experts analyze some of this mail, it is claimed."

Dare Interprets the MODE

Halloween parties require clever and "dicerent" costumes!. (Dah-ray Ideas.)

Paris, Oct. 17.

WHO doesn't love to dress up for a costume Mardi Gras? Every one loves to make this whimsical escape from everyday, even though our natural laziness rather balks at the necessity of preparations, when we receive an invitation to a masquerade ball. But when you finally get togged out in your costume, and that mask goes over your eyes, there is always that little thrill, that bubbling up of youth, that usually ends in your having a gorgeous evening and perhaps even a romantic one to hide in memory's jewel box forever.

First, let me warn you again never to step out of character in your masquerade costumes! If you are attractive, no matter what others who have more personality than real beauty may try to kid you into, don't be guilty of the awful mistake of selecting a comical costume. Select a costume that falls in with your personality—if you are languorous and brunette, a Spanish costume. If you are vivacious and a brunette, a gypsy costume, perhaps. If you are demure and "old world" type, then you have infinite variety from which to choose.

And let's be original, and give it a little thought, this costuming. It is not expensive to have a real and complete costume made, and great fun to make it yourself, if you wish, and have the time. Once complete, you can use it year after year, for different parties, for that ship's masquerade that still occurs on many of the boats for that Mardi Gras or carnival that you might run into any moment.

Let's start right this minute and prepare for that Halloween party that you might well be invited to the last minute, you know. And if Halloween doesn't interest you this year, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post anyhow, for the leaflet of truly new and original costumes that I have made for you this week. I mean, that you can make or have made from Dare's designs.

There is a cunning Apache ensemble, one for a boy and one for a girl, an unusual gypsy costume, a Spanish poodle costume, or some kind of a dog that we don't know the name of—eight in all, and I'll promise you that at least six out of this eight you have never seen or even thought of. Better send that stamped, self-addressed envelope before you forget it.

• • • •

What would you trim velvet hats with, other than soft feather pom poms, or a new thick soft cord of chenille, which is as thick as a lead pencil, and looks exactly like a velvet cord with very much less weight than a velvet cord would really have?

• • • •

Our Fashion Note Book for Fall.

Shaved furs, such as breit-schwanz, gaillac, mole, seal and lamb will be used for trimmings on the neck and also on the sleeves of autumn togs, often coming up above the elbow.

• • • •

In dressing the "jeune fille" the rule is simplicity. All good dressing demands this anyway, but for her it is absolutely essential. The fine jerseys and crepe materials shown this season are especially suitable for the simply made dress, while tucked in blouse and close-fitting belt are both very charming on the slender figure.

For evening wear good taste demands that the young girl eschew brocades and beaded materials in which her more mature sister might safely indulge, and wear simple chiffons, velvets, moires and an only occasional, and then very simple, satin.

Tomorrow you may read Dare's weekly fashion letter again. It's in The Washington Post each Sunday.

Mountains Hunted For Lost Child, 3

Lawrence Sullivan Sought Near Mining Camp in Nevada.

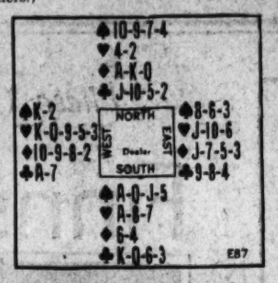
Round Mountain, Nev., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Five hundred men and boys are combing mountains in the vicinity of this mining camp in search of 3-year-old-Lawrence Sullivan, who was lost yesterday afternon when he wandered away from his uncle's car while it was parked in Jefferson Canyon.

The uncle, J. L. Sullivan, a miner, took the child with him while he went on a short prospecting trip about seven miles up the canyon from Round Mountain. He left the child in the car and walked to the top of a hill. When he returned an hour later the child was gone.

Last night the child's cap and shoes were found about a mile from the scene of his disappearance, up the canyon. Fear was expressed that the child had been attacked by an eagle or mountain lion had carried the baby away.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the auction and contract bridge beginners.)



Today's hand is for the bridge beginner, a lesson in bidding and play at either auction or contract.

South, with a No Trump count of 16 and stoppers in three suits, has a sound bid of one No Trump. However, South also has a sound Spade bid and has a worthless doubleton in Diamonds. With a hand containing a worthless doubleton and a sound four-card major bid, almost all authorities advocate the bidding of the major suit initially. With this hand, if South bid one No Trump he would become the Declarer at auction; but at contract West would pass and North with a count of 11, making a total count of at least 24 in the combined hands, would jump to three No Trumps and the contract would be defeated.

West would open by leading the Five of Heart (against a No Trump contract the fourth best is led from the King-Queen-Nine combination, King from King-Queen-Ten; against a suit contract the King would be led from either King-Queen-Ten or King-Queen-Nine). Declarer would hold up until the third round and then lead a Club. The only chance to make game would be to find both the King of Spades and the Ace of Clubs held by East. With that distribution ten tricks could be made by taking the Spade finesse; but with the cards as they happen to lie in this hand, West would save game by winning the Club and cashing his two established Hearts.

Now let us see what would happen if South bid one Spade. West would bid two Hearts and in auction North would bid two Spades which would obtain the contract. In contract North would jump to three Spades, showing four raisers (one more than the size of the bid to which he is jumping), plus at least normal trump support; and South with much better than a minimum one-bid would rebid Spades for game. It is easy to see that South would lose one Spade, one Heart and one Club, making four-odd game—much better than failing to reach the goal at No Trump.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

IN rearranging my garden plot I find that I will have to transplant lilacs, mock oranges, roses, phloxes, hollyhocks and chrysanthemums. Please tell me when is the best time to do this work. Also is a southern window the best place for an English ivy? JANE A. P.

The shrubs and roses may be transplanted in the late fall. If, however, you have a few roses among your collection that are very large, they must be plunged back severely, and, if possible, be moved with a large ball of earth about their roots. This is best done in spring before growth starts. Phloxes are best divided and transplanted in late August. If the work is done at this time, the plants will produce a normal amount of bloom the following season. Hollyhocks may be transplanted in September. Chrysanthemums are best transplanted in the early spring. An English ivy will do better in a northern window than a southern one.

I have a water lily growing in a small tub sunk in the ground. The soil is very rich with a covering of sand and small pebbles. It has a new leaf every day, but there is no sign of a blossom. Please advise what treatment is necessary to make it bloom and what treatment it requires during the fall and winter. We have four white pines. Three are growing very satisfactorily, but the fourth will not grow. We have planted two different trees in the same place and both have died. We have changed the soil, surrounded the base with peat moss, watered it very carefully, but no tree can be induced to grow in this spot. Can you suggest a cause or a remedy?

R. R.

Better try feeding your water lily. All water lilies should be fed twice during the season. This can best be done by holding a handful of manure tightly in your hand and submerging it under the water for a few seconds, directly over the root of the lily. As soon as it becomes thoroughly soaked, release it and it will sink to the root in a clean mass that does not cloud up the water. Hardy lilies are not permanently injured by frost, the tops only being killed back, but the tender varieties are killed by the slightest suggestion of frost. Such bulbs must be lifted and taken indoors and stored in boxes in a warm basement.

Perhaps you permitted the roots of your white pine to become dry while waiting an opportunity to plant it. Evergreens are much more sensitive to drying out of the roots than deciduous trees, because of the resinous sap in the roots which quickly hardens upon exposure to the air. This particular tree may be exposed to drying winds in winter. If the roots are frozen, the leaves, when exposed to continuous winds, do not get sufficient moisture to supply that which is lost. The white pine prefers a dry, heavy soil.

Kindly tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing two leaves. Also tell me if the plant is hardy. MRS. F. H.

With only two very small leaves and no information regarding the plant, it is impossible to identify the specimen.

Please tell me the name of the tree of which I am inclosing a leaf. The tree was brought to me from New Orleans a number of years ago. Also tell me how to protect rhododendrons in winter. MRS. C. H. R.

The leaf you inclosed was from the Kentucky coffee tree. Better make a burlap windshield to protect your rhododendrons from severe winter winds. Also place a mulch of dead leaves, peat moss or pine needles about the roots of the plants. This mulch must be retained the entire twelve months of the year.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"A Troubled Time."

DEAR MISS McDONALD—What do you think of a man who is so selfish that he does not want his wife to help her mother in any way, although his wife works and her brother has been taken sick, with chances of recovery doubtful.

But he will let his wife pay bills which he negotiates and will go into a violent rage if he even hears of her doing even little things for her mother. Do you think a woman should countenance this?

I have kept quiet, as I hate scenes and arguments. I am almost a nervous wreck due to continual bickerings. Should I leave him and go live with my mother, who also is really not well? If anything should happen to my brother wouldn't it be my duty to look out for my mother. I feel like I have no individuality left since I have been married. I sometimes wish I was dead.

Please answer through this column.

Leaving your family out of the question entirely, you should not be living with this man. He is unworthy and you are keenly conscious of the fact. Your future is going to be one of continued regret as well as one of strife, for you are mismated. Yours is a nature tuned to sympathetic response, his is devoid of every sensibility. He has neither character nor principle and will continue to deteriorate as time goes on. If you remain with him you will as a mere measure to insure peace, forsake one principle after another and most of your ideals. Leaving him you will encounter all the difficulties of supporting your mother, and of having no home of your own, but you will have the comfort of knowing that you are doing what the very best in you dictates, and you will have the companionship of the mother who no doubt instilled the fine principles that make you the superior person that you are.

It is hard to advise another in so vital a matter. But I can only tell you that in your place I should not only feel impelled to rush to the aid of my dear ones, but would find it entirely impossible to contemplate the continuance of such an association as the marriage you describe. My advice, therefore, is sincere, at least. Whether or not you can or will follow it depends upon you, for, of course, for no two people on earth can any situation be exactly alike.

In any case, be calm about your problem. Remember I once told you in this column of the little girl editor in Boston who when I was sorely troubled warned me to remember that we were all "sailing on a great sea of love that would bear us along without effort if only we would cease tugging and trying to drag against that loving tide." Remember? I do. I always picture her just gliding in a boat with silver sails up on her sea of love. Sail with her. I often do now. The minute I find myself "tugging" I remember and just relax and sail along. And it works like everything. So try it. Brother may sail to health and you will sail to peace if not to happiness.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

CHAUFFEURS AND GLASSES.

IN a test of 77 faculty members of the University of Illinois who drive university automobiles six were found to need glasses for long distance vision. It was recommended that twelve were not to drive without wearing glasses, and two were so nearsighted as to be below the minimum vision recommended by the committee on physical standards for drivers of motor vehicles of the section of ophthalmology of the American Medical Association. Two were color blind and two were found to be in no physical condition to assume the responsibilities of a chauffeur. The university does not permit members of its student body to have automobiles with them at school. Had this examination of the eyes been extended to the entire student body it might have thrown some light on the need of a driver's license law.

The health service of the university made a special point in investigating all students who were on probation because of poor scholarship. They were anxious to determine how much of a factor in poor scholarship were disease and physical defects. In addition, they desired to improve scholarship wherever medical or surgical service gave promise of doing so.

On the first point the conclusion was: In a few instances uncorrected defects were discovered which were undoubtedly contributing to the student's unsatisfactory class standing. In the greater number of cases it was apparent that the student's poor health was not responsible for his low grade. At least 95 per cent of the medical records would indicate that poor scholastic standing must be attributed to causes other than ill health. In the cases where it seemed to be advisable operations were done or other treatments were given and the scholarship improved.

Again, the report shows that women have more diseases and disorders than men, although they always have lower death rates. The men had a heart disorder rate of about 2½ per cent; the women of 6 to 9 per cent. About 35 to 36 per cent of the men had some foot disorder, while with women the percentage range was 75 to 92. The lung abnormalities of women were 2 or 3 times as numerous as those of men. However, the women always took better care of their teeth. In general physical development the women excelled. Nineteen per cent of them scored excellent. The best the men could show was less than 2 per cent excellent.

FOOD FOR YOUNG GIRL.

Mrs. P. writes: My little girl, 5 years old, has quite an appetite, and can eat as much as a child 8 years old. Should I limit her to a certain amount at meal time, whether she is still hungry and can eat more, or not? Can a child of that age eat too much for her age?

REPLY.

There are some diseases, such as diabetes, which cause an excessive appetite. If your child is free from any such disease give her as much food as an 8-year-old gets. Lusk says a growing child needs twice as much meat per pound of its weight as does an adult.

The job of growing requires solid food. So does hard work, which goes by the name of play.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

CARE FOR FURS PROPERLY.
(U. S. Biological Survey.)

The satisfaction obtained from a fur or a fur-trimmed garment depends on making a good selection in the first place and on giving the garment good care while it is in use. There is a wide range of durability in different furs, but price is no indication of durability. For example, chinchilla, a most expensive fur, is not so durable as rabbit. Much is said about the preparation of rabbit fur to make it look like higher priced furs, but if the customer understands what she is getting and takes good care of her coat, she may have full satisfaction and pleasure in it.

The Biological Survey lays great stress on dealing always with a reliable furrier and in going to him exclusively for repairs, storage, or other matters connected with a fur or fur-trimmed garment. Some of the special points in the care of furs are as follows:

If any defects appear in a fur garment while it is still comparatively new, take it at once to the firm from which you bought it. The most expensive garment and the cheapest are equally liable to small troubles, such as a parted seam, a tiny hole or broken hairs that have been entirely removed, and so give the appearance of shedding.

The leather, or skin, of the piece of fur has been specially treated to make it pliable. The furrier or reputable dry cleaning plant experienced in handling furs has special methods of cleaning furs to retain this quality. If your fur garment is damp or wet, do not put it on or near a stove or radiator. Hang it on a padded hanger properly and let it dry slowly at ordinary room temperatures.

Do not hang your furs in a closet with steam pipes. The air in the closets of steam-heated apartments is generally too dry for furs, unless there is provision for humidification.

Avoid unnecessary friction against a fur garment. Jewelry that rubs against the fur is certain to cause wear, as also will bags carried on the arm or swinging against the side. Keeping the collar up so it rubs against the hat causes wear. Riding in automobiles causes wear from wrist to elbow, across shoulders and on the lower part of the back across the hips. Much of this can be avoided or distributed by giving the matter some thought. In a fur coat, unlike fabric coats, a worn place can usually be taken out and new skins set in, thus prolonging the usefulness of the garment without impairing its beauty.

Many persons forget that sitting down, leaning forward or reaching up, in a coat of any sort, exerts a strain on seams, especially those around the armhole. Choose a coat in the first place that is roomy enough for any ordinary body and arm action, and ease the coat if necessary in making movements. Do not put your coat tightly around you when you sit down. Loosen it up, raise it a little and unbutton it if weather and circumstances permit.

Both natural and dyed furs change color in the course of time if exposed to direct sunlight. The changes, as a rule, are gradual and the result not unpleasing. Fading can be retarded if you are careful to hang your furs away from the direct sunlight when you take them off.

Storing furs at home is generally risky. They hang where it is too hot and dry or too damp. Moths get at them. "Thieves break in and steal." Send them to a reliable storage plant that will assume the risk. The charge is nominal. Cold storage is the best method in general use, but whether the furs are stored in cold or normal temperatures is less important to you than the reliability of the concern storing them and the nature of the insurance given.

Scion of Wealth Will Wed Anne S. Kinsolving Today

John Nicholas Brown, once known as "world's most pampered baby," will wed Anne Seddon Kinsolving, Baltimore society girl reporter, today. The father of the bride will be the officiating clergyman.

John N. Brown, "World's Richest Baby," to Be Bridegroom.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Titled foreigners and representatives of generations of wealth in the East and of antebellum Virginia aristocracy arrived here today to attend the wedding tomorrow of Miss Anne Seddon Kinsolving, of Baltimore, and John Nicholas Brown, of Providence and Newport, R. I.

Tonight a dinner was given for the bridal party by Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, sr., widowed mother of the man once widely known as "the richest baby in the world." His fiancee, member of a family socially prominent here and in Virginia, made her debut several seasons ago, but was a Baltimore newspaper reporter for two years before the engagement was announced in June.

The wedding, scheduled for noon at Old St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, of which Miss Kinsolving's father, Dr. Arthur Barksdale Kinsolving, is rector, promises to be the most imposing in recent Baltimore history.

A heavy detail of police was told off today and special traffic regulations were issued. The ceremony is to be performed by Dr. Kinsolving, and the blessing pronounced by Bishop James de Wolf Perry, primate of the Episcopal Church in America.

Guests expected include Sir George and Lady Young, of London; Countess Beroldingen, of Newport; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Coats, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Goddard and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blisle.

After the wedding a year's stay in Europe is on the program for the couple, during which Mr. Brown's yacht will join them. They will make their home at Providence.

The romance is said by friends to have had its inception during a visit of Miss Kinsolving to her brother, the Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, at Amherst, Mass. Since his graduation at Harvard, in 1922, Brown has been engaged in study, travel and caring for the fortune left him by his grandfather, father and uncle. His wealth was estimated when he was a student at between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000. He came into possession of it when he reached the age of 21, in 1921.

Miss Kinsolving is a niece of former Senator William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland; of the late Bishop George Herbert Kinsolving, of Texas, and of the late Lucien Lee Kinsolving, Bishop of Southern Brazil.

Born under a lucky star, the scion of a family wealthy and socially prominent for generations, Brown also was known as "the worlds' most pampered baby" when a child. His aunts included the Viscountess d'Osmay, Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry and Mrs. W. Watts Sherman.

Mrs. Beverly Ober, sister of the bride, will be the matron of honor, and two other sisters, Misses Sally Archer and Lucinda Lee Kinsolving, the bridesmaids. Henry F. Colt, of Boston, will be the best man.

Will Entertain Colored Children.

Miss Kathleen Carson, who has been conducting a series of story tellings for inmates of the Children's Hospital, will entertain colored children of the institution tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock with recitations of Mark Twain tales and animal stores.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LIBRA."

IF October 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:15 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8:50 p. m.

The astrological influences on this date will bring prosperity, but not happiness, and there will be a multitude of small worries to overcome. Existing interests forsake, but not for your good. Be careful of love and courtship, as misunderstandings face you. Your elders will be your friends.

Children born on this October 18 will have intense, emotional and sometimes explosive natures, and they will need to cultivate self-control. They will be fond of gaiety and social life, and will like to take an active part in all that is going on around them. They demand attention and love, although they will not express much affection.

You have a very lavish and very extravagant nature, and these two traits are exhibited in nearly every role you play. You are a born spender, and nearly all your material gifts soon slip through your fingers. You will always, however, have an abundance of good humor and your wells of faith will never run dry. Your spirits can never be pauperized. There are few people who live more in the "now" than you do, and you often have to pay heavily for your yesterdays, but you do so most cheerfully, and you will never learn to provide for "that rainy day."

You get your excitement from outward rather than inward things; get it from dashing about, and from seeking new and fantastic quips of experience. You will never stay "put," and you are a born wanderer in quest of something new, and your accumulations will be mental and not material. You have the intellectual grasp which shows that if you wished, you could make life stand and deliver, and probably you are taking from her bins the things which you most desire—the novelties of life. You are never without friends, and you soon make new ones—picked from every walk of life. If a person interests you or amuses you, they need have no further pedigree. Your lack of snobbery is a hallmark of your greatness and popularity. You are quixotically loyal, and you will always have a great many hangers on who take advantage of the bigness of your heart.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. AGNES LYNE.

Hateful Children.

Occasionally one sees children who seem to possess in their natures an unusually large element of spite, resentment and hate.

Such a child is repellant, difficult to deal with, difficult to "reach." He alienates the sympathy of grown-ups and makes enemies of those his own age.

I do not believe children are born hateful. They are made that way. Most frequently children are made hateful through excessively harsh and frequent punishment, through lack of love and through jealousy.

These things bring out all that is potentially ugly and destructive in human nature.

The child who is punished often and severely can scarcely help but feel a more or less suppressed resentment against those who seem bent upon making his life miserable. Since he does not usually dare to express his antagonism directly toward those who cause it, he finds outlets in other channels.

He is mean to his playmates, mistreats his pets, and is gratuitously unpleasant to any one who has no power to hurt him.

The child who feels himself to be unloved considers himself wronged and cheated. He tries his best to even up accounts by revenging himself upon the world at large.

We may punish a child for the particular acts occasioned or caused by his underlying resentments, but we can cure his hatefulness only by giving him the love and understanding which he craves.

We must try to see through this screen of defiance and meanness to the loneliness and confusion which almost certainly exist within his inmost self.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

READ THIS FIRST.

Robin Smith, young poet, accepts an invitation to a house party because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present. After quarreling with the Earl of Winston, Gwendolen's brother, and Donald Flint, her fiance, he locks the door of his bedroom and flees through the window back to his attic room. The Earl of Winston is missed, and on a search the earl's dead body is found under Robin's bed. The poet is arrested in his room. The inspector orders him to eat his breakfast, as a hard day is ahead of him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIII.

Robin obeyed. He drank his coffee standing, and thought:

"This man poured the coffee out for me just as the keeper at the zoo pours out drink for the animals!"

He was "a dangerous man"—in fact, a wild beast—and this man was his keeper, had him under his charge! With chagrin, which he made no effort to conceal, he watched the inspector going through the pockets of his coat.

"What's this?" asked the inspector, drawing out several crumpled sheets of paper.

"I don't want you to look at them!" exclaimed Robin, with some exasperation.

"Why not?" asked the inspector. "Love letters, eh?"

"No! They are my poems!" he replied, extending his hand.

"I'm fond of poetry," observed the inspector, with quiet humor. "I'm afraid I'll have to take a look at them!"

Robin watched his visitor straighten out the crumpled papers, watched, too, the smile which passed across his face as he read to himself the opening lines of the new poem he had brought with him to Alston Manor ostensibly as a favor to Lady Dorothy, but really for the especial benefit of Lady Gwendolen. He could see the movement of the inspector's lips as he read the line: "I walk with my lady in her garden. . . ." And in that moment he knew he was capable of murder; for when he saw the amused smile broaden on the inspector's face he longed to slay him. To Robin it was desecration. Hadn't he composed that poem with Lady Gwendolen in mind? As the thought of her returned, he felt the humiliation of his position anew. There was no actual fear yet; only a deep feeling of abasement.

The inspector put the poems in his pocket after he had curiously perused them. Robin was terrifically annoyed.

"I must have those poems," he again insisted. "They are the only copies I have."

"Don't let their safety disturb you. I assure you they will be as carefully looked after as you could desire."

Robin wondered what the slight insinuation in the inspector's voice could portend. Surely his innocent love poems could not be construed as having any connection with the grim tragedy enacted at Alston Manor.

Inspector Deemer, having pocketed the poems, continued his search of Robin's pockets. He was only able to unearth fourteen shillings in money; there were also several small books and weekly papers jammed into the deep pockets. He came to the last one, on the right side. After bringing forth numerous crumpled papers of one sort and another, his hand struck something small, but cold and hard. He grasped it eagerly.

It was a key. There was no doubt in the inspector's mind that it was the key to the fatal room at Alston Manor. He turned abruptly to Robin, who was watching him fascinated.

"Where did you get this?" he demanded.

Robin bent to look closer. For an instant he was mystified. Where had he got that key? Then it all came back to him. The wild idea of revenge, the locking of the door, the escape through the window, the chuckling over the consternation of the others when they discovered his departure. In his absorption in the adventure, he must have absentmindedly slipped the key into his pocket. At any rate, it was extracted from there by the inspector.

"It is the key to the little room at Alston Manor," said Robin quietly.

The expression of satisfaction on the inspector's face disconcerted Robin more than any of the unpleasant events which preceded it. He felt a desperate need of telling the whole story of his wild escapade to another human being. He was overwhelmed with this need for confession. He placed a restraining hand on the arm of the astonished inspector and half-pushed him into a chair, drawing the only other one close up beside him. Before the inspector could protest, he was pouring his tale of nocturnal adventure in lightning and rain into not unwilling ears. He spoke rapidly and never stopped for breath until he had reached the conclusion.

Then Robin took out his handkerchief and wiped his forehead, which had become covered with perspiration during the recital. The inspector drew a long breath and whistled softly. Robin looked at him curiously. He had put his whole heart into the telling of his last night's adventures. He was determined to give a ring of truth to what was, in any case, nothing but the unvarnished truth. How successful he had been he did not wait long to discover.

"Take the advice of an old man, my boy," the inspector was saying kindly. "I've taken a fancy to you, and on principle I don't like to see young fellows mixed up in such messes. So take my advice. Don't tell that crazy yarn again. No one will believe you . . . unless it's another poet chap, like yourself," he added with an attempt at humor.

But Robin was beyond the appeal of mirth. He felt crushed; crushed as he had never been before in his checkered life. He had put his whole soul into the story, and even the inspector, who was obviously kindly disposed toward him, did not believe a word of it. There was no use. He was as good as hanged. He felt it in every bone.

The friendly pat of the inspector on his bowed shoulders hardly stirred him. He rose as one in a trance. His senses all seemed to be dulled. He no longer had any sang-froid. He could barely comprehend what was going on, as he descended the familiar stairs and stepped into the sunlight of the radiant June morning. The luxuriant leaves of the majestic trees of the old square swayed in the fitful breeze. He followed the inspector automatically around the iron fence, which railed in the square and down the short street, past the small corner shed where the foundling boys gather for their orchestral practice, to the taxi stand on Guilford street. Here Inspector Deemer bundled him into a waiting vehicle and, following him, they were whisked away to Victoria.

When Robin and Inspector Deemer alighted from the train at the village station, a small, slight man, with a straw-colored moustache and bushy eyebrows of the same shade under which deep-set, hazel-brown eyes peered searchingly at the young poet's face, briskly approached the newcomers. They were the only passengers who had come by that train, and Robin could not help noticing that they were the cynosure of all eyes on the station platform. The stationmaster and several villagers, who had heard of the happenings at the manor, were lounging about hoping to catch a glimpse of Robin.

"We have a car here to take you to the manor," the wiry little stranger was saying to Inspector Deemer. "Come along. This way."

Robin followed obediently at the side of the inspector. He wondered who the stranger was. Probably some one connected with the manor, he decided as he stepped into the same limousine which on the afternoon before had brought Lady Dorothy and him from London. How different were his feelings now! It was like a nightmare. He couldn't get over the absurd notion that it was all a dream from which he would presently awake to find himself safe and snug in his bed at Mecklenburgh Square; thinking out, perhaps, a new poem. But he was beyond poems now.

He couldn't bear to look out of the open window at the same scenes which yesterday had filled him with such delicious expectations. Then he was looking forward to three days near the girl he loved; now he was returning as the suspected murderer of her brother. It was terrible! But that this was his present status Robin could have no doubt. He might as well face the facts, he told himself again and again. He didn't intend to whine. They could hang him if they liked; he was resolved not to whimper. He'd show them all he was a man, even if he was a poet, too!

He heard Inspector Deemer's voice and looked up. For the first time he noticed that the small man, whose sandy hair was so thin that it showed a bald spot on the top of his head and whose fingers were darkly discolored by continuous smoking, was in the car with them. Not a little surprised, he was even more astonished when he heard Inspector Deemer say:

"Let me present Inspector Linscott, Mr. Smith. He is to have charge of the affair, and you will have to tell your story to him."

Robin detected in the kindly voice a plea. He knew the plea was to tell the truth. That the inspector had not believed a word of his last night's adventures, Robin was sorrowfully aware.

"I can only tell him what I told you," he returned stubbornly. "It is the truth."

"It's the truth we want, my boy," said the new inspector heartily.

Robin wondered if he looked so absurdly young as to seem a boy. They both had assumed a fatherly attitude at once. Perhaps they thought he was feeble minded and were sorry for him. That was probably it, he told himself scornfully.

50 EMPLOYES HURT IN $1,000,000 BLAST

Explosion in Los Angeles Garment Building Laid to Labor Troubles.

TWO IN SERIOUS STATE

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Fifty garment workers were injured and property damaged $1,000,000 today in an explosion which police attributed to sabotage growing out of labor trouble.

The eleven-story Garment Capital Building was shattered by a blast on the fifth floor shortly after hundreds of men and women workers had entered the building.

Only two victims were seriously hurt, the others being sent home after emergency treatment. Forty-four persons were treated at the police receiving hospital for cuts from flying glass. Wounds of others, whose names were not taken, were dressed at the scene.

Red Leaders Tricked.

Fire flashed through the upper floors immediately after the blast, the shock of which caused damage to a number of buildings in the vicinity.

The building has been under police surveillance since a strike was declared by the International Garment Workers Union seven weeks ago.

Activities of Communist leaders in the strike were reported to the congressional committee investigating communism here last week. Police reports at that time said Communists had fomented the strike and then gone to work as strike breakers. Workers and police have clashed several times in the past month.

Glass Showers Streets.

Police chemists were seeking to analyze traces of a heavier-than-air gas found between the fifth and sixth floors. They said the gas was similar to gas left by TNT.

The blast occurred at 7:26 a. m., just as employes of the building's two score garment-making firms filed in. Elevator shafts were twisted, inner concrete walls blasted and a sheet of flame engulfed the upper floors, flashing through broken windows.

Streets were showered with broken glass from buildings four blocks around, and other nearby manufacturing buildings suffered large losses in damaged stocks, fixtures and equipment.

Check on Communists.

First investigations produced eye-witness testimony that the blast occurred when Irving Chavin, Mexican youth, lighted a cigarette as he stepped off the elevator at the fifth floor. Hyman Schulman, Chavin's employer, who left the lift with him, simultaneously pulled a burglar alarm switch as was his daily habit.

District attorney's detectives expressed belief plotters cognizant of Schulman's daily act had filled the fifth and sixth floors with highly explosive gas, planning for its detonation by the switch spark. Sections of linoleum were said by police to have the odor of T N T. Rex Welch, police chemist, said 24 hours would be required to determine this theory definitely.

Police admitted they were puzzled how enough illuminating gas could have leaked into the rooms from tiny gas pipe lines to cause such a blast.

District attorney's investigators began a check of reports Communists had been loitering about the building for several days.

SCENE OF $1,000,000 BLAST

Associated Press Telephoto.

Telephoto from Los Angeles, Calif., showing police and firemen rescuing victims of the explosion in the Garment Capital Building in Los Angeles, which injured more than 50. It is feared some of the injured may die. Police investigating the accident believe that the explosion was caused by the ignition of heavier-than-air gas in the fifth and sixth floors. They think it was deliberately planned.

Behind the Screens

—With NELSON B. BELL—

THROUGH the courtesy of Mr. Stephen T. Early, of the Paramount Sound Newsreel, I am in possession of a copy of a radio address which he delivered over the air from Washington on Wednesday of this week and to which this column found it impossible to listen-in.

During the course of his remarks—which, incidentally, covered the development of the newsreel from its meager beginning to its present high estate as a vital program unit, in comprehensive and at the same time succinct fashion—I note that Mr. Early quoted at some length from a talk previously made by George Akerson, secretary to the President, at a recent convention of Paramount. Mr. Akerson said, in part:

"As one who is in the very center of affairs in this the greatest nation in the world, the President is naturally interested in what people are doing. But he himself is circumscribed. He can not get very far away from his own office. He is like the proverbial goldfish himself. Everyone looks at everything he does. He can not be the natural observer that he would so often want to be. He must depend upon one of the products which you men sell the public, namely, the newsreel.

"It is no secret and, if it were, it would be well to tell it. The President of the United States is one of the greatest devotees of the newsreels in America. If he were permitted to go into the average movie houses for say two shows a week, he would never be satisfied if he did not see the newsreel. He would so time his going. I have accompanied him on such excursions in many cities of this land in those peaceful days before he was named as the Nation's Chief Executive."

While this is no more interesting than much else Mr. Early had to say, it does suggest the thought that President Hoover, by viewing the newsreels, as he does, in the seclusion of the White House, misses a great deal of the "kick" he surely would derive from viewing them in a theater where at the same time he would be able to estimate something of the degree of enthusiasm with which the people are reacting to his administration of the Nation's affairs.

He would find, I think, that of late weeks his popularity—judged solely on the basis of the applause that greets his appearance on the screen—is increasing. He would be able to perceive, too, that a President is never so popular while he is in the White House as he is a short time after having moved out. I say this having in mind the simultaneous appearance of President Hoover and former President Coolidge on the speaker's platform of the American Legion convention in Boston.

On that occasion it seemed to me that Mr. Coolidge had slightly the better of the applause—just as Mr. Hoover will have the edge a couple of years after he has been succeeded by some one else and they happen to meet in front of the cameras and microphones that Mr. Early will have there waiting for them.

Owing to circumstances over which Managing Director Hardie Meakin had no control of himself—as it was once so elegantly and expressively put—the Roxy Ballet from the Roxy Theater, New York, will not appear at the local Fox Theater next week, beginning Friday, October 24, as was originally planned. The engagement has been postponed to a later date, of which definite announcement will be made in due course.

If Patricia Bowman, premiere danseuse, visits the home folks now, it will, unfortunately, have to be on her own, and not as a happy privilege encountered unexpectedly in the line of duty.

That trick double-show at the Fox last Thursday night, by the way, when "Liliom" and "Up the River" both were screened for one price of admission, attracted a capacity house to the last performance, a large majority of whom remained for the complete showing of the prison comedy being shown as the current attraction.

Our old friend "Bill" Ferguson, a high-pressure executive of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer home office staff in New York, flew into town again the other day to light a carload of red fire in honor of the world premiere of "A Lady's Morals" at the Columbia today. Fergy has got himself all steamed up over the Grace Moore debut, and in his excitement finds railroads utterly inadequate to keep him properly lathered. Nothing but trimotored planes will do to keep up with the Ferguson enthusiasm and impatience to get going.

He flew down from New York a week ago, flew back the next day, flew down again this week, and has been flying around the Columbia ever since, even going so far last night as to embellish the lobby with a lot of atmospheric doohickles and pizziwiddles after that night football game out at the Griffith Stadium, which he attended under the impression, probably, that Johnny Mack Brown was in it!

Speculation has again been aroused as to the future activities of William Fox, supposedly serving as adviser to the board of the company bearing his name, but now operating under the presidency of Harley L. Clarke, by his seeming partnership with H. L. Gumbiner in the erection of a $2,500,000 theater in Los Angeles.

Fox is reported to own the ground on which the new picture house stands and to be in direct control of the office building of which it will be a part. Those who remember vividly into what a Colossus he grew from beginnings far more modest in the East are not so sure!

Color films, which took it on the chin as a result of the manner in which they were dumped on the market last season, may be expected to experience a decided renaissance during the year of 1930-31 in the opinion of a number of important motion picture producers. Steady improvement in the coloring process, plus a realization that color must be used with what may otherwise be termed "quality product" if it is to be successful, will be contributing factors, it is expected.

Instead of being utilized as a final embellishment of production already deserving to be ranked as pictures of superlative merit, color, during the brief period of its indiscriminate use was employed principally to pull bad films out of the fire.

That is all going to be changed now and "Whoopee" is the picture that is being generally credited with the sudden change of front on the part of the moguls.

Oh, Mr. Hays, is it all right with you that "A Lady Surrenders" "A Lady's Morals?"

Court Will Decide On Kosher Product

McMahon Faced With Case of Alleged Improper Substitution.

Judge John P. McMahon is faced with the problem of deciding what constitutes Kosher meat as a result of a case brought before him in Police Court yesterday.

Samuel Goldberg, proprietor of a meat stall in the Fourteenth street Arcade Market, was charged by Food Inspector Charles Staub, of the Health Department, with selling ordinary corned beef as Kosher meat. Goldberg denied that he sold the meat with the understanding that it was certified a Kosher product, but said that many people came to his stall and asked for meat like Staub bought thinking it was rightly called "Kosher ham."

The case was continued until October 29 to allow counsel for the defense to bring to court a lawful definition of Kosher meat. This is the first case which has been tried under a recent law that Kosher products must be certified by the rabbi who prepared the meat for consumption.

Woman Killed as Navy Seaplane Strikes Boat

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—A woman was instantly killed and a man seriously injured today when a Navy seaplane was said to have struck a fishing boat in Pensacola Bay. Mrs. Annie Lee Edgecomb, mother of five small children, was dead when rescuers reached the overturned boat. Alfred G. Simmons was taken to a hospital in a critical condition.

Simmons said the seaplane landed close by the boat, taxied toward it, and a pontoon struck his craft. The plane flew away before he could get the number of it. Officials at the naval flying station here were investigating the crash.

One Pay Roll Snatched, But Gunmen Miss Two

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Three gunmen this afternoon held up two men and a woman carrying three pay rolls, but succeeded in getting only one of them containing approximately $2,200 before escaping.

Simon Pansey, Samuel Abrams and Evelyn Pansey, employes of three concerns, all with quarters in the same building, were returning from the Industrial Trust Co. when the men drew pistols and snatched the bag from Abrams. The other two raised such a lusty shouting the robbers fled, firing as they went.

BOB'S RECORDS READ FOR FRAUD EVIDENCE

Quiz Into Missing Official's Ventures Is Prompted by Investor's Complaint.

SECURITIES LIST SHRINKS

New York, Oct. 17 (A.P.). — The business ventures of Charles V. Bob, capitalist, missing nine days, were scrutinized today by Federal, State and county authorities for possible evidence of mail fraud and manipulation in the promotion of stock.

The United States Attorney's office received a complaint from an unnamed investor in stock of Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., and promptly issued subpenas for any records, pamphlets, letters or financial statements forwarded through the mails by the firm. Bob is chairman of the Board of Metal and Mining Shares, an investment trust.

Assistant Attorney General Washburn, who, as head of the State Bureau of Securities, has been investigating the affairs of Metal and Mining Shares, launched a new investigation into sales of stock of the Consolidated Chromium Corporation, another Bob enterprise. It was his belief, he said, that Bob put through transactions on New York Produce Exchange through dummy customers. Washburn has asserted investors have lost $6,000,000 through various Bob enterprises. These new complications in the affairs of the financier, who has not been seen since he parked his airplane in the municipal hangar at Chicago a week ago last Wednesday, were accompanied by an announcement by Frank J. Meehan, in charge of trust investigations for the attorney general. This announcement said that the sworn list of securities owned by Metal and Mining Shares showed a shrinkage of $438,184 in value since the last audit of the company's books, June 30, 1930.

Meehan said that the audit on June 30 listed the value of assets as $6,318,954, but that their present value was $5,880,770. He started to check through supoenaed bank records to learn whether the corporation actually owns $5,880,770 worth of securities and to determine how much of it has been posted as collateral for loans.

All evidence gathered by the Bureau of Securities has been placed in the hands of District Attorney Crain, who assigned an assistant to prepare evidence for presentation to a grand jury. The evidence so far turned over to the District Attorney, Washburn said, indicated wholesale juggling of the accounts of Metal and Mining shares, distribution of its assets among other enterprises promoted by Bob, forging of the minutes of its Board of Directors and the declaration of dividends which never had been earned.

Smythe Will Continue As Ancillary Receiver

Objections of certain creditors of Prince & Whitely, New York brokers, who suspended business several days ago, to the appointment of Bernard A. Smythe, former local branch manager of the company, as ancillary receiver of assets in the District of Columbia were overruled yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court by Justice Jennings Bailey.

Objecting creditors had asked that a disinterested person be named as receiver, and were represented by Attorney Lawrence J. Heller. Other creditors and the firm itself, through Attorneys Wilmer H. Wilmer and Dion Birney, opposed any change in the personnel of the local receivership, pointing out that Mr. Smythe already had posted a $100,000 bond for the faithful performance of his duties.

AL CAPONE'S GRAFT PAY ROLL IS SEIZED

Old "Quashed" Indictment of Scar-Faced Gangster Will Be Pushed Again.

OFFICERS ARE QUIZZED

Chicago, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The reputed graft payments record of "Scarface" Al Capone's Northwest Side beer boss were seized in a Loop hotel raid today.

The beer boss, Frankie Lawler, was arrested, along with his wife. On him were found the records said to show payments to detective squads and policemen. One item was a $27.50 donation to a church.

There was another blow aimed at the Capone forces. The business men's crime committee dragged out of the "quashed" heap an old indictment charging the scar-faced gang leader with complicity in the murder several years ago of William McSwiggin, an assistant State's attorney. The State's attorney's office planned to seek a new indictment.

The recent disappearance of an "arrest sheet" from the detective bureau, found later in a Southside Capone stronghold, was investigated by the grand jury.

Police Officials Quizzed

Acting Chief of Police John H. Alcock, Capt. John Ryan, deposed as deputy sheriff of the detectives after the disappearance, and Sergt. William Balswick, who prepared the list, were quizzed by the jurors. None of the three would make any statement, but it was said Alcock termed Ryan's conduct "neglectful."

Danny Stanton, "public enemy," was ordered extradited to Wisconsin to stand trial for the alleged murder of Jack Zuta, Northside vice monger, at Delafield, Wis. Stanton, head of Capone's union labor department, failed to prove to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's satisfaction that he was in Chicago at the time of the slaying.

The attorney general ruled that the return of George "Red" Parker, another "enemy," to a cell at Pontiac Reformatory for violation of parole was legal.

Gun Numbers Destroyed.

Efforts to trace a sawed-off shotgun seized in the raid on Lawler's hotel room revealed to Col. Calvin Goddard, ballistics expert, that the numbers had been destroyed with acid.

This fact, Goddard said, indicates criminals have learned that more than a file is necessary to combat scientific criminology.

The pistol used to slay Alfred (Jake) Lingle was traced to the George (Bugs) Moran gang through its serial number. The numbers had been filed off, but an acid treatment brought them out.

Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the State's attorney's office, said Lawler admitted some of the items in the records seized reported bribes.

Imperial Parley Ends First Phase

Disarmament Policy Kept Before Conference for Agreement.

London, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The chief delegates to the imperial conference today completed their preliminary discussions of the whole program of problems confronting the British commonwealth of nations. Between 60 and 70 questions have been referred to committees, some buried deep in red tape, others kept open for public view.

One of the latter is disarmament. The delegates are coming together on this subject, with Maurice Dupre, Canadian solicitor general, at their head. The British draft of the convention of disarmament, as submitted to the League of Nations, preparatory disarmament commission, found "a large measure of agreement" on its general principles. The preparatory commission meets at Geneva next month.

The delegates have agreed to carry it forward for favorable action. Emerging from that consideration, they will attend tomorrow the big army review at Aldershot.

DECISION RESERVED IN THEATER RAZING

Opposition to Demolition of Poli's Aired on Behalf of Three Lessees.

U. S. DENIES VIOLATION

Efforts of Sylvester Z. Poli and Lee and Jacob Shubert, theatrical producers, to estop the proposed razing of Poli's Theater, which is owned by the Government, were aired yesterday at length in District of Columbia Supreme Court, the result being that Justice Jennings Bailey reserved decision.

Mr. Poli and the Shuberts, in their petition, set out that they have a lease on the property which still has a number of years to run, and that the terms of the lease were violated when the Government entered into a contract for the demolition of the structure. The suit was directed against Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and H. Herfurth, Jr., Inc., which has the contract to demolish the building.

Secretary Mellon, through United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, defended the action of the Treasury Department in awarding the contract, specifying that at the time the Government purchased the building and entered into a lease with the plaintiffs that it was specified that the lease should terminate at any time that the Government needed the property. Due notice was served on the plaintiff that the building was desired, Mr. Rover asserted, and argued that the suit should be dismissed. He also stressed that the suit was brought against the United States, as represented by Secretary Mellon, without the permission of the Government.

Attorneys Benjamin Slade, William Klein, W. E. Leahy and W. J. Hughes, jr., appeared for the plaintiffs.

The Poli Theater, which is situated on the quadrangle between Pennsylvania avenue, E, Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets northwest, is to be razed by the Government to make way for development of the new Federal building program.

Sheriff Faces Dry Indictment.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Sheriff William Collins, of Okeechobee County, surrendered to Federal authorities here today on charges of violating the prohibition law. He had been indicted on two counts. Bond of $1,000 was set by United States Commissioner George Short. Collins declined to comment on the charges and Federal officers refused to discuss them.

CHAMBER ENROLLS 424 NEW MEMBERS

Drive Concluded by Banquet; Final Figures Expected to Be Higher.

HOPES ARE EXCEEDED

Going over the top with 424 new members, the Washington Chamber of Commerce membership drive was concluded yesterday with a luncheon at the Washington Hotel. The new memberships are expected to exceed 500 when the final reports flow in.

Chamber of Commerce officials were highly optimistic over the results of the drive, it being learned on good authority that the highest hopes were for 400 new members. Charles W. Darr, president of the chamber, congratulated the team workers in a speech made at the luncheon after Rudolph Jose, chairman of the expansion program and vice president of the chamber, announced the new memberships. The final reports were compiled by Col. E. G. Bliss.

Yesterday was a record one for the drive, 134 new members being enlisted. The Washington Gas Light Co. Team, led by Capt. A. Ewaldson, obtained the highest number of new memberships while the women's team, captained by Mrs. Ada C. Payne, stands second.

The winning teams will be awarded prizes at the annual meeting of the chamber of commerce next Tuesday night at the Mayflower Hotel. The 400-odd new members will be formally accepted as members of the chamber by the membership committee and the executive committee today.

The drive just completed is the first step in the five-year expansion program, the goal of which is 6,000 new members, according to Mr. Darr. A membership drive will be held each year.

Heflin's Son Fined On Drunk Charge

Senator's Namesake Stays Night in Atlanta Jail Following Arrest.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—J. Thomas Heflin, jr., son of United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, was fined $10 and costs in police court here today on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was released from jail a few hours later when his fine was paid.

Heflin was arrested in a downtown hotel shortly after last midnight, and failing to furnish bond, he spent the rest of the night in jail. He was arraigned this morning and entered a plea of guilty. Police did not send him to the city stockade where prisoners are assigned to work, since they had been advised that relatives from Heflin's home town, Lafayette, Ala., were en route here to pay the fine and costs, amounting to $12.

His arrest was made on complaint of a hotel detective who told officers the young man was creating a disturbance and was under the influence of liquor. Heflin was taken to the police station and admitted his identity.

Salesman Files Bankruptcy Plea.

WINNERS IN RADIO AUDITION SELECTED

Miss Florence M. Yocum and Leonard Davis Are Chosen.

BOTH FORMER WINNERS

District of Columbia winners in the fourth annual radio audition under the auspices of the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia were announced yesterday by Dr. Albert W. Harned, chairman of the local committee. Miss Florence Marguerite Yocum was the winner among the women singers and Leonard Davis among the men. Miss Yocum won the 1929 audition in Washington, while Mr. Davis was a 1927 winner.

Second honors went to Miss Ina Holtscheiter and Charles Edwin Steffe. Miss Yocum, who sang the waltz song from "Romeo and Juliet," was singer No. 6, and Miss Holtscheiter, who was singer, No. 4, sang the Aria from "Louise."

The men's winner sang the Prologue from "Pagliacci" as singer, No. 3, and Mr. Steffe, who was singer, No. 5, offered "Vision Fugitiva," from "Herodiade."

Awards in the audition were made by combining the votes of the radio audience and those of the professional judges. Both Miss Yocum and Mr. Davis will receive silver medals and will go to New York City as guests of the Atwater Kent Foundation as representatives of the Capital in the Northeastern District Audition.

From this group of singers, including the Middle Atlantic and New England States, one young man and one young woman will be selected to compete with winners from four other geographical districts for $25,000 in cash awards and ten musical scholarships offered by the foundation.

He will laugh till he cries at the silliest puns
And he whoops when he sees a cartoon,
So comic artists adore him
But yet seldom draw him,

G. W. AND SOUTH DAKOTA PLAY TO 0-0 TIE UNDER LIGHTS; VETERAN W. MARYLAND TEAM CHOICE OVER G. U. TODAY; ARMY, CARNEGIE AND PENN FAVORED TO WIN BY LITTLE

GEORGETOWN'S LINE WEAKNESS IS FEAR; 20,000 TO SEE GAME

Hilltop's Conquerors of 1929 Boasting Many Veterans.

Maczees, Injured, Is Replaced in Back Field by Bozek.

GEORGETOWN faces another and the hardest of a series of early tests this afternoon when it comes to grips with the highly touted and undefeated Western Maryland eleven in Baltimore's municipal stadium, beginning at 2:15 o'clock.

More than 20,000 spectators, one-fourth Washingtonians, are expected to be on hand to witness what seems certain of developing thrilling football.

Georgetown, like its foe, has escaped defeat thus far this season, but it will enter the game the under dog, a circumstance that is the reverse of that of 1929 when these same teams met on the Hilltop with Western Maryland winning 7 to 0.

A veteran team carries Western Maryland colors, a team that not only retains most of last year's regulars but which in addition boasts of a stellar sophomore recruit, one Harold Koppe, 184-pound line plunger and defensive bulwark. Georgetown, on the other hand, is missing several 1929 line veterans and its replacements admittedly do not measure up to the standard of the graduated players.

Weakness in Line Feared by Mills.

By nightfall, local fans will know whether the pessimism of the Georgetown head coach, Tommy Mills, is justified. Mills, during the last few days, has predicted a Hilltop defeat. Weakness in the line and a lack of reserve strength are the factors Mills points to as the basis for his opinion.

Mills last night declared that only a superhuman effort will gain victory for his team.

"We've got to show the very highest degree of fighting spirit to win this game," he said.

Western Maryland packs a potent attack and an almost impenetrable defense. At least that is the description given by many critics who have watched the Green Terrors in action.

Terrors Boast Many Stars.

Coach Dick Harlow's team has such established stars as Paul Bates, a popular nominee for all-America ranking as an end; Ludwig "Tiny" Pincura, a giant tackle, who is as fast as a bantamweight; George Ekaitis, a quarter back, who seldom errs in field generalship; Floyd Doughty, fleet half back and highly proficient safety man, and, not the least valuable, Harold Koppe, sophomore full back, who is credited with making the Westminster eleven even stronger than it was last year.

The Georgetown freshmen, using Western Maryland plays in practice, have had little trouble scoring against the Millsmen. It was the sorry showing of the varsity against the freshmen last Wednesday that steeped Mills in gloom.

Georgetown's best chance of winning, according to those who have seen Western Maryland, lies in its aerial attack. If there is any weakness in the Terror defense it will be found overhead, they say.

Passers Plentiful In Back Field.

With Johnny Scalzi, Johnny Bozek, Dick Danieu and Mancell Gillis in the back field, Georgetown has a plentiful supply of accurate passers for such an offense. Bozek was named last night to start after it was determined that Bill Maczees, whose lip was badly cut in practice, could not under any circumstances get into the game.

In anticipation of a Western Maryland aerial assault, Mills and his assistants, Colrick and Smith, have been tightening up the Hilltop pass defense among intensive preparatory efforts this week.

Besides the Bozek-Maczees change at left half back, Mills has made a shift in the Georgetown line. Ed Katalinas will start at left tackle in place of Bill Slezak. Aurel Tremblay, right guard will start in spite of an injured ankle, this being announced at a late hour yesterday.

A victory over Western Maryland undoubtedly will place Georgetown on a par with Lou Little's 1929 team, but in the event of a defeat it will be said that Georgetown is in for a comparatively poor season. There are some observers who predict a Georgetown triumph by two or three touchdowns. Whether they are unduly optimistic or Mills is unduly pessimistic will be answered some time around 5:30 this afternoon.

Fletcher Will Assist McCarthy With Yanks

New York, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Arthur Fletcher, former manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, again will act as a coach for the New York Yankees next season. Joe McCarthy, newly appointed Yankee manager, announced Fletcher had accepted terms for the 1931 season. Fletcher has been a Yankee coach since the 1927 season.

Gallaudet Faces Test Against Delaware U.

Much about the real strength of the Gallaudet College Football Team will be known after the Blues meet Delaware University this afternoon in Newark, Del. In two games thus far Coach Teddy Hughes' outfit has not been particularly extended, although it had to travel at a lively pace last Saturday to hold a lead against American University.

The current edition of Blues are said to be the strongest that has represented Gallaudet in football in many seasons. There is plentiful experienced talent available and a reliable group of reserves.

Johnny Ringle, 180-pound half back, is the main reliance of the Blues. He can do almost anything that might be asked of a ball carrier. Delaware is reported to be much stronger this year than last. The Blue Hens held George Washington last Saturday to a 9-8 count.

American U. Eleven Invades High Point

Coach Walter Young's American University eleven will be trying to return to the win column this afternoon when it engages the High Point College team in High Point, N. C. Victorious in their first two games, the Eagles met defeat last Saturday at the hands of Gallaudet.

The Gallaudet game cost American dearly in the form of an injury to Fred Johnson, blocking halfback, who now is out of commission for the season. Reds Olsen, who hasn't yet recovered from a broken hand, will step into Johnson's place. Young is pressed for capable reserve material.

Little was known of High Point by Young prior to the Eagles' departure yesterday morning. The American U. mentor did however, express confidence that his team would put in a strong bid for the decision. He gave them plenty of rest before packing them onto the rattler in hopes that they would revert to their winning form of the early season.

Mrs. Moody to Forego South American Trip

San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, women's tennis champion, today affirmed her intention of remaining in California for the next few months and playing only exhibition tennis.

She set at rest published reports she had intended playing in matches in South America, saying she had received an invitation too late to accept.

"I understand reservations were made for me on a steamer," she said, but they were made without my knowledge pending my acceptance or declining of the invitation."

Mrs. Moody is to play an exhibition match in Stockton, Calif., next week.

COLLETT AND VAN WIE IN FINALS

Title Defender Downs Helen Hicks in Women's Golf.

LOS ANGELES COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Peerless match play golfer and coolest of them all when under fire, Glenna Collett, New York City, moved one step nearer her objective—a fifth women's national championship—today with a smashing 5 and 3 victory over Helen Hicks, 19-year-old Inwood, N. Y., star, in the semifinals of the national classic.

Defender of her title and favorite of the crowd, Miss Collett tomorrow will face Virginia Van Wie, Chicago miss, in the 36-hole finals. Miss Van Wie fought her way to the last bracket with a 2-to-1 victory over Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, tournament medalist.

Miss Hicks, most brilliant of the younger luminaries and concededly the longest driver of the women's ranks, found herself in the unusual position of taking second to Miss Collett in shots from the tee today. Outdriven by many yards most of the time, the Inwood girl was continually pressing. She played more second shots out of the rough than is usually the case. She had a 42 for the first nine.

Miss Collett Superior Throughout.

From the first hole to the last, Miss Collett was superior. She won the first two holes with pars 4 and 5, respectively, and was never threatened. She won the third with a birdie 3, but lost the next hole to a par 4.

The next three holes were halved in pars and Miss Collett made it 3 up again with a birdie 5 on the eighth. Miss Hicks won the ninth with a par 3 to cut her rival's lead to 2 up at the turn and her birdie 4 took the tenth to make the count 1 up for the defending champion.

After that it was Miss Collett's show. She won the eleventh with a birdie 3, captured the twelfth with a par 4 and after halving the next hole in par 5, won the fourteenth and fifteenth with birdies 5 and 2 to clinch the match. Her finish on the 140-yard fifteenth was a drive 7 feet past the pin and she holed the putt. Miss Hicks meanwhile sending her tee shot into a trap, but recovering nicely for a 6-foot putt and a par 3.

Neither Mrs. Hill nor Miss Van Wie exhibited remarkable golf, but the latter was the steadier. Usually a fine short game player, Miss Hill was either weak or strong with her irons.

The match was close all the way, with Miss Van Wie holding a 2 up lead at the turn. She made it 3 up at the tenth and the next two holes were halved. Miss Van Wie made it 4 up with a par 5 on the thirteenth, but just when she seemed to have the situation well in hand her opponent rallied to make things interesting again.

Mrs. Hill won back the fourteenth with a birdie 5 and cut her opponent's lead to 2 up when she took the fifteenth with a birdie 3. The next two holes were halved in birdie 4s and par 5s, respectively, Miss Van Wie coasting out with the scores.

Lou Little Makes Forecast Of Day's Important Games

By LOU LITTLE (Head Coach Columbia University).

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—This week-end Harvard, Pennsylvania, Army, Pittsburgh and Penn State, together with Syracuse and Cornell, will receive their initial baptism of heavy fire. This bevy of teams has for the past three weeks combatted weaker opponents, but tomorrow will be the signal to open their big guns and blaze away if they hope to be numbered among the season's contenders for the championship.

Several important contests will take place this Saturday. PENNSYLVANIA journeys to WISCONSIN to enter an intersectional conflict of considerable interest, for Wisconsin is looking earnestly toward the Big Ten championship, and PENNSYLVANIA desires not only to uphold the prestige of Eastern football but is treasuring the possibility of an undefeated season. In defeating Chicago, WISCONSIN has put behind her an encounter wherein she exhibited great strength. PENNSYLVANIA unfortunately hasn't met real opposition in any of her earlier games. Nevertheless, the boys from the Keystone State have experienced hard opposition in their able freshman team which will stand them in good stead for this game. I believe PENN will win.

Harvard Lacks Reserves.

HARVARD and WEST POINT have come along quite gradually—both looking toward Saturday's meeting. HARVARD, handicapped by injuries, has been set back, principally because they needed that valuable asset—reserve strength. I favor ARMY to win this game not only because of their superior strength but because as a unit the WEST POINTERS are more experienced. However, if HARVARD line functions as it is hoped, the cadets will have to work for their laurels.

What of PRINCETON-CORNELL? Bill Roper is having quite a time, as his last Princeton Team is apparently an aggregation lacking experience and reserve material. Bill has a few excellent players, but not enough to make a balanced eleven. Though PRINCETON will gain power with the advance of the season, CORNELL makes her invasion with an already strong, well-balanced team, back, it is said, in her former stride.

PITTSBURGH, SYRACUSE and PENN STATE, an old three-cornered rivalry, will have to display all the old bag holds to remain on the right side of the ledger. PITTSBURGH and SYRACUSE are paired off to-

Eddie Kane, Fight Manager, Dies; Lived in Washington

PETOSKEY, Mich., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Eddie Kane, for nearly a quarter of a century a prominent figure in the world of sports, died in a hospital here tonight after a five-day illness with pneumonia.

Although only 42 years old, he had packed into his career a full quota of that reflected glory that comes to the men behind sport spectacles. Most of his managerial career was allied with the boxing arena, with Mike and Tommy Gibbons and Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, his most famous proteges. He broke with Mandel after the bout of last summer in which Al Singer won the title.

Before invading the boxing game Kane had managed Jake Schaeffer and Willie Hoppe, two of the most colorful and most successful exponents of professional billiards.

Kane gained national notice several years ago when he matched Tom Gibbons to fight Jack Dempsey in Shelby, Mont., for the worlds' heavyweight championship. Gibbons agreed to accept a percentage of the receipts, but they were not sufficient to pay the amount of money guaranteed the champion and Gibbons fought Dempsey for nothing.

He is survived by his father, Frank Kane, of Washington, D. C., and a son, William, 20 years old, of Chicago.

JOE SAVOLDI THREATENS CARNEGIE

Rockne Grooms Star With Titular Hopes Hanging on Game.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The trails of two of the potential national football championship elevens drew closer to a cross-road tonight as the Skibos, of Carnegie Tech, and the Ramblers, of Notre Dame, finished preparations, physical, and possible psychological, for the encounter tomorrow.

No two baseball managers on the eve of a world series contest ever figured and maneuvered more strenuously in efforts to outsmart each other on pitching selections than Knute Rockne and Walter Steffen were doing tonight over their starting line-ups.

Rockne was planning to start his regulars if Steffen starts Carnegie Tech's first string. But if Steffen uses his first-string line and second back field at the start, Rockne wants to do the same thing. The problem was Steffen's as well as Rockne's.

Savoldi Specially Groomed.

Rockne, disregarding his doctor's orders, went on the practice field in uniform today and participated in a dummy scrimmage against Skibo lateral and forward passes. He worked long with "Jumping Joe" Savoldi, who will see plenty of service at full back, polishing up the wandering Italian's defense against passes. Savoldi will be in these plenty, as it was revealed today that Larry Mullins, regular full back, is definitely out of action with his trick knee.

The Carnegie squad took a brisk workout under Coach Steffen's eye at Elkhart, Ind., where it will remain overnight, moving on south Bend at noon tomorrow. No casualties were reported in the Skibo squad, and the Easterners were confident that nothing but the best team in the world had a chance of beating them.

The weather tonight was almost at the freezing point, and the same was promised for tomorrow.

Arcadia Alleys Stage Women's Sweepstakes

The Lorraine Guill Sweepstakes for women bowlers is scheduled for tonight at the Arcadia Alleys, Ralph Fraser, manager, announced last night. Competition for three prizes will start at 8 o'clock. Three games will be rolled by each entrant. A fee of $2.60, which includes payment for the games, will be charged.

FEDERALS TRAVEL.

The G. P. O.-Federals will practice tonight at Seventeenth and B streets in preparation for their game Sunday against the Councilor A. C. in Richmond, Va. Jerseys will be distributed at the practice.

The Feds will leave Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock from Seventeenth and B streets northwest.

C. U. AT BEST FOR CLASH TONIGHT

Loyola Will Invade Griffith Stadium for Battle.

WITH high hopes of dropping their losing ways, Catholic University's valiant gridmen will meet Loyola's Greyhounds from Baltimore tonight in Griffith Stadium, commencing at 8:15 o'clock. It is the first nocturnal appearance of a Catholic U. Eleven in Washington and a crowd of more than 8,000 is anticipated.

For the first time since the opening of the season, the Cardinals will have their full strength on the field. Nick Monaco, left tackle, Johnny Oliver, left half back, and Ed O'Brien, right tackle, all of whom have been nursing injuries during the past two weeks, will take their regular places in the line-up.

While Loyola has won both of its games to date, supporters of the Brookland institution look forward to a triumph, as well as the Cardinals themselves. An improved performance last Saturday against Holy Cross has served to buoy the locals' spirits.

Oliver Ready to Direct Team.

Oliver will be ready to direct the Cards and to do the tossing in a well-drilled forward passing attack. Coach Bergman decided weeks ago to develop an intricate passing offense in view of the fact that his material was too light for the production of a powerful running attack. Bergman, however, has not neglected to bring out all possible strength in the ground offense, and if some of the Cardinals' plays through the line and off the ends are successful, then their overhead thrusts should prove all the more effective when used.

Larry Dellaire, a triple-threat quarter back, and Ryan, right half back, are costars of the visiting team. These two are football veterans in every sense.

Loyola has defeated Washington College, 33 to 7, and lost to Rider College, one of 1929's better minor teams, 7 to 0. The C. U. slate shows three successive losses to the more powerful and versatile teams of Boston College, Franklin and Marshall and Holy Cross.

Catholic Handicapped By Green Squad.

Catholic has been greatly handicapped since the start of training by lack of experienced material, coupled with the introduction of a new system of play. The Cardinals employ a mixture of the Notre Dame and Warner systems, added to which is an original touch from Coach Bergman himself.

passing ace, entered the proceedings, but he failed signally, being thrown for a loss and fumbling on the 15-yard line.

Following the South Dakota thrett of the third period when the visitors drove to the 19-yard line in a series of short gains aided by two penalties against G. W., the home team gave its supporters high hopes for victory, but it wasn' equal to the job. In the final quarter, G. W. was stopped at the 7-yard line.

FIRST PERIOD.

George Washington received and punted after two plays to South Dakota's 30-yard line. South punted 48 yards to the Colonial 23-yard line. Carlin made 10 yards at his right end for a first down. Carter and Carlin ripped off a first down at the left side of the line. Kriemelmeyer punted to the Coyote 24-yard line. South punted to Bagranoff on the G. W. 47-yard line. Bagranoff and Carlin hit off tackle for a first down on South Dakota's 42-yard line. S. D. was penalized 5 yards for being off side. Kriemelmeyer raced to a first down on the 30-yard line. A pass, Carter to Mulvey, took the ball to the 9-yard line, making G. W.'s fifth first down. Coach Pixlee sent Billy Wells, star Colonial quarter back, into the place of Bagranoff. On an attempted pass, Wells was driven back by S. D. tacklers and he fumbled, the ball being recovered by Crakes on the 15-yard line. G. W. was penalized for off side. Qualm made 4 yards in two plunges and then on a fake punt formation hit center for S. D.'s initial first down on the 27-yard line. A long pass failed and South punted to Wells on the G. W. 40. Carter sliced off tackle for 9 yards to the G. W. 49-yard line as the quarter closed.

Score: George Washington, 0; South Dakota, 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Wells made a first down on the enemy 47-yard line. Wells fumbled and Kriemelmeyer punted outside on the 18-yard line. Root on a double pass was tackled by Demas for a five-yard loss. South punted to Wells at midfield. Carlin and Wells made 18 yards between them. Wells fumbled and Crakes recovered for S. Dak. on his 25-yard line. South passed 25 yards to Leverett, who was downed by Demas on the S. Dak. 45-yard line with no other Colonial in his path. Hylated made a first down on G. W.'s 43-yard line. O'Brien for G. W. recovered Qualm's fumble on the G. W. 37-yard line. After an exchange of punts, Carter intercepted South's pass and ran to the S. Dak. 29-yard line before being downed. Kriemelmeyer got 5 at center. Sturtevant missed a long pass. Wells tossed another aerial wildly, and S. Dak. took the ball on downs. Crakes snared a pass from South for a first down on his 40-yard line just before the intermission.

Score: George Washington, 0; South Dakota, 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

Qualm, for S. D., took the kick-off and returned to his 33-yard line. Adkins raced to the two first downs, taking the ball to G. W.'s 46-yard line. Qualm went offtackle for 5. Demas stopped Adkins. Crakes just failed to reach a long pass, but G. W. was offside and the Coyotes gained 5 yards. Adkins plunged over center for a first down on the G. W. 30-yard line. Qualm slipped offtackle for 5. Root got a yard at center. Another G. W. offside offense gave S. D. a first down on the home 19-yard mark. Root

BLIND LANE ROMPS HOME IN MARYLAND-BRED RACE

Only Juvenile In Field Is Winner

Colossal Beaten by 3 Lengths; Azis Runs Third.

Train Fireman Dies as Special Pulls Into Track.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 17.—The Homeland Handicap, for Maryland-foaled horses, all ages, at a mile and 70 yards, was won by the only 2-year-old of the field, the Goodstone Stable's Blind Lane, bay daughter of Blind Play and Silver Lane. She beat the J. E. Davis 3-year-old, Colossal, three lengths. G. L. Stryker's 3-year-old maiden filly, Aziz, was third, the sixteenth time she has been in the money in her career embracing 37 starts.

The time was exceptional for a 2-year-old, 1:43 2-5, a quarter of a second off the record for the distance. Mack Garner kept Blind Lane in front all the way. This remarkable filly will start in the $25,000 Selima Stakes for fillies here on October 25.

Eight started. Rocket Glare, an outsider, was closest to the pace until displaced by Colossal. Fair Beth delayed the start several minutes. Blind Lane was backed to close favoritism, $4.20. The start was almost perfect from the gate. The purse for the event was $1,500.

A shower broke the long dry spell shortly after the race. A large crowd was out for the day's sport.

Backgammon Outruns Maiden Juveniles.

The Sagamore Stable's Backgammon, overhauling Greens, the pacemaker, won the first race, for maiden 2-year-olds, by four lengths from Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Noon Whistle. Royal Mystery was third, far back, and Principo fourth. The time was 1:07 1-5. The winner paid $4.90. The field was 100 to 1 and drew some support, but it should have been 1,000. The start was good for most of the field of 12. Bejshak had nothing to do on the winner except sit still, for he had the best horse by far.

Excitement was caused by the 1,500 who came on the last racing train from Washington when the fireman, J. W. Beck died of heart disease as the train was pulling into the Laurel siding.

K. E. Hitts, Icicle, won the Warrenton Steeplechase, $3,000 added, by two open lengths, defeating the favorite, St. Vernon, ridden by Regan McKinney, in the colors of Thomas Hitchcock. Mrs. Milton W. Holden's Luckite was third and Banner Day fourth. All finished the course.

McKinney challenged strongly in the stretch with St. Vernon. Bell House had a strong grip on Icicle and cleared the last hedge without a bobble and drew away. Arognaut, poorly ridden by Wren, went wide, stumbled, but staid on his feet. The winner paid $7.10. Icicle and Banner Day alternated in leading for the first mile when the Bradley horse no longer was a factor.

St. Agnes Scores by Stretch Rush.

Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords Golden Broom filly, St. Agnes, won the third race, for 2-year-olds, by four lengths. J. F. Schorr's Running Girl was second and P. M. Walker's Fervid third. R. Fischer, who had the mount on St. Agnes, did not get away in front, for Running Girl went out like a streak. But in the stretch, he made amends for tardiness, sending the Jeffords filly through to the front and drawing away, running six furlongs in 1:13 2-5. Garner made his run too late on Fervid.

NOON WHISTLE had a lot taken out of him racing GREENS into submission and hung when challenged. ROYAL MYSTERY wore down the tiring PRINCIPIO. GREENS and UNUSUAL stopped to a walk.

ICICLE, steadied in near attendance of BANNER DAY for the first turn of the field, fenced cleverly, took command after the twelfth jump and, given a mild breathing spell at the last turn, withstood a drive gamely. ST. VERNON suffered slight interference after taking the ninth fence, recovered to move up on the inside at the final turn and closed willingly. LUCKITE, prominent all the way, finished with good courage. BANNER DAY weakened the last half mile.

LAMP BLACK, quickest to settle in his stride, assumed command at once, saved ground for the first half mile, lost command momentarily when he swerved out nearing the furlong pole, came again and outfinished BETTY BEAU. Latter, a keen factor, gained a brief lead, but hung nearing the finish. CRAZY COOT showed a good test and finished gamely. CLEAN PLAY could not menace the leaders.

BLIND LANE went to the front before they had taken a dozen strides and Garner took her under slight restraint on back stretch, she came again to finish full of courage after stalling off a determined challenge from COLOSSAL at the furlong pole. COLOSSAL bore out some in stretch run. The weight told on her at end.

TECH TRAMPLES BUSINESS IN SERIES DEBUT, 39 TO 0

3,200 Watch Champions Triumph

Stenogs Shoot Bolt in First Period; Fumble on 19-Yard Line.

Reichman Scores on 25-Yard Run; Half Time Score, 13-0.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE annual high school series opened yesterday at Central Stadium when 3,200 scholastic fans witnessed an almost brand-new Tech eleven exhibit all the smooth power of its predecessors in defeating Business High in a game which started as a dribble and ended in a deluge of scoring. Final score, 39 to 0.

Sheer man-power had its way yesterday after a brief opening respite during which Business actually maneuvered in the shadows of the Gray's goal posts. Coach Hardell appeared to have a limitless amount of reserve men which he hurled into the fray as the battle wore on. The only changes Coach Woodworth found it possible to make were detrimental to his team in that his best eleven men started the game, and the five or six substitutes were not of a caliber to stop Tech's perennial drive.

Business Starts With Drive.

Business seemed warmed up at the very start of the game, with Hardell's best men opposing them. Bill Duryee, the Stenographers' fleet full back, caught the kick-off and ran 15 yards to midfield. On the next play he tossed well to Plant for 10 yards. Vernon Johnson, diminutive Business quarter back, shattered Tech's line for 7 yards to a first down. Duryee went around end for 10 more. Strasser fumbled on Tech's 19-yard line on a fourth down with about 2 yards to go.

Business had shot its bolt. For the remainder of the game it did not come closer to a tally than Tech's 37-yard line.

Tech settled down here and began working with as much unity as Manual Trainers have perhaps ever shown. The second quarter started with the ball on Business' 25-yard line and Al Reichman sped around end across the goal on a 25-yard run which started the slaughter. Gormley placed the extra point cleanly between the bars.

March Down Field For Second Goal.

Dick Nelson, Sachs and Reichman performed well in advancing the ball from midfield to score Tech's second touchdown. Sachs plunged across. Nelson missed the kick.

Tech was resorting to the most conservative type of rushing. Straight football was the order of the day, with little aerial work. Tech's only complicated attack was the play on which five of their six touchdowns were scored, a partial hidden ball trick, with the ball carrier forsaking interference to skip through gaps in Business' left tackle.

Nelson, Yznaga and Sachs led the way down field to Tech's third tally. Yznaga carried the ball across from the 6-yard line. Nelson again missed the kick.

Score Quickly in Final Quarter.

The final period saw Tech rolling along invincibly. Hatos was off for 30 yards to Business' 12-yard line before a minute of the period had passed. Pisano put it across, while Nelson, as cool as if miles from the tussle, added the extra point with his educated toe. Reichman, on the same old play which rendered Business defenseless, pushed up the score to 33-0 with about half of the final period to play. Gormley kicked the goal. With a few minutes left, Mike Apperti scored another six pointer after Edwards had stepped 34 yards to Business' 18-yard mark. Edwards missed the kick.

The game ended after Nelson intercepted a Business pass in midfield.

St. John's Eleven Bows To Calvert Hall, 12-7

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 17.—In a closely contested battle, Calvert Hall defeated St. John's High, of Washington, this afternoon at Walbrook Oval by a score of 12 to 7.

The work of Biggs, center; Sten, guard, and Lauman, half back, was outstanding for the victors, while Julio, St. John's quarter back, made the only touchdown for his team in the last few minutes of play in a 30-yard forward pass.

Calvert Hall's touchdown came in the third quarter when Blaer, quarter back, and Wright, captain and full back, each succeeded in bucking the ball over the visitor's goal line. While outnumbered in first downs by threes to one, St. John's put up a spirited fight and frequently checked the Calvert Hall ball carriers.

St. John's threatened once in the first quarter when they advanced to Calvert Hall's 15-yard line, but lost the ball on downs. The rest of the game was a seesaw affair with all the scoring coming in the second half. The forward passing of St. John's was their chief weapon of attack and this made them dangerous at all times.

V. P. I. RESTS FOR GAME TODAY

Neal Shifts Line-Up for W. & M. Battle at Richmond.

Special to The Washington Post.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 17.—With a final light workout here this afternoon Virginia Tech's eleven rests tonight near Richmond Stadium, where tomorrow it will go into battle in the seventh football game with William and Mary.

Coach Orville Neal announced shifts in both back field and line tonight due to injuries to veteran players. Bus Hall, sophomore back, is expected to start at left half back in place of Phil Spear, who was hurt in the Vanderbilt game, while Mark Ritter will replace Jan Swart at left tackle. It is unlikely that Spear, half back mainstay and all-State star of the 1929 team, will be able to take part in the battle. Swart's injuries have kept him from the practice field all this week and may keep him also from the game next week with Davidson.

Tech's Line-Up Announced.

Virginia Tech's senior class and cadet band arrived here tonight by special train, prepared to stage their maneuvers on the field tomorrow and pass in review before Gov. Pollard and other dignitaries. Game time is 2:30 p. m.

GLASS HIGH WINNER.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 17. — Glass High, of Lynchburg, this afternoon defeated Salem, 6 to 0, in the first high school conference game for the locals. Glass's ability to break up Salem's passing tells the story, for Salem made eleven first downs to six. Salem outplayed Glass in the middle of the field, but never seriously threatened Lynchburg's goal.

Alexandria Sports

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 17.—The St. Mary's Celtics Football Team will play their second game of the season Sunday afternoon in Baggett's Stadium, opposing the West Arlington Athletic Club, of Baltimore. The Celtics have held several drills this week and hope to eke out a victory over the Oriole City eleven.

An important practice was held this evening with Coach Hayman in coach. Several new candidates have reported for the team.

J. T. Luckett was elected as president of the Potomac Yard Athletic Association at a meeting held last night in the Pythian Temple, on Cameron street. Other officers chosen were E. Spiller, first vice president; J. Rumsey, second vice president; J. Pullman, treasurer; Robert McDonald, athletic director, and Joe Theimer, secretary.

The association plans to enter teams in three sports, baseball, basket ball and football.

Episcopal High School football warriors Saturday afternoon will bid for their fourth consecutive victory on the gridiron when they oppose the Fishburne Military Academy team, of Waynesboro, Va. This game will be played on Horton Field and begins at 3:30 o'clock.

As this is the only attraction in Alexandria, a large crowd is expected.

A sweepstake tournament will be held at the Belle Haven Country Club on Saturday. Over 50 entries are expected. Tom Ryan, club professional, is in charge of the play.

The Virginia Midgets will oppose the Pirate A. C. Sunday in their opening football game on the shipyard field. This contest begins at 1:30 o'clock and is a preliminary to the Virginia-Sixteenth Field Artillery clash.

V. P. I. Frosh Defeat Roanoke Cubs, 22-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 17.—Virginia Polytechnic Institute Freshmen unleashed driving attacks in both halves to open season with a 22-to-0 victory over Roanoke College Freshmen in Miles Stadium today.

Robinson, Tech full back, ran 18 yards through line for first touchdown midway first quarter. With ball on Tech's 21-yard line, after Peachin, sub for Wilson, had intercepted pass by Gilmer at Gobler 12-yard mark, Al Casey, fleet half back, drove through tackle and dodged his way through Roanoke Team for second touchdown. Groth made good both tries for point. Shortly after the opening of the second half Gilmer, Roanoke half back, fumbled the ball behind the goal line as he was about to punt and was tackled for a Tech safety in the dying minutes of the game. Roanoke fumbled on its own 3-yard line and Tech recovered. Jennings, substitute full back, plunged through center for the score.

South Dakota Turns Back Late Threat of Colonials.

was smothered on a reverse and Qualm was thrown for a 2-yard loss. Adkins was downed by Demas for an 8-yard loss. Crakes got his fingertips on a 25-yard pass, but stumbled and dropped it, the Colonials regaining possession on downs on the 30-yard stripe. Adkins cracked center for a first down on his own 49-yard line. South Dakota drew a 15-yard penalty. South punted to Wells on the G. W. 42-yard line. Kriemelmayer punted to Adkins, who was downed on his 27-yard line. G. W. was penalized 15 yards for roughing. Demas blocked South's punt and Kriemelmayer recovered for G. W. on the locals' 47-yard line. Wells ran right end for 12 yards and a first down on the Coyotes' 40-yard line as the quarter closed. Score—George Washington, 0; South Dakota, 0.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Carlin made a beautiful broken field run of 20 yards. Krielemeyer hit center for 6 and Wells got 3 in two tackle smashes. S. D. was penalized for offside, the ball resting on the Coyote 8-yard line. As the crowd pleaded for a touchdown, Carlin slipped on a drive at tackle and lost 3 yards. Wells and Carlin failed at tackle. Qualm intercepted Wells' pass on the 1-yard line and raced to the 23 before being tackled. Qualm was hurt on the play and left the game in favor of Kramer. Kramer streaked around his right end for 15 yards. Mulvey tossed Kramer for a 10-yard toss at left end. S. D. was penalized 5 for offside. South punted 45 yards to Wells, who returned to the S. D. 41. Tice replaced Kramer. South intercepted Wells' pass but when he passed it to a team mate, Root, S. D. was penalized 15. South punted to the G. W.'s 45. Krielemeyer punted to the 3-yard line, a kick of 63 yards. South punted from behind the goal line to Wells, who returned to the S. D. 25. The Colonials tried the line to no avail on two rushes and then Carter gained five on a pass from Carlin. Sturtevant made a great catch of a pass from Carter, taking the ball with a Coyote piling on his back. It was good for 13 yards and gave G. W. the ball on the enemy 7-yard line. Krielemeyer hit guard for 2 yards. He was stopped on the next play. Carlin was thrown for a 3-yard loss and S. D. took the ball on downs on its 8-yard line. South punted to Midfield. A pass by Carlin was grounded. So was another, G. W. losing 5 yards by penalty. Fenion ran 9 when nobody got open for a pass and G. W. had the ball on S. D.'s 45 as the game closed. Score: George Washington, 0; South Dakota, 0.

V. M. I. FROSH BOW TO VA. CUBS, 18-6

Wager, Center, Stars in Clash; Passes Aid Cavaliers.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 17. Pointing the way for the Cavalier varsity in the annual clash with the Cadets at Lexington tomorrow, Virginia's first year eleven made its season's debut by defeating the Virginia Military Institute freshmen here today, 18 to 6.

The Virginia yearlings registered touchdowns in the first, second and third quarters while the lone score of the rats came at the start of the second period.

All tries for extra point failed.

Though outweighed the Cavalier forwards showed up strong on defense. Four times during the second half they forced the Cadets to yield the ball within the 10-yard strip. Capt. Flock scored the first touchdown for the yearlings soon after play started, following a blocked punt behind the Cadet goal line. Two clever passes by Ward, each netting 25 yards, placed the Lexington team in a position to score at the start of the second period. Farrell going through tackle for a touchdown. The yearlings took the lead when Suddath scored in the second quarter and added their final touchdown in the third period. Following a long pass, Baird to Suddath Abramson from Devitt prep, raced 45 yards in the final quarter on a fake punt. Baird and Suddath were consistent ground gainers for Virginia.

Wager starred at center. Law made the longest gain for the Cadets, 24 yards. Farrell also proved a flashy back, and Smith played well at end.

Cumberland Pitcher Sold to Harrisburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 17.—Irvin "Stub" Rase, of Frostburg, pitcher of the Cumberland Colts for the past three years, was sold outright today to the Harrisburg Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League for $500.

Rase's purchase is considered a "break" for the local club and an opportunity for him to prove that he has the stuff to pitch winning ball in a higher class circuit. In 1920 when he won 22 and lost only 5 games his pitching attracted the attention of A. A. minor league scouts, but a deal with Montreal fell through when the local club asked $1,500 for him. The past season Rase started brilliantly, but like all the other players was affected by the dissension that shook the club. He wound up the year with 14 wins and 10 defeats.

Maryland May Use Miller Against St. John's Today

Star Punter Likely to Start Instead of Berger; Johnnies Expect to Upset Foes at College Park.

MARYLAND may make one change in the starting line-up it used against Yale and North Carolina for its game today with St. John's, of Annapolis, at College Park. Play in Byrd Stadium will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Buck Miller, half back, who was a starter last season and who has been nursing a sore shoulder for many weeks, is well again and may be in Berger's place when the Old Liners take the field against the Johnnies. Miller is the best punter on the Maryland squad and will add considerable strength in this department. He was booting the ball 50 yards consistently yesterday.

Berger, though, is certain to see action. He is entirely too valuable as a running back and pass catcher to be kept on the bench, but Maryland needs some one to match the kicking of Willis Lynch, of St. John's, at the outset, at least, and there is where Miller comes in handy.

St. John's Hoping To Score Upset.

St. John's is invading College Park saying little, but Coach Todie Riggs, former Old Liner, and his players, too, feel that they have a fine chance to register an upset. Maryland realizes the game will be tough, but figures it should win.

With Evans and Berger to send in when the occasion arises, Maryland will have two great pinch-hitting backs, both of whom are smart and capable of carrying out any pointers Curley Byrd may give them.

Maryland will have a slight advantage in weight, but not enough to make any real difference. It all will be in the line.

Two Big Games to Hold Spotlight in South Today

Georgia Faces North Carolina at Athens; Alabama Plays Tennessee at Tuscaloosa; Other Important Clashes Listed.

By DILLON GRAHAM.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Before some 50,000 persons in huge stadia at Athens, Ga., and Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dixie's two mighty October football spectacles will be unfolded tomorrow as Georgia faces North Carolina and Alabama opposes Tennessee.

A series of games, including Florida's intersectional challenge to Chicago and Duke's charge against Navy at Annapolis carry importance, but major interest will be directed to Athens and Tuscaloosa contests, which have real bearing on the Southern Conference championship.

Some 40 miles from the scene of battle away from the din of homecoming merrymakers at Athens, Coach Chuck Collins' Carolina Tarheels rested tonight at Gainesville. Their preparations were complete.

Because of the power it showed against Yale, coupled with Carolina's known inferior defense, Mehre's Georgia eleven ruled a slight favorite on the eve of battle, but Carolina supporters carried high hopes of what might happen if a few of Collins' "thousand backs" shook loose.

Alabama and Tennessee face their first real tests Saturday.

Tennessee, rated early in the season as the team to beat for the Southern crown, has been greatly weakened by injuries to McEver, half back, and Hug and Brandt, ends. If volunteer reports that these aces will be on the sidelines are correct, Alabama looks stronger.

Wallace Wade, in his valedictory at Alabama before switching to Duke in 1930, has gone quietly about his work of producing a final machine that will rank with his best of a few seasons back. The Crimson varsity appeared powerful against its first three opponents, and if the drive is continued tomorrow, Tennessee's record of no defeats since 1926 may fall.

Four other conference games are scheduled. Kentucky, with the sensational sophomore quarter back, Ellis Johnson, back in stride, hopes to down Washington and Lee in the General's first loop contest. After absorbing three successive polts from S. I. A. A. elevens, Red Cagle's Mississippi Aggies make their conference debut against the high-scoring Louisiana State Tigers.

An auburn machine, hailed as the strongest Alabama Polytechnic has boasted in recent years, charges against Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets with genuine hopes of a victory over the team Carnegie Tech mauled from one goal post to another last week in Pittsburgh. Virginia Military's Cadets face Virginia's Cavaliers in the twenty-sixth renewal of their gridiron feud.

Culpeper Iron Men Beat Warrenton, 20-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 17.—Playing through two twelve and two ten minute quarters without a single substitution, the eleven "iron men" of Culpeper High won from Warrenton High on the latter's grounds this afternoon, 20-0.

Culpeper scored a touchdown in the first quarter and two in the second and made the extra point on the first two on rushes. Culpeper elected to play the old line-smashing game and off-tackle plays and resorted to the air but once, and then for a substantial gain. Huffman and Bishop, the two giant tackles of the visitors, opened up great holes in Warrenton's line in the first two quarters through which their backs romped. Humphries, at quarter, was the outstanding star for Culpeper

STOCK PRICES LOSE FROM 2 TO 6 POINTS

Scores of Leading Issues Hit New 1930 Lows; Allied Chemical Off 16.

WHEAT AND CORN CLIMB

New York, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Large wedges of selling orders driven into the shaky stock market today split 2 to 6 points from quotations on active shares and broke the general price level to the lowest of the year.

After drifting quietly lower through the forenoon and early afternoon the market was hit heavily by liquidation in the last hour, when 1,000,000 shares changed hands, bringing the total turnover to 2,656,160 shares. The late selling appeared to include large offerings by the supposedly pacified bears, for it reached its peak in the last quarter hour of the session, an interval in which bears are frequently active.

Closing prices were the lowest and scores of issues, including General Electric, General Motors, New York Central, Sears Roebuck, American Water Works, International Harvester and Westinghouse Electric went to new minimums.

Tone Heavy All Day.

Throughout the five hours the tone was decisively heavy and rallying tendencies were negligible. It was obvious that selling was coming from both long and short accounts, although the day's news contained little that could be interpreted unfavorably.

Reports from brokerage houses that insurance companies, among other large holders, were liquidating investment rails, together with further reports of price cutting in the Midcontinent oil field and a general lack of interest in the buying side of the market hardly had a stabilizing effect on sentiment, however, and whatever short selling there was met little opposition.

Stocks moved against the trend of the commodities. Wheat closed about half a cent higher in sympathy with the steadiness of Liverpool. Corn's advances were similar, reflecting bullish weather reports and smaller receipts, while cotton ended a quiet day 1 point higher to 1 lower.

Dun's Review Quoted.

The weekly business reviews were unable to report much indication of a change in either direction. Dun's said the instability of commodity prices continued to have "much influence in maintaining industry in a rather neutral position," although it also stated that although trade movements were still somewhat uncertain, "there is less hesitancy in a number of branches."

The announcement that the White House, where several prominent figures in industry have been recent visitors, saw indications of a business revival bore out some of the week's statistical disclosures, but with improvement to date considerably less than seasonal Wall street holds to its attitude of watchful, hopeful waiting for definite relief.

In the absence of a sustained demand from commerce, money rates are easing. Day loans were offered at 1½ per cent outside the Stock Exchange, which held its own quotation at 2 per cent. Prospects of rather large gold imports in the near future point to continued easiness in money here.

Utilities Are Hard Hit.

Weakness in stocks was distributed without partiality, although the utilities showed the largest average break, just over 8 points in twenty stocks. The composite for the general market slumped 5.7 to 136.3 against the previous 1930 low of 140.

Allied Chemical's loss of 16¾ was the most spectacular, but many prominent shares lost 6, among them Atchison, R. H. Macy, Eastman Kodak, Penney, Ingersoll Rand, Colorado Fuel, Westinghouse and American Water Works. There were 4 to 5 point declines in U. S. Steel, which closed a point above the year's low; Union Carbide, Case, International Harvester, Johns-Manville, Loew's, Standard Gas & Electric, Consolidated Gas, Vanadium, American Can and Gillette. General Motors broke 1¾ to 33⅜ and General Electric 2½ to 51⅝. Stocks losing 2 to 3 points also included Standard Oil of New Jersey, New York Central, Bethlehem Steel, Montgomery Ward, Radio and Sears Roebuck.

Foreign exchanges were again firm, with small changes in the leading European currencies.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Cotton was comparatively quiet in the market here today and prices fluctuated irregularly within a range of 8 or 10 points. Some buying was reported at the opening on relatively steady cables and the outlook for frost in Northwestern sections of the belt but it was supplied by Southern hedging and prices later eased under selling promoted by the weakness of the stock market.

New December contracts after selling up from 10.31 to 10.37, declined to 10.29 and closed at 10.33 compared with 10.32 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at an advance of 1 point to a decline of 1 point.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 1 point with most positions higher in response to steady Liverpool cables and somewhat better reports from the Manchester goods market. The initial demand was promptly supplied with Southern hedging a little more in evidence, however, and the market soon eased off to 10.26 for January or a shade under yesterday's closing quotations. Prices then steadied as offerings from the South tapered off and there was a little buying on the official frost predictions. The official weather details showing that temperatures had worked down to about freezing at two or three points in the Texas Panhandle and northwest Oklahoma may have contributed to the rally which carried March up to 10.73 and the general market about 10 to 5 points at best higher. Offerings then increased with some Wall street and local selling in evidence and the lowest prices were reached along in the afternoon when the market showed net losses of 3 to 6 points with March selling at 10.63. The close was 2 to 3 points up from the lowest on covering.

The week-end figures of the local exchange showing a falling off of about 100,000 bales in the into-sight as compared with last week came in for some comment and may have had a sustaining influence in the late trading.

Liverpool cables said that hedging and liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling and reported a larger business in cotton cloths and yarns in Manchester than for some time past. Exports today 64,233, making 1,797,130 so far this season. Port receipts 97,703, U. S. port stocks 3,182,962.

FOREIGN BONDS RISE AS DOMESTICS DROP

South Americans Continue to Score; Corporation Issues Lose Ground.

RAIL GROUP HIT HARDEST

New York, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Divergent trends marked the course of bonds today.

Foreign bonds, particularly Latin-American, shot upward under the influence of a strong demand that has shown no dimunition throughout the week.

It was a different story with domestic bonds. U. S. Governments were very firm, making further progress toward duplicating their highs of the year, but among corporation issues the preponderance of changes was on the downside. While their movement is influenced principally by conditions in the money market, bonds reflect to some degree any sharp reaction in shares. They did today, particularly railroad issues.

While highest grade issues fluctuated narrowly, second and third grade bonds sold off rather sharply, and stock privilege bonds lost ground. Activity was about the same as previous days of the week, total sales exceeding $11,000,000.

Changes in Latin-Americans.

The gold shipments by both Argentina and Brazil to support their exchange was regarded as a favorable factor in the effort to stabilize conditions in those countries. Virtually every Argentine and Brazilian bond active on the exchange improved, as did those of Uruguay, Peru, Colombia, Chile and Bolivia. Gains of 1 to 3 points were common and in a few instances were as high as 6 and 8.

The European list was well supported. German corporation and municipal bonds again moved up sharply, but the governments were little changed. United Steel Works 6½s, Rhine Westphalian 7s and 6s, Saxon Public Works 7s and 6½s, German General Electric 6½s were up a point or more.

Italian issues were well bought. The Government 7s of 1951 gained ⅞ and Public Utility 7s more than a point. Polish Governments recovered additional ground, the 8s rising 5 points to 79, up 10 from the recent low.

Liberty 1st 4½s Advance.

U. S. Governments continued to attract a fair amount of buying. Liberty 1st 4½s reached a new year's high at 101⅛ and Treasury 4s sold only a small fraction under the best price of the year.

Convertible bonds reacted in sympathy with stocks. American telephone 4½s, Atchison 4½s, Chicago and Northwestern 4¾s, International Telephone 4½s, and Warner Brothers 6s sagged a point each. Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 6s declined 2, and Alleghany 5s of 1950, reacted 3.

Most of the changes in railroad bonds were on the downside and as a group they showed the effect of selling more than utilities. Chicago and Northwestern bonds were weak, dropping 1 to 2 points, with the exception of the thinly traded issues. Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s, Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s, Erie 5s of 1967, Missouri Pacific 5s of 1977, and General 4s, St. Louis Southwestern 5s and Wabash 5s, declined about a point each. Chesapeake & Ohio 5s, Delaware & Hudson 4s, and New York Central 3½s, however, were somewhat improved.

SEPTEMBER'S TRADE FIGURES AT BOTTOM

Despite Seasonal Variation, Industrial Depression Continues, Report.

MARCH RECOVERY SEEN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Not only has industrial production, viewed in the aggregate, failed to expand sharply during recent weeks, but preliminary data indicate that after correction for seasonal variation, September output reached a new bottom on the decline which has been in progress since May, 1929.

As preliminarily computed, the Standard Statistics Co. composite index stood at 97.6 last month, as compared with the final figure of 99.1 for August and 129.9 for September, 1929. Parts of this company's survey follow:

"With automobile operations experiencing a renewed decline, steel activity holding at around 58 per cent of rated capacity and the heaviest season in building construction already passed, the chances for marked expansion in aggregate industrial production during the balance of 1930 are, we feel, unpromising. In steel trade quarters, doubt is expressed that operations will climb much, if any, above current levels between now and the end of the year. Introduction of new models probably will alleviate, but not entirely halt, the usual year-end decline in motor car output.

"Therefore, with continued curtailment in prospect for the winter season, it is our belief that it will be impossible to state definitely that business has turned the corner before March, 1931. Meanwhile, profits of the majority of industrial corporations probably will continue to make poor comparison with those for the corresponding period of the preceding year through the first quarter of next year, at least."

The September statement of Capital Traction Co. will show a gain of nearly $2,000 in net earnings, it was reported yesterday.

New G. C. Murphy Store.

G. C. Murphy Co. has added another new store to its chain of 5 cents to $1 stores, the new unit being located in Pittsburgh. The new store makes a total of 170 units now operated by the company.

Resources of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond at close of business October 15 were $202,297,000, the report of Gov. George J. Seay of that institution showed yesterday. Deposits totaled $67,558,000.

Harry Brisker became connected with the Washington branch of Fenner & Beane, members of the New York Stock Exchange, yesterday. Mr. Brisker is well known in Washington brokerage circles, having formerly been connected with W. B. Hibbs & Co. He is a graduate of Georgetown University and is prominent in Masonic and civic organizations.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Oppenheim Collins.

H. N. L.—I am writing for some information regarding Oppenheim Collins. Are sales falling off?

Answer—Both sales and earnings show a sharp decline this year, which accounts for the stock selling near the year's low. Around 30 the yield is 10 per cent from the $3 dividend. Only a small seasonal improvement in business is anticipated the balance of the year. In the fiscal year ended July 31 last earnings were equivalent to $4.33 per share, and profits for the current fiscal year are calculated at between $3 and $4 a share.

The stock may be classed as a speculative-investment of only fair promise in view of the decline in sales last year to the lowest level in recent years.

Kellogg Switchboard & Supply.

R. V. H.—Please give me an opinion of Kellogg Switchboard & Supply.

Answer—The stock is regarded as a dubious speculation and not suitable for investment. Since this company entered the radio business in 1925 it has experienced unsatisfactory returns, operations last year being carried on at a loss of $524,935. Nothing has been earned on the common since 1926, and net working capital, though still substantial, has been reduced considerably. The stock should be avoided if you are planning on investing.

National Dairy Products.

F. S. T.—Believing National Dairy Products to be in a sound condition, I am thinking of buying the stock. What can you tell me about it?

Answer—Sales for 1930 are estimated at $400,000,000, and earnings for the second six months this year are believed to be showing the same increase over 1929 as they did in the first six months. On this basis, profits of between $4 and $4.25 per share for the twelve months are indicated. Directors have not changed their policy regarding expansion and it is likely that the company will continue to acquire profitable properties from time to time.

Considerable growth in earnings power the first six months was largely the result of recent acquisitions, net income for the period equaling $2.16 per common share as against $1.85. Dividends of $2 and 4 per cent in stock offer an attractive yield for the permanent investor.

Simmons Co.

J. R. S.—Kindly give me your opinion on Simmons Co. stock and what the future prospects are.

Answer—In view of fact that company passed its dividend August 1, last, stock is not to be classified as an investment. It is purely speculative in its present status. Outlook for company none too bright. Sales continue on the decline as a result of loss of profitable contracts. Business has shown a consecutive monthly decline, sales for first seven months of 1930 being off 13 per cent from corresponding months in 1929.

Durant Motors and Others.

Mrs. B. P. C.—Kindly advise relative to the stocks listed below: Liberty National Bank in New York, Durant Motors, Inc., Austin Nichols Co., Inc. What is the outlook for this company?

Answer—As dividends are not being paid by either the bank or the two companies named, they are not to be classified as investments, as no income yield is derived therefrom. There have been a number of recent developments that have attracted speculative attention to Durant Motors, which has made it quite active.

However, it is believed the issue has been the subject of much professional manipulation. For fiscal year ended with April last, earnings of Austin Nichols just barely covered the prior "A" stock dividend of $3 a share. For preceding 12-month period there was a deficit equal to 12 cents a common share. Profits have been affected by chain-store competition. Outlook for company is uncertain.

Associated Tel. & Tel.

Mrs. D. W.—Kindly explain what the Associated Telephone & Telegraph Co. is and what relation it bears to the American Telephone & Telegraph Co

Answer—Company incorporated March 1, 1926, in Delaware, is an alliance of American and British financial and operating interests of long experience in telephone business and electrical industries affiliated with telephone business in United States, Great Britain, the Continent of Europe and various parts of the world.

Controls, directly or through its subsidiaries, telephone and other companies with assets exceeding $50,000,000. No evidence of any relationship to American Tel. & Tel.

Goldman Sachs and Others.

G. F. H.—Kindly inform me regarding the future of Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, Blue Ridge and Shenandoah Corporations.

Answer—While Blue Ridge Corporation paid an initial dividend of 20 cents a share on August 1 last, the stock can hardly be classified as an investment, even though the net asset value as of April 30 of this year was reported at $12.72 a share, as the current value probably is lower.

No cash dividends are paid by either Goldman Sachs or Shenandoah and even the stock dividends which were paid, have been passed. Goldman Sachs holds several speculative and slightly remunerative interests. However, since several years may be required for substantial earning power to be attained, the stock lacks present attractiveness. The same holds true of Shenandoah, pending direct evidence of improved general market conditions.

Federated Capital Trust.

G. T. P.—Please give me your advice on Federated Capital Investment Trust shares.

Answer—Notwithstanding the fact that Federated Capital Corporation paid a cash dividend on preferred and a cash and stock dividend on common August 31, last, the shares do not impress as being overdesirable investments, to say the least. Company, operating as a general management type investment trust, reported for fiscal year ended April 30, 1930, net income from investments only of $103,587, an amount insufficient to cover preferred dividends paid. In all ordinary circumstances, payment of unearned dividends is considered a very unwise policy.

$2,500,000 BUILDING SALE IS ANNOUNCED

Five Eight-Story Apartment Structures Are Sold by A. J. Howar.

ALL IN NORTHWEST AREA

Signing of a contract whereby five eight-story apartment buildings are sold by A. Joseph Howar, their builder and owner, to an unnamed out-of-town investor for a consideration of approximately $2,500,000 in value, was announced yesterday. Legal formalities attendant on the transfer will be completed within 30 days, it was said.

The buildings involved in the deal are the Windemere at 1825 New Hampshire avenue northwest; the Harrowgate, at 1833 New Hampshire avenue northwest; the Flagler, at 736 Twenty-second street northwest; the Guthridge, at 2115 F street northwest, and the Sedgewick, at 1722 Nineteenth street northwest.

All of the buildings are of brick, concrete, stone and steel construction. The Windemere and Harrowgate, built about four years ago, contain 104 and 96 units, respectively. The Flagler and Guthridge, built about three and a half years ago, contain 87 and 96 units, respectively. The Sedgewick built two years ago, has 89.

The consideration was part cash and included exchange of out-of-town properties. The unknown purchaser will continue to operate the buildings as an investment, it was said. Negotiations were conducted through the offices of Higbie, Richardson & Franklin, Inc., and C. W. Donaldson.

CHARTER TO FASCISTI IS DENIED IN GEORGIA

American Order of Black Shirts Would Promote White Supremacy.

IMITATION, SAY RIVALS

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The American Fascisti Order of Black Shirts, which petitioned for incorporation in Georgia, and listed among its purposes the promotion of "white supremacy," was denied a charter in Fulton County Superior Court today.

Judge G. H. Howard, in denying the charter, said that some acting members of the order apparently misunderstood the term, "white supremacy," and had petitioned for a charter authorizing both "legal and illegal acts."

The American Fascisti Order of Black Shirts, which was chartered at Orlando, Fla., and which intervened in Fulton County to oppose the charter for the Georgia order, was enjoined from operating in Fulton County.

The court ruling said that an "examination of the petition for charter by the Georgia order shows that all powers sought and all the purposes set out with reference to the proposed rules and by-laws and with reference to promoting 'white supremacy' are not stated with such definiteness and certainty, in all respects, as to show that the granting of all such powers would be within the purview of the constitution and laws of the State."

The charter was opposed by the Fulton County grand jury on the claim that there was no need for such an order in the community. The Florida organization claimed the Georgia order was a "colorful imitation" and opposed the granting of the charter as an intervenor.

Evidence at the hearing showed that several Atlanta firms had been confronted with demands from the Black Shirt to discharge Negro laborers and put white men in their places.

Injuries Suffered In Plunge Fatal

Andrew Wallace Sparks, 40, Is Dead; Suicide Theory Held.

Andrew Wallace Sparks, 40, of 648 I street northwest, died at Casualty Hospital yesterday following a fall of about 25 feet from a second-floor window of his home. Police say he may have jumped.

He was found in a unconscious condition by his wife, Mrs. Mary Sparks, lying in the rear yard of the home. She notified police who rushed the man to the hospital where he was treated for a fractured skull and other injuries. He died without recovering consciousness.

Despondency over the death of a son, Bernard Sparks, in an auto accident about two months ago, Mrs. Sparks said yesterday, may have been a reason for the act, although it was not definitely stated that the act was one of suicide.

TOWERMAN BLAMED IN CRASH; TRIO DEAD

Big Four Mail Trains Meet on Curve Through Error in Switch Control.

RAIN OBSCURED VISION

Cleveland, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Blame for the wreck of two Big Four mail trains, which killed three trainmen and injured five others here early today, had been fixed by the railroad on a signal towerman, D. F. Stephans, 26, of Cleveland. Decision of the Ohio Public Utilities Commission as to the cause was waiting completion of a separate investigation still in progress.

Meanwhile two of the injured, scalded by steam which poured from the locomotive boilers as the giant engines were shattered in the crash, continued in critical condition in a hospital. Injuries of the other three were less serious.

All of the victims resided in Cleveland. Those who were killed were Fireman Henry A. Sprouse, 66; Flagman Charles Graff, 65, and Conductor Jerry Dixon, all of the westbound train.

Two Seriously Injured.

The seriously injured were Frank J. McCarthy, 42, engineer on the same train, and Clarence Sheffield, 35, fireman on the other. Thomas Henahan, 59, engineer, and William Hartnett, 34, flagman, both of the eastbound crew, and William F. Dee, 43, brakeman on the westbound train, were the less seriously injured.

The report blaming Stephens was issued by J. D. Bell, superintendent of the Cleveland terminal district of the Big Four.

It said that Stephens gave the signal that sent the eastbound train on the westbound's right of way. He had failed to consult a dispatcher before he gave the singal, the report said.

Trains Crash on Curve.

With their vision partly obscured by rain and early morning darkness, the train crews did not perceive the looming danger until too late. Running about 22 miles an hour, the engines met on a curve.

The two locomotives reared upward, shattering their front ends and boilers, and telescoping the cabs and tenders. Sprouse and Graff were killed probably instantly. Dixon tried to jump from a cab, but was crushed to death between the engine and its tender. McCarthy and Sheffield were hit by steam but crawled painfully out of the wreckage.

Carrying two mail cars, the eastbound train was arriving from Bellefontaine on its daily run. The other train with two mail and one baggage cars, was proceeding to the Linndale Station, where it was to have coupled with a St. Louis passenger train. No passengers were aboard either of the wrecks.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

BYRD SAYS DROUGHT AID FAR INADEQUATE

1931 Road Fund Anticipation Only Helpful Item in Plan, He Avers.

MAKES NEW PROPOSALS

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The opinion that aid so far announced by the Federal Government is not in any way adequate to meet the conditions produced by the drought in Virginia was expressed today by Harry F. Byrd, chairman of Virginia's drought relief committee, in a lengthy communication to C. W. Warburton, secretary of the Federal committee.

Mr. Byrd criticized the measures as so bound up with restrictions as to make them far from adequate, especially to aid those most in need of assistance.

"If I am correct in my interpretation of what has been done, the Federal Government as such has done one thing only to aid in the emergency, and that is to permit the anticipation of the 1931 road fund as soon as the projects can be approved." Mr. Byrd said.

Value Held Doubtful.

"I am assuming that the newspaper dispatches of today quoting the Comptroller General as ruling against any cash outlay of this fund prior to July 1, 1931, are correct. Even this will be of very doubtful value, because, as previously stated, this fund must be expended on costly roads under drastic restrictions, and will only contribute to a small degree to the relief of unemployment." Chairman Byrd requests the secretary of the Federal committee to make known before the meeting of the State committee October 22, whether any additional measures are contemplated by the Federal Government. He suggested at the same time three measures, as follows:

(1) That Congress authorize a generous road appropriation to be matched by the States, to be expended on cheaper types of construction, so that employment might be given throughout the State instead of on a few costly projects.

(2) The extension of reasonable credit to worthy farmers, secured by crop liens to be paid back next year, without "unnecessary restrictions."

(3) Purchase by the Federal Government of large quantities of fertilizer, seed and feed, which under this arrangement might be obtained and furnished to the farmers at great reduction in cost.

Freight Cut Insufficient.

Criticizing in order the Federal drought relief measures which Mr. Warburton had called to his attention, the Virginia chairman said the reduction in freight rates by the railroads had been beneficial, but that the benefits did not reach the farmer unable to pay cash for the feed. He expressed regret that the National Drought Relief Commission did not adopt his suggestion to extend freight rate reductions requests to apply to fertilizer, lime, seeds and other necessities of the farmer.

The $200,000 allotted to Virginia for Federal seed loans for planting fall pasture crops, Mr. Byrd said, was so bound up with restrictions that only $43,000 had been used. He said this was made possible by an act of Congress and not by the generosity of the Federal administration or as an emergency measure. Pointing out that the time limit for these loans had expired and that the continued drought made fall planting of pastures useless except in limited areas, Mr. Byrd criticized the restrictions which, he said, prohibited loans to farmers other than those unable to secure bank credit and yet required that the farmer must own one head of stock for each two acres planted.

Not Objects of Charity.

Relative to Red Cross aid, Mr. Byrd said:

"There are many farmers in Virginia, who, through no fault of their own, have lost practically their all by reason of this visitation of Providence. These farmers are not objects of charity and I would not offer them the insult of telling them that they should appeal to the Red Cross to permit them to continue their farm operations."

The most severe criticism was directed at the proposed formation of Intermediate Agricultural Credit Associations, which Mr. Byrd said require gilt-edged bankable paper to an even greater extent than local banking institutions. Mr. Byrd said the need in Virginia was not for credit to those who could provide gilt-edged security but for those who are normally good credit risks but temporarily unable to offer bankable paper.

Maryland Situation Scored.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 17.—Charging that Baltimore Bankers are apparently willing to lend plenty of money to the county banks to aid drought-stricken farmers, but that the county banks are requested to put up gilt-edged collateral, and are thus required to hold the bag if farmers are unable to pay back the loan, Henry Holzapfel, president of the Mechanics Loan & Savings Bank, and chairman of the Washington County drought relief committee, named by Gov. Ritchie, told the chamber of commerce that the committee was faced with a situation of raising $200,000 to aid the farmers of Washington County.

"We have discussed means of meeting the situation, but there is apparently no solution unless the Federal Government steps in. The smaller banks can not loan out the people's money to farmers without good security, and there are approximately 40 per cent, or 900 farmers, in Washington County who have no credit," Mr. Holzapfel said.

The only solution, Mr. Holzapfel said, appears to be aid which could be furnished by the Federal Government, as it did for sufferers following the Mississippi flood. Approximately 80 per cent of the money loaned by the Government to aid the flood sufferers has been repaid.

Oil Men's Association Ends Virginia Meeting

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 17.—The fall convention of the Virginia Oil Men's Association adjourned this afternoon, following a meeting of the Virginia subcommittee code of ethics, American Petroleum Institute.

Thirty-two members competed in the association's annual golf tournament, held on the links of the Farmington Country Club. A. L. Tenser, secretary, made the low gross score, 87, and was awarded the President's Cup. Fred Rabe, of Washington, with 89, was runner up. The silver cup offered by the American Oil Co. for the lowest net score was won by T. J. Starke, of Richmond, with a 64.

Loudoun Reports School Increases

Larger Enrollment Traced to Lack of Work on County Farms.

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Oct. 17.—Three hundred and thirty-nine more pupils attended school during the month of September than during the same month in 1929, Superintendent O. L. Emerick reported at the regular meeting of the Loudoun County School Board held here. The increase in attendance is due in a large measure to the lack of work on the farms this fall, which always keep many farm boys from attending school.

The superintendent reported that the State Board of Health could not furnish typhoid vaccine free, but could purchase it from manufacturers. No action was taken on the requests for a colored school at Sycoline, for an additional teacher at Lucketts, and for a full day school at Clark's Gap. The board decided to employ an additional teacher at Philomont on a half-day basis.

The superintendent was authorized to expend not over $600 for sanitary work in the schools.

JAMES REID LARKIN, OF MANASSAS, DEAD

Was Chairman of Supervisors in Prince William County.

ACTIVE IN CIVIC WORK

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Oct. 17.—James Reid Larkin, chairman of the board of supervisors of Prince William County, died here today following an illness of several days.

Mr. Larkin, who had been a resident of Manassas for about fifteen years, was born on April 21, 1873, at Lynchburg, Va. Mrs. Larkin, who survives, was Miss Blanche Faris, of Washington.

The deceased had been exceptionally active in advancing the interests of his county and was indefatigable in his interest in civic and community affairs. He was chairman of the county drought relief committee and a member of the State drought relief committee, and his untiring devotion to the duties brought about by the prevailing drought here, as well as his work on new plans for county road building, had much to do with his fatal illness. One of the county's most active merchants for years, ill health forced his retirement from business two years ago, and since then all of his time had been devoted to promoting the good of the county.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 3:30 p. m. in Trinity Episcopal Church, with the Rev. A. Stuart Gibson, rector, officiating.

In addition to the widow, those surviving are: two sons, F. Norvel Larkin, county engineer of Fairfax County, and Charles Rozier Larkin, of the faculty of Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa.; two brothers, William P. of Wellington, and Norvel Larkin, of Manassas; two sisters, Mrs. T. J. Ashford and Mrs. C. M. Larkin, of Manassas, and several nieces and nephews.

CLASHES EXPECTED IN DANVILLE STRIKE

Police Told to Disperse Mobs of Jeering Union Men at Mill Gates.

VIOLENT ACTS INCREASE

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 17.—The Danville textile strike tonight headed toward a climax. The Danville police commission told Chief of Police James H. Martin that unless the labor union is able to disperse the jeering mobs of union men at the mill gates each night by its own power, that he must "use his force to disperse such assemblies and to institute prosecutions against persons engaged in the same."

Hitherto the union has been permitted to carry out mass demonstrations on the theory that anything short of a blow might be broadly construed as "peaceful persuasion." The police commission feels that the growth of the crowds, the words used and the pursuit of workers to their homes is an invitation to violence and must be stopped. It promises to be the first definite showdown of strength and as a result the outcome is awaited with considerable anxiety.

Today Buford Nash, president of the local, sent out instructions to picketa to cooperate in maintaining law and order, but it is understood that the union will cling tenaciously to the picketing system as a court-sustained right given the American Federation of Labor.

Acts of violence were more frequent today. Venable Crawley, negro fireman, while going to work was forced into a car by four men, taken to the country and whipped. He came back and told police of the attack. He suffered a scalp wound. He did not know who his aggressors were. The home of J. A. Henderson, on Lee street, was showered with brickbats early today after two policemen had guarded it all night. Henderson said he had been threatened because he has worked in the mill. Gilbert Holly is under arrest for having scooped up a handful of black mud and deposited it in the face of Clyde Wallington, mill overseer, as Wallington left the mill.

Police had no clue to the man who late last night was "taken for a ride" and carried down Claiborne street, screaming for help, followed by seven other cars.

Wiley Hughes, another negro fireman, went to work today through the main gate despite pickets, after being set upon and beaten last night and being warned, he told the police, that he would not live if he continued to work. Frank Bradner has been identified as his assailant, was arrested today, and is under $100 bond to appear in police court tomorrow.

Fifteen extra policemen were sworn in today and a systematized patroling of the city at night is being undertaken by cars and motorcycles.

Holt E. Ross, president of the Mississippi Federation of Labor, is to address strikers tomorrow afternoon at a mass meeting.

Fred Barr and Miss Sophye Baker, corresponding secretaries.

ARLINGTON ALTERS TAX ASSESSMENTS

Increases of Approximately $200,000 Are Decided Upon by Board.

SCOUTS HOLD BANQUET

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington County Board of Tax Equalization at its second public hearing yesterday equalized the tax assessment of four properties in the Country Club Hills section. It increased the assessment more than $50,000. Another increase of approximately $150,000 resulted in the equalization of the properties of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Club, the Washington Airport and Hoover Field, making a grand total of increased assessments of approximately $200,000.

Chairman Emory N. Hosmer stated that when the work of the board in equalizing the assessments in all sections of the county is completed the loss in revenue to the county by fact of the recent annexation by the City of Alexandria probably will be wiped out.

The board meets again Tuesdty morning at 10:30 o'clock at the courthouse.

The Ballston Boy Scout Troop No. 101 entered its fifteenth year of activity with the annual banquet held last night in the scout hall. Maj. William King, 98, the oldest member of the District of Columbia Scout Council and the father of the scout movement in Ballston, was honored guest.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Henry J. Miller.

Frank Sherwood, scoutmaster, acted as the toastmaster.

Linn C. Drake, scout executive of the District of Columbia, the principal speaker, spoke of the scout movement and its value to the training of all young boys.

"We are today looking to the youth for information more than ever and the old saying children should be seen and not heard is rapidly becoming a thing of the past," he said.

The other speaker was William E. Leitch, scout executive of northern Virginia, who gave an interesting talk on camp life with the aid of moving pictures.

Several instrumental selections were given by Joesph Francis, Carrol Francis, James Hayes, and Vernon Cleveland, members of the scout orchestra. The Rev. Henry J. Miller gave a number of piano selections.

The banquet was prepared and served by the Scout Mothers Auxiliary.

With 35 members attending, the Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club held its second annual banquet last night in the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse. Mrs. Katherine G. Cohen presided and Mrs. Pearl W. Sharpe acted as toastmaster.

The principal speaker, Mrs. Katherine Lewis, of Washington, gave an address on the training of women and girls for the business world.

The other speaker was Mrs. Mary Troth, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Alexandria. She spoke on the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

The program included a number of musical selections by Mrs. Cleo Scanlon Parks, and impersonations by Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips.

The Bowen Women's Bible Class at the Clarendon Baptist Church, with a membership of more than 84 women, will soon be provided with greater conveniences, as work is now nearing completion in the installation of adequate heat in the basement to take care of the continued increase of members in the class. It was learned last night that it is hoped to have larger quarters ready for the class by November 1. Mrs. Jane Jones is the teacher.

With the auditorium of Stonewall Jackson School filled to capacity last night, the Parent-Teacher Association, following a short business session, gave a reception to the teachers.

The meeting opened with an address of welcome by the Rev. U. S. Knox, pastor of the Baptist Church at Falls Church.

A proposal for the organization of a County School Federation was discussed following an address on the subject by F. P. Dewey. The association voted to send delegates to the organization meeting to be held in the auditorium of the Washington Lee High School the evening of October 31, but reserved its decision to join the federation until further information is received as to the State law of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Services at St. George's Episcopal Church will be conducted tomorrow by the Rev. Henry J. Miller, beginning at 7:30 a. m., with the celebration of the holy communion. Church school will be at 9:45 o'clock with morning prayer, litany and sermon at 11 o'clock. The subject will be, "Separated."

The Clarendon Loyal Temperance Legion will hold its October meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Miss Anita Mastin, 357 Marion avenue, at Clarendon. Plans for the year's work will be considered at this meeting.

With the center of Wilson boulevard and intersecting streets torn up in preparation for reconstruction, motorists wishing to reach Ballston or points beyond are advised to turn off the boulevard at Virginia avenue, going to Taylor avenue, thence right along Taylor avenue back to the boulevard.

Virginia Wedding Announced.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 17 (Special).—Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Padgett, of this city, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Gladys Claiborne Padgett, to J. Holcomb May, of Bellevue, Bedford County. The marriage was celebrated here October 10 by Dr. P. T. Harman, pastor West Lynchburg Baptist Church.

TOWN WILL BALLOT ON WATER SYSTEM

Effect of Drought Revives Agitation for Plant in Fairfax.

ESTIMATES ARE MADE

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

It now seems probable that citizens of the town of Fairfax will have another chance to vote on a water system for the town. A special meeting of the town council was held to discuss the situation, which is becoming acute.

The council appointed A. R. Sherwood, O. B. Campbell, and H. N. Clarke, of its own members, and Dr. F. W. Huddleston, Wilson M. Farr, John M. Whalen and B. S. Gillespie, a committee to consult with County Engineer F. Novelle Larkin, and draw up plans for a municipal water system to be installed immediately.

Last year, citizens turned down a bond issue for the installation of a water and sewer system by a narrow margin. The bond issue at that time was for approximately $49,000. The long continued drought this summer and fall appears to have materially altered the opinion of the voters.

It was stated at the meeting Tuesday night that most of the citizens believe that the county engineer could install a water system more cheaply than the Atlanta firm which made the former estimate and it was felt that the work can be done cheaper now than when the last estimates were obtained, and that the project would give employment to local labor. It was believed that a sum of $35,000 would be adequate to complete the work.

A bond issue of $35,000, it was estimated, would raise taxes 60 cents on the $100, based on the present valuation, and if $50,000 is needed to complete the project this would raise taxes $1 on the $100 at the beginning of the installation. However, it was pointed out that a water system is a revenue producing public utility, and it is expected that whatever the tax may be, it would gradually decrease and eventually disappear entirely. The revenue from the water service would be enough to take care of both the maintenance and interest on the investment.

During the past summer many persons in the town have had to have their wells deepened at an average cost of $400 each, and still they have received no satisfactory service. It was pointed out the tax on their property to support a bond issue would not amount to that amount for the 20-year life of the bonds.

The majority of the wells in the town are shallow and in danger of being polluted at all times, even under normal conditions. A water system would also give the town an adequate supply for fire protection, which it has never had.

As soon as the county engineer has made the necessary plans and estimates, a petition will be presented to Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the circuit court, for his signature and permission to hold a special election. Thirty days must elapse after the petition is signed before the election can take place.

Mr. Keith has stated that if a water system is installed he believes that a private company of citizens will be formed to provide a sewerage system for the central portion of the town.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors will be urged to adopt the State law for firemen's compensation by a special committee from the Fairfax County Firemen's Association, at their next meeting November 5. This law was passed by the last session of the State Legislature and it must be adopted by the local boards before becoming effective in a county. The law provides for compensation for firemen killed or injured in the line of duty to the extent of $50 per week for 40 weeks, or the principal sum of $3,500.

This committee, composed of Leon L. Freeman, of Vienna, chairman; T. Edgar Reed, of Herndon; R. E. Kendrick, of Falls Church; James E. Nickel, of Fairfax, and John Preston, of McLean, will ask the supervisors to pay the premium on such insurance out of the 3-cent county levy for fire protection, which will be available next month. It was estimated that a policy covering 25 members from the five companies in Fairfax County would cost approximately $275.

Preliminary plans were made for holding a banquet for the members of the association. George F. Harrison, of Herndon, was appointed a special committee to ascertain whether or not the ladies of Herndon would serve the banquet for them. Plans were discussed for making this event an annual affair.

The 4-H Club of the Fairfax School has been reorganized and the following officers elected for the coming year: Adrienne Tobin, president; Viola Hallman, vice president; Dorothy Dale, secretary; Fay Watkins, treasurer; Edith McKenney, reporter, and Charlotte Young and Myrtle Tinder song leaders.

Mrs. Guy Irvin was elected president of the Ladies Aid Society of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church. Other officers elected yesterday were: Mrs. R. K. Ferguson, first vice president; Mrs. Henry H. Rogers, second vice president; Mrs. Elmer Via, third vice president; Mrs. E. P. Holmes, fourth vice president; Mrs. Charles Berger, secretary, and Mrs. George W. Hawxhurst, treasurer.

The primary department of the Presbyterian Church at Falls Church will hold a bake sale in the East Falls Church postoffice this afternoon.

State Prohibition Inspector Virgil Williams and Sheriff Eppa P. Kirby, of Fairfax county, raided the home of Alexander Porteous at Lorton, where they said they found a brand-new 150-gallon still. From the pieces of sheet copper scattered about the room, the officers state, the still had just been completed, and had never been used. Porteous was away from home at the time of the raid, and when he returned and found the police waiting there he attempted to pull a gun, the officers claim, but when he saw he was covered he surrendered. He was lodged in the Fairfax County Jail. He was unable to furnish $1,000 bond.

John Haislip, of Lorton, has been elected president of the Lee District Sunday School Association. Other officers elected were Earnest Plaskett, of Lorton, vice president, and Mrs. A. F. Moon, of Burke, secretary-treasurer. Miss Hazel Davis will act as superintendent of the primary department; Miss Frances Nevitt, of Potters Hill, superintendent of young people; Mrs. Elsie Harrover, of Silver Brook Church, near Lorton, adult department; Mrs. Archie Hall, of Syndenstricker, superintendent of home department, and Dr. August Stabler, of Sideburn, superintendent of teacher training.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

DINOSAUR EGGS IN MONTANA.

DINOSAUR eggs have been found in America. This is the first real break the Hoover administration has had.

• • • •

The eggs were dug up in southern Montana. They are not very good as eggs, but will be received in the very best circles as grade A antiques.

• • • •

Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews found dinosaur eggs in Mongolia a few years ago, but the ones now found on American soil are fresher by 10,000,000 years.

• • • •

Credit for their discovery goes to Dr. Glenn L. Jepson, of Princeton, who suddenly finds himself in the limelight as the Nation's biggest egg, if not butter, man.

• • • •

THE dinosaur eggs are a big thing for Princeton and will in a measure atone for the loss of the Brown game last week. It also puts Princeton far out ahead of Yale and Harvard in the matter of prehistoric omelettes.

• • • •

Yale has never been very successful in the egg business, although it has had millions of dollars to work with. Its big egg hunters have always clung to the old-fashioned formations and straight line plunging.

• • • •

Harvard men have for years aspired to leadership in the matter of dinosaur eggs, and the news that a Princeton man had found the first ones on this continent cast a shadow of gloom over Harvard clubs from coast to coast.

• • • •

Glum little groups of Harvard men were to be found gathered here and there today discussing in low tones the Princeton triumph and gloomily deploring the fact that the Crimson colors had been lowered again.

• • • •

NEAR the dinosaur eggs was found the tooth of a prehistoric mammal. This will delight scientists the world over, as it makes the mystery more intricate. One theory is that the tooth is the key to the disappearance of dinosaurs. The unidentified mammal, it is figured out, ate the eggs, thus rendering a great service to the world.

• • • •

The one great regret of civilized man on the highways and byways of the country today is that no animal ever ate the eggs of our interurban motor buses. They are not only as big as the dinosaurs, but much more dangerous.

• • • •

What to do with the eggs, now that he has found them, is one of Prof. Jepson's problems. A suggestion that he summon Zaro Agha, the aged Turk, to sit on them and see what he can hatch has been rejected.

COMPLICATIONS.

THIS probe into the matter of bought judgeships in New York has gone far enough. The first thing you know a prosecutor who bought his job will be in the uncomfortable position of having to bring a jurist who bought his place on the bench, for trial before a judge who still has six more payments to make.

Song to annoy Yale men: "As We Go Marching Through Georgia."

Col. Lindbergh has bought a farm near Princeton, N. J. To raise hops, obviously.

The colonel will probably be the first farmer in history to milk a cow in the air.

FAIR AND SOFTER.

MUSSOLINI must be getting milder. His latest pictures show him feeding sugar to horses. Rotogravure sections may soon show him in the following poses:

1. Feeding pigeons.
2. Playing with park squirrels.
3. Clipping the dog.
4. Spraying the rose bush.
5. Helping the wife hang pictures.
6. Carrying home the bundles after a shopping trip with the best friend and severest critic.

Mr. Wickersham advocates the whipping post to curb crime. The idea is silly. Trial postponements, hearing on new motions, appeals to higher courts, &c., drag on for years and years. And no whip will last that long.

An old actor boasted to Ima Dodo that he had played with Booth, and Ima replied with a withering look that she knew all through the Georgia game that there was a weakness in the line somewhere.

SUGGESTIONS FOR VISITING A NEW BABY.

(BOY)

This brand-new baby has stout lungs,
And, oh, but he's a bouncer!
Feed him Grade A and you may raise
A radio announcer.
But should he show a tendency
To croon, why feed him on Grade B.

(GIRL)

This little darling has a voice,
And, oh, but she's a beauty!
Feed her Grade A; she'll be some day
A little Roxey cutie;
But if you give it to her sour
She may become a recipe hour!

MASONS CONCLUDE ANNUAL CONVENTION

600 Attend Scottish Rite Final Entertainment at Alexandria.

NEW TEMPLE WAS USED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The annual fall reunion of the Scottish Rite Masons of the Valley of Virginia, held in the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple, now nearing completion on Shooters Hill, was brought to a close Thursday night with an entertainment, open to all Masons and their wives, at which more than 600 were present.

Robert S. Crump, sovereign grand inspector of Virginia, presided. The entertainment was opened with the playing of the chimes in the tower of the temple, by Miss Margaret Jane Cranford.

The speakers were Sovereign Grand Inspector Crump, who paid tribute to the Scottish Rite bodies in this section, and congratulated them on the size of the class, numbering 34 members, which had just finished the degrees; Col. Louis A. Watres, president of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association, who told of the work of constructing the $4,000,000 temple as a memorial to George Washington, the Mason, on which, he said, not a dollar of indebtedness is outstanding; Robert D. Ford, secretary of the Scottish Rite bodies in Richmond, who gave an outline of the history of Scottish Rite Masonry in the United States; State Senator Frank L. Ball, of Clarendon, who was appointed spokesman for the newly initiated class, and Robert South Barrett, who referred to the seven Scottish Rite Masons who banded together here 20 years ago and organized the local consistory, which has now grown to 720 members.

Mr. Barrett told of the educational program of the order, and said that the Scottish Rite Masons stand for a Secretary of Education in the Cabinet of the President. He favors the use of Federal funds for the schools, and said this would not invade State rights, as such funds are accepted and used for other emergencies.

UNDERGROUND FIRES BATTLED IN VIRGINIA

Outbreak in Northwestern Dismal Swamp Extends to North Carolina.

POLLARD PROMISES AID

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Armed with special pumps, 100 fire fighters are battling underground fires creeping through the peat bogs of Dismal Swamp, Chapin Jones, State forester, said here today.

From 15,000 to 18,000 acres have been devastated since the first outbreak on October 4, Mr. Jones said. After laying the seriousness of the situation before Gov. Pollard he left here for the scene of action.

Gov. Pollard promised the forester his cooperation and authorized the forestry division of the conservation and development commission to take such steps as are necessary to control the outbreaks.

The State forester was accompanied by Thomas L. Farrar, of Charlottesville, chairman of the forestry division of the State conservation and development commission, and Fred C. Pederson, assistant State forester, with other forestry employes.

The threat of the fires, accentuated by the drought, lies largely in the fact that they are underground and the fighters have no hope of extinguishing them completely before winter rain sets in, Mr. Jones said. Much of the area already burned over is the property of the Richmond Cedar Works, the Roper Lumber Co., of Norfolk, and the Ackerly Lumber Co., of New York, although the most valuable timber in the swamp is yet untouched, he explained.

Trees in the area, with their roots burned away, have fallen to the ground and occasionally the flames break through the surface where, if fanned by a wind, they eat rapidly through the bushes and fallen timber.

The fire is in the northwest portion of Dismal Swamp, partly in Nansemond County but principally in Norfolk County. The total area of the Virginia portion is 117,000 acres with another large area in North Carolina.

$5,000 AND $5,697 DAMAGES AWARDED

Two Suits Over Auto Mishaps Won by Plaintiffs at Upper Marlboro.

G. O. P. RALLIES LISTED

A circuit court jury in Prince Georges county last night awarded damages of $5,000 to Charles Crosby for injuries he received in an automobile accident in March of last year. Crosby sued three brothers, William, Edward and John Ulle, collectively, for $25,000.

The case against John Ulle was nonsuited and Judge Joseph C. Mattingly instructed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant in the suit against Edward. Evidence showed that William had been the driver of the car which struck Crosby, and the judge held that there was no testimony to show that Edward was at fault.

The accident occurred near Riverdale when the Ulle car swung off the road to avoid a collision. The three brothers and a passenger, Felix Jones, were in the car which struck Crosby, who was walking beside the road.

Crosby was represented by J. Wilson Ryon, Arthur C. Keefer and M. Hampton Magruder. To avoid being locked up over the week-end, there being no court today, the jury brought back its verdict late last night.

Damages of $5,697.41 were awarded to Harry Bender as a result of two suits against Ashby L. Shepherd, who was alleged to be responsible for injuries suffered by Bender and his wife in an automobile accident. Though the crash was in Anne Arundel County, a change of venue caused the trial to be held in the circuit court at Upper Marlboro.

One of the verdicts for the plaintiff was for $3,000, for the wife's injuries. Separate suits were filed, one based on Bender's hurts, and the other on the injuries to his wife. William Leahy and J. Wilson Ryon appeared for Mr. Bender.

In a suit instituted by the Keystone Roofing Co., of Washington, against Elizabeth D. Coon, Miss Coon won. She had refused to pay for a roof covered by the company, alleging that it leaked. The company sued for $525. S. Marvin Peach was lawyer for the defendant.

Two persons, adjudged guilty during criminal trials last week, were sentenced yeterday. Lee Day, on conviction of assault and battery on William Leatherer, will serve four months in the House of Correction and pay a $200 fine. He had been sentenced to a year in Police Court, but appealed. Charles Dustin, of Laurel, received the same sentence and fine for illegal possession of liquor.

Civil trials probably will occupy all of next week, State's Attorney J. Frank Parran said yesterday, and criminal action on the indictments brought in by the jury will not begin until a week from Monday.

Four Republican meetings have been arranged at various towns throughout the county. There will be a rally at T. B., October 23, one at Mitchellville October 24, at North Brentwood October 31, and at Bowie November 1. This is in addition to the meetings which are planned for Capitol Heights and Fairmont Heights next week.

Prince Georges County Democrats are gleeful over a gain of 743 registered voters during the last registration period. With a lead over the Republicans of 855 before the period, they now outnumber the G. O. P. by 1,598. And there are only 706 independents, not enough to swing the election, that is, according to arithmetic.

On the other hand, the Republicans point out, registered strength is not voting strength, and there is no warrant that all the Democrats will come out on election day.

The total number of registered Democrats is now 12,812, while the followers of the elephant number 11,214. The latter have gained only 441 voters by the last registration.

The total number of voters registered has increased from 23,123, in 1928, to 24,253 this year, in spite of the fact that the campaign of two years ago was of such nature as to produce record-breaking votes over the country. Most of the increase, however, is reported to come from the metropolitan area, several of the agricultural districts having fewer registered than two years ago.

William Neal, colored, was convicted of driving while drunk and reckless driving yesterday in Police Court at Upper Marlboro. Judge J. Chew Sheriff imposed a fine of $100 on the driving-drunk charge and $1 for the other count. Neal was arrested by State Policeman William A. Rogers.

Charlie Diggs, colored, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction by the same court. He was convicted of assault and battery on John Fleet, also colored. An auto pump was exhibited in court as the weapon used in the melee.

Schools throughout the county will be closed next Friday if the teachers desire to attend meetings of the Maryland State Teachers Association in Baltimore, it was announced yesterday by Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools. The closing of the institutions is up to the individual teachers, Mr Orem explained.

The meeting will occupy two days, Friday and Saturday of next week. Friday will be utilized in the reading of papers and discussion of technical problems, with a business meeting Saturday. A concert will be given Friday night by the All-Maryland High School Orchestra Chorus and Glee Clubs.

William H. Brooke has been chosen treasurer of the Prince Georges County Republican State central committee, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Brooke takes the place of Samuel Gardiner Coale, who was selected as chairman and temporary treasurer last week.
